Saar Basin Is Seething With Emotions, Armies, Voters as Big Day Nears

55,000 Former Saarlanders, "Imported" For All-Important Plebiscite, Onlookers and 6 Armies Throng Disputed Basin.

9 A. M. TUESDAY

The World Will Be Told of the Results on January 15 by Plebiscite President.

Saarbruecken, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 11 (AP)—Thousands of "imported" voters flocked into the Saar Basin Territory today to cast their ballots in Sunday's plebiscite.

They came from Germany, France, Asia and Africa, North and South America—former Saarlanders qualified to participate in the portentous election because they lived in the territory on June 28, 1919, the day the Treaty of Versailles became effective.

Fifty-five thousand were expected from abroad before the polls close Sunday night. Representing 10 per cent of the total vote, they may hold the fate of the plebiscite.

The 900 neutrals who will rule the election precincts were ready to assume their delicate task. The plebiscite commission has clothed them with absolute authority to disenfranchise any voter who betrays his intentions and to arrest those who may reveal how they cast their ballots.

The "German Front" cancelled plans to welcome the incoming voters after Communists spoiled a reception yesterday by putting on a counter demonstration of their own.

News of the plebiscite's result—whether it favors reunion with Germany, joining France or continued League of Nations administration—will be broadcast to the world about 9 a. m. Tuesday, plebiscite officials announced today.

The 300 journalists stationed here to report the voting will be denied all communication beyond the territory's borders until after A. E. Rodhe, president of the plebiscite commission, has announced the returns by radio. Not even local telephone calls will be permitted, officials said, until Rodhe has completed his broadcast.

A Vanishing Species

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)

Saarbruecken, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 11—Amid the vast influx of foreigners attracted to the Saar territory in connection with Sunday's plebiscite, the resident Saarlander has become almost a vanishing species.

Much is heard of the international army temporarily quartered in this strife-torn territory, but there are, in fact, no less than six international armies here either in or out of uniform.

First there is the patrol force of Italian, British, Swedish, and Netherland troops brought in under direction of the League of Nations. Secondly, there is the army of Saar government and plebiscite officials. The third contingent is composed of Saarlanders from the United States, South America, Germany and various other parts of the globe come home to cast their ballots.

Newspaper correspondents from almost every country, battling for ringside glimpses of this historic episode, comprise the fourth army. To these may be added the fifth army of propagandists, hurling a final barrage of arguments for and against reunion with Germany, and an army of spies feverishly engaged in keeping tabs on the activities of all the other detachments as well as occasionally finding time to tap one another's telephone.

Even before this plebiscite campaign began, the Saar territory was Europe's most thickly populated section. Now its environs are so congested that it has become all but impossible to take a stroll down Saarbruecken's main street without precipitating an "international incident."

FAMOUS OPERA SINGER. MME. SEMBRICH, DEAD.

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—Mme. Marcella Sembrich, 76, internationally known opera singer, died today at her home, 131 Central Park West, after an illness of nearly two months.

Death was due to angina pectoris, from which the former Austrian operatic soprano had been ill since November 15 last. Her home was with her son, Marcel William Kiengel, and his wife. They are the only relatives she had in this country.

Emperor Kang Teh III.

London, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Singapore correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Agency reported today that Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo was gravely ill, that there was little hope for his recovery, and that a regency council had been appointed to govern the Japanese-created empire.

Condax Borrowed Book.

Philadelphia, Jan. 11 (AP).—A radio account of the Hauptmann trial led John Condax, 26-year-old art instructor, to notify authorities that he was the borrower of a book of symbols from the New York Public Library, about which defense attorneys questioned Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condax.

Consider Invoking Drastic Rule to Rush $880,000,000 to President

This Amount Would Tide Relief Activities Over the Transition Period From the Dole to Employment Program—Consider Important Change in the Method of Distributing Money For Works Projects.

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP).—Watching relief funds dwindling away, Democratic leaders in the house considered today the advisability of rushing $880,000,000 to President Roosevelt by invoking a drastic rule.

Often called a "gag rule" by its opponents, this regulation would limit debate sharply and forbid amendments. No decision as to whether it would be invoked had been reached, but one leader disclosed it was being considered.

The major reasons why he said figured in the problem were two: First, President Roosevelt's desire to have the measure enacted before February 10, when existing relief funds run out; second, the predictions of leaders that there will be no difficulty in obtaining the two-thirds majority necessary to pass the measure under the proposed procedure.

The $880,000,000 is to tide relief activities over the transition period from the dole to the $4,000,000,000 program to provide employment for 3,500,000 persons on relief. In a White House conference yesterday, the administration leadership moved to block an incipient revolt against the President's plan to have the $4,000,000,000 appropriated in a lump sum without being earmarked for specific projects.

After the conference, which was attended by Vice President Garner, Speaker Byrns, Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, and Chairman Buchanan of the house appropriations committee, it was reported that the President had indicated a willingness for congress to "take its time" on the $4,000,000,000 plan, but wished speedy action on the $880,000,000 bill.

Plans Important Change

An important change in the method of distributing money for works projects would be made if a plan now under consideration by President Roosevelt were approved.

The usual custom of the public works administration, in dealing out money to non-federal projects undertaken by states and local governments, has been to provide 70 per cent of the amount in the form of a loan and 30 per cent as an outright grant to cover part of the cost of labor and materials.

Now, Secretary Ickes discloses, the President is considering the advisability of doing away with the grants on non-federal projects in pressing his proposed $4,000,000,000 campaign of works to get the unemployed off the relief rolls.

Ickes made clear that no change in allotments already made was contemplated, but said the question of eliminating grants in the future was being studied. All of PWA's $3,700,000,000 appropriation has been spent or allotted.

LOUISIANA NEGRO SHOT IN CELL BY MOB TODAY

Franklington, La., Jan. 11 (AP)—Jerome Wilson, 30-year-old negro, convicted of the slayings of Delos C. Wood, chief deputy criminal sheriff of Washington parish, was seized by a mob of citizens early today, shot to death in his cell and his body was taken from the jail and dumped on the road three miles north of the town.

The slaying of Officer Wood occurred in a general shooting last July 22 between negroes and officers at the home of Wilson where the officers had gone to investigate a livestock inspection.

Jerome was indicted, tried for murder, convicted and sentenced to hang for the crime within ten days time and last Monday the Louisiana Supreme Court granted him a new trial.

Pre-Wedding Reception

Rome, Jan. 11 (AP)—A brilliant assemblage, representative of royalty and wealth, greeted the Infanta Beatriz, daughter of former King Alfonso of Spain, and young Prince Alessandro Torlonia today at their pre-wedding reception. The aristocracy of Spain and Italy, nobility from many other nations, members of the diplomatic corps and government officials thronged the Grand Hotel for the event. Nearly 1,000 persons, 47 of them of royal lineage, attended the reception, given by Spain's deposed monarch in celebration of the nuptials to take place Monday. Prince Torlonia, educated in Princeton University and at Pomfret School, Pomfret, Conn., is the son of the former Elsie Moore of New York and the late Don Marino Torlonia, scion of Italian nobility.

Treasury Receipts.

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP).—The position of the treasury on January 9 was: Receipts for January 9, $56,011,741.20; expenditures, $88,442,811.22; net balance, $2,506,178,206.38; customs receipts for the month, $7,759,673.55. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $1,881,794,776.57; expenditures, $2,715,246,422.04, including $1,004,923,888.69 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $1,772,551,645.47. Gold assets, $8,239,091,493.61.

NO DECISION YET IN GOLD OUTLAWING CASE

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP).—Winding up the argument stage of its consideration of the New Deal's action in outlawing gold as legal tender, the supreme court faced today the task of passing judgment on perhaps the most vital monetary issue ever to confront it.

There was no indication as to when its decision might be announced.

The government had half an hour more today in which to buttress its defense against a charge of "repudiation" made by five complainants. They contend that when congress abrogated the clause calling for the payment of billions of dollars of public and private securities in gold or its equivalent, the legislators overstepped their constitutional authority.

$25,000 Suit Against Town of Gardiner and Ulster County Settled

Agreement Reached In Suit Brought By George Finn But Amount of Settlement Was Not Announced By Counsel—Finn Chief Witness Thursday.

New York, Jan. 10 (Special)—After the third day in court, the $25,000 damage suit waged by George Finn against the Town of Gardiner and Ulster county, was settled this afternoon. The agreement was reached by opposing attorneys soon after the plaintiff had rested his case and Judge Henry Goddard had denied motions made by Arthur Ewig, counsel for Ulster county in association with Sanford H. Cohen of New York, and A. J. Cook, attorney for the town, to dismiss the complaint. The amount of the settlement was not announced by counsel. The jury, which had been excused for nearly an hour while the negotiations were in progress, was then recalled and excused.

Finn was all smiles when the terms were finally agreed upon. Both he and his attorney seemed satisfied with the arrangements.

Finn was the chief witness today as the trial was resumed. He claimed that the automobile accident which resulted in the death of his wife, Maude I. Finn, and Charles Lockhead, the driver, on May 18, 1930, was entirely the fault of Ulster county and Gardiner in failing to properly mark the road leading to the new Barlow Bridge and in failing to erect barricades across the old road, then abandoned.

His voluntary answer to a question that would have been successfully objected to by his own attorney, A. W. Teale, was likely to have been a deciding factor in the case, had the case been fought to a conclusion.

Finn was asked under cross examination by Cook if he were now living alone. The answer was "no". The next question, to which the witness blurted out an answer while his attorney was making objections, was:

"With whom are you now living?"

"With my wife," he said. His attorney looked at him in bewilderment. He then pressed the objection but Judge Goddard ruled that since an answer had already been given it might stand.

In spite of Cook's insistence that the matter was pertinent on the ground that since Finn was suing for loss of his wife's services among other things, the question of his remarriage should be brought out, Judge Goddard ruled against any

Boy Loses His Battle With Blood Disease

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Twelve-year old Stanley Walker's long fight against a rare blood disease ended in defeat today. He died in the hospital where he had undergone a series of blood transfusions since early in December.

Blood from professional donors was used first. It was in vain. A radio appeal then was made for blood from persons who had recovered from the malady with which the boy was afflicted, diagnosed as the result of a streptococcus infection. Police and health officials aided in a search for eleven persons in the city, who were known to have recovered from the same malady.

Leon Zaskevich, 20, a fur salesman, volunteered and gave a half-pint of his blood to Stanley on December 13.

Yesterday the boy grew worse and was placed in an oxygen tent.

Police Make Arrest of Three Local Men Here On Charge of Burglary

ANOTHER BURGLARY

Entrance Also Made Thursday Evening to Kingston Home Products Co. at 4 Cedar Street.

While Officer Harnen and Fallon were walking through Railroad avenue shortly after 10 o'clock Thursday night they observed that some one was in the office of the F. B. Matthews & Company plant and was going through the desks in the office. The man was armed with a flashlight. The two officers advanced closer to the building and Officer Harnen recognized the man with the flashlight.

Realizing that a burglary was being pulled off the officers separated, one going toward the rear of the building and the other watching the front. Evidently the man with the flashlight suddenly became suspicious and turning off the flashlight he darted out of the door of the building and started down the street only to be overhauled and placed under arrest.

With the arrest of the man with the flashlight the two officers continued their investigations and learned that two other young men had been seen running away from the rear of the building. As a result of their investigations the officers placed Robert Long and Thomas Long two brothers of 68 Emerick street, under arrest on charges of burglary in the third degree. The third man, whom the police allege was the man with the flashlight, was Thomas McGann of 37 Derrenbacher street.

The three men were taken to police headquarters in the city hall where they were questioned for some time.

The trio will be arraigned later in police court before Judge Culloton on charges of burglary.

Entrance to the Matthews Company plant was obtained by using a glass cutter on one of the rear windows. As far as known only some loose change was missing.

Another Burglary Reported.

Earlier in the evening entrance was obtained to the Kingston Home Products Company place at 4 Cedar street where entrance was gained by cutting a glass in the rear door. Here also a checkup showed that apparently only some loose change found in a desk had been taken.

Held For Grand Jury

Thomas McCann, 28, of 37 Derrenbacher street, and two brothers, Robert Long, Jr., and Thomas Long of 68 Emerick street, arrested Thursday evening by Officers Harnen and Fallon on a charge of burglary in the third degree in breaking into the office of the F. B. Matthews Company on Railroad avenue, waived examination when arraigned today before Judge Culloton in police court, and were held to await the action of the grand jury. Bail was to be fixed in county court. Robert Long is 32 years old and his brother 24 years of age.

BUDDY OF BAD MEN HELD IN AX-SLAYING TODAY

Anadarko, Okla., Jan. 11 (AP)—William "Uncle Billy" Royce, who boasted of his association with early day outlaws, was held with two other persons today in the ax-slaying of Mrs. Leta Ethel Royce, whom the 74-year-old man married two months ago.

Haskell B. Pugh, assistant Caddo county attorney, said the trio, Royce, his former wife, Mrs. Carrie Royce, and her son-in-law, Reed Norris, 27, would be charged jointly with first degree murder.

The ax-hacked body of the 45-year-old bride, mother of seven children by a previous marriage, was found yesterday in a shallow grave in a henhouse on the Royce farm which is located in the center of the cement oil pool.

Royce, who was arrested after officers found a blood stained ax on the farm, was reported by Deputy Sheriff C. C. Ruff to have confessed participation in the slaying, and to have implicated the others.

Political Fight Looms Between G.O.P.-Lehman On Unemployment Plans

Minority Party Drafting Program of Relief Based on Huge Public Works Program for State and Chides Lehman.

GOVERNOR SAYS WAIT

Chief Executive Would Base His Program on Federal Plans and Waits Action of Government.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP).—Threats of a bitter political fight over unemployment relief were heard today as Governor Herbert H. Lehman made it clear that he intends to present a program of his own as soon as he learns what the federal program is.

The governor's announcement came less than 24 hours after Republican legislative leaders disclosed they were drafting a plan to take care of the state's thousands of jobless.

Answering the charge of the G. O. P. that he has failed to present a definite plan for unemployment relief, Governor Lehman questioned the soundness of drafting a program for the state before the federal plans are made known.

"Whatever the federal government does," he said, "will govern to a large extent what the state and the localities will have to do. I think it would be pre-mature to draft our plans until we hear from Washington."

He said he also wanted to wait for recommendations from the committee which he appointed last summer to study the question of unemployment relief.

Permanent Basis

The Republicans plan to make unemployment relief the nucleus of their legislative program. They will propose that a large part of the relief work be handled through an extensive public works program. They also favor placing the state's emergency relief agency on a permanent basis as a division of the social welfare department.

Governor Lehman expressed the hope that the problem could be handled in a non-political way as it has been handled in the past. He said he would give all Republican proposals "careful consideration" and would ask both Republican and Democratic legislative leaders to discuss the question with him.

It is the Republican strategy, however, to present their program first so they will be in a position to claim credit if the governor incorporates their proposals in his legislation.

The legislators returned to their homes for the week-end. The Republicans are scheduled to have part of their program completed by Monday night and will probably introduce several of their major bills Tuesday.

Seven Advanced

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—Seven of Governor Herbert H. Lehman's program bills today were advanced to the order of final passage in the Assembly without opposition.

The bills already have been approved by the Senate.

The measures include county government reform, four-year term for governor, extension of the state's mortgage moratorium, and creation of bi-partisan boards of election in those counties which do not have them now.

FOR THEIR BEARDS.

Famous Smith Brothers, Inc., Enjoy Winning Law Suit.

Norwich, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Schultz of Mount Upton, hotel owners, today are losers in a $20,000 damage actions against the Smith Brothers, Inc., cough drop makers.

A jury decided yesterday that they had no cause for their suit. Mr. and Mrs. Schultz charged that a bottle of cough syrup bought at a local drug store contained 46 percent nicotine. The company proved that nicotine was not used in the preparation.

"Marrying Justice" Is Happy.

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—Although he isn't living with his "perfect bride," Samuel Harrison, Evanston's 82-year-old "Marrying Justice" still has 1,500 reasons for being happy. The 1,500 reasons are the marriage ceremonies he has performed for other people he said last night when he admitted that the former Mrs. Emma J. Christensen, whom he married after advertising for a "perfect bride" is no longer living with him. "Yes, it is true," he said. "Emma is on a honeymoon all by herself." But, he added, he still gets a measure of happiness when he recalls the 1,500 couples he has married. Why the couple separated was not disclosed.

Will Not Appear.

Philadelphia, Jan. 11 (AP)—Magistrate Howard C. Hutchison of suburban Radnor has announced that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the president, will not have to appear to answer charges that grew out of an automobile accident there early New Year's day. Charges of assault and battery by automobile, Harbison said yesterday, have been dropped after an insurance company settled with Edward Newman, of Radnor, who was slightly hurt in a collision between his car and the one driven by the president's son. The hearing had been scheduled for next Tuesday.

Hauptmann's Handwriting Is Same as That In Various Ransom Notes Says Expert

Albert S. Osborn, Sr., "Examiner of Questioned Documents" and State's Witness Claims Ransom Notes Were by Hauptmann.

STRONG LINK

State Contends Testimony is One of Strongest Links in Chain of Evidence.

By WILLIAM A. KINNEY

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 11 (AP).—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's handwriting today was identified by a state expert as that on all of the kidnap ransom notes received by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh following the theft of his 20-months-old baby.

The identification was made by Albert S. Osborn, Sr., who called himself an "examiner of questioned documents."

He gave the testimony in a loud voice and positive manner.

The identification of the handwriting has been called by the prosecutors one of their strongest links in the chain of evidence through which they hope to send Hauptmann to the electric chair for the murder of the baby.

First Note.

The first ransom note was on the window sill of the Lindbergh nursery, and was left when the baby was taken. The state considers this direct evidence that Hauptmann was the man who climbed up a ladder, entered a window and grabbed the baby.

The baby, the state has charged, was killed as the ladder broke with it and the kidnapper on the way down.

Osborn, shown handwriting specimens of Hauptmann's which were introduced yesterday, stated:

"My opinion is that the ransom notes were all written by the writer of the various papers signed, 'Richard Hauptmann.'"

He examined all 14 of the ransom notes, one by one, and said of each that it was written by Hauptmann. This included the note which was found in the nursery near the empty crib.

He repeated his opinion.

"The ransom notes were all written by the writer of these various proved writings."

Symbols Outstanding Today

Flemington, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Lindbergh kidnaping ransom notes with their cryptic symbol signature preempted attention today at the murder trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the prosecution started out to prove the notes came from the pen of the alien ex-convict defendant.

Although the trial session promised to be replete with the technical testimony of handwriting experts, the court was well filled three quarters of an hour before convening time, and as 10 o'clock approached deputy sheriffs had difficulty in keeping spectators out of the benches reserved for state witnesses.

For the first time this week fair weather had come to Flemington and the early sunlight slanted through the tall windows into the courtroom.

Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, as usual, arrived at the courthouse early and went directly to his chambers, just to the right of the large rack which contains the charts and maps of the Lindbergh estate.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz came jauntily into court with a smile and went directly to the prosecution table.

Special Agent Called.

Wilentz said that to accommodate Frank Wilson, special agent of the U. S. Department of Internal Revenue, who has to return to Washington, the state would interrupt the presentation of its hand writing case long enough to allow Wilson to testify.

The preparation of the ransom money will be the subject of the special agent's evidence.

Inspector John J. Lyons, of the New York city police department who is to follow Wilson, will bring back the testimony to the handwriting phase of the case.

Hauptmann, his wrists firmly held by his guards, was led into court ten minutes before Justice Trenchard took the bench.

The Bronx carpenter was grave preoccupied, but he did not seem a pale as he did yesterday.

Court Crowded.

The court was comfortable crowded now, and both the state and prosecution staffs were ready at their tables. A court attendant set up a large, unpainted wooden easel in back of the witness stand, apparently for the handwriting charts.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state police head, arrived promptly at 10 o'clock.

When they came in, neither looked in the direction of Hauptmann who was chatting in grave earnestness with Mrs. Hauptmann.

Court convened at 10:02.

Albert Osborn, Sr., head of the state's handwriting experts, entered

Patrolmen Expect Huge Crowd at Ball

Tonight with thunder sticks laid temporarily at rest, clothed in the familar blue with trousers carrying a knife-like crease, brass buttons highly polished, members of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association will be present en masse at the Municipal Auditorium as host to the good folk of this city, the occasion being the annual Police Ball, the first time this event has taken place since 1929. Funds derived from this occasion will be placed in the patrolmen's treasury to aid in defraying expenses of the meeting of the New York State Police Conference here next fall.

Doors of the auditorium will be open at 7 o'clock, and so many tickets have been disposed of that the committee on tickets has warned all who will attend to be on hand early if they would obtain choice seats for the entertainment, which is expected to rival and perhaps surpass anything of its kind which has been presented at a similar occasion here in the past.

Booths of all sorts will be ready to quench the thirst or satisfy the smoker, and flowers will be distributed. All of the regular accessories of a ball have been arranged it was said.

Following the entertainment two orchestras, under the direction of Paul Zucca and Harry Malsenhelder, will vie for favor as the evening concludes with dancing.

The patron list of the patrolmen is large, so many persons prominent in the affairs of the city are expected to be on hand. Prominent officials of police circles in nearby places and several state officers have signified their intention of joining with the local patrolmen in this evening's program.

Walter Kernen Was Found Dead in Bed

Walter Kernen, an unemployed boat captain who was known to his friends as "Sarge", was found dead in bed this morning at the home of Fred Robinson, 45 Hasbrouck avenue. The police department was notified of his death and got in touch with Coroner Lasher of Saugerties. The coroner turned the body over to Undertaker Henry Brink who removed it to his Funeral Home, 442 Broadway. Funeral arrangements will be announced later. Mr. Kernen has been ill for some time.

Thursday the police department received a telephone message from a neighbor that Kernen was seriously ill, and the police notified the EHP who sent one of the relief nurses to the house to look after him. Kernen evidently died during the night and the discovery was made about 6:30 o'clock this morning.

In County Granges

Stone Ridge.

Stone Ridge Grange, No. 931, held its first meeting of the year, Monday evening, January 7. At this time committees were appointed for the coming year.

Service and hospitality committee, Mrs. Emma Beatty, Miss Elizabeth Hess, Mrs. Cornelius Hardenburgh, Mrs. Luther Garrison, Mrs. Irving Schoonmaker, Frank Bishop, Oliver Bogart and Cornelius Hardenburgh.

Music, Mrs. Robert Service.

Publicity, Mrs. Stanley Roosa.

Finance, Leroy Styles, Ross Osterhoudt, Mrs. Ward Hutchings.

Recreational, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Smith, Mrs. Elsa Hart.

The committee in charge of the New Year's eve dance reported a very large attendance and presented the sum of $36 to the treasurer as a result of their efforts.

An attendance contest between the giants and dwarfs in creating a little excitement. The score for the first inning is giants 20, dwarfs 16.

A program for the new year was presented. A surprise feature was the debut of a Grange quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Smith, Ganse Beach and Mrs. Elsa Hart. They sang "The Voice in the Village Choir" and "Moonlight and Roses." The lecturer read "The Land of Beginning Again." The secretary gave a very detailed review of important events of Stone Ridge Grange of 1934. The Master, Mrs. Oscar Hornbeck spoke briefly on "Our Aims for 1935."

Everyone had a share in the program when calendar stunts were presented. January shoveled snow. February's skaters were very realistic. April fooled the audience with its lusty chorus. The summer months demonstrated all the fine points of gardening. September sang, "School Days." October, with its witch on a broomstick, cats and ghost, was quite spooky. The November group showed how to prepare the turkey from chopping block to oven. Ward Hutchins and Ross Osterhoudt gave a brief review of the domestic and foreign news events of 1934. The meeting closed with the hearty singing of "It's a Good Thing to be a Granger."

The next Grange meeting will be on Monday, January 21. A program with "Homes" as its theme, will be presented.

The Grange is busy making plans for a community Frolic to be held on Friday, January 25. A radio program broadcasting from station "F-U-N," will be presented by some of the Grange celebrities. The recreational committee will be in charge of games and stunts. The service and hospitality committee will have refreshments for sale. More detailed announcements will appear at a later date.

Ulster Grange Card Party

Ulster Grange, 969, will hold a card party in the Odd Fellows' Hall, Ulster Park, on the evening of January 16. There will be prizes and refreshments. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The Cardigan Jacket

The cardigan jacket originated from a wool underjacket, knitted by the English Lord Cardigan's wife, for the purpose of keeping her lord and master warm in England's penetrating weather.

Fairbanks-Pickford Marriage Dissolved By Judge Lindsey

Los Angeles, Jan. 11 (AP)—Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford were a world apart today, their marriage of 14 years dissolved.

The swashbuckling screen hero, whose desire to travel was one of the reasons his actress-wife gave in asking the divorce which she obtained here yesterday, was in St. Moritz, Switzerland.

He was there when Miss Pickford filed suit in December a year ago. Also there on both occasions was Lady Ashley of the English stage, whose husband recently divorced her, naming the actor as corespondent. Each has declined to say whether they would marry again.

From London, where Buddy Rogers, former orchestra leader, is making a motion picture, came reports of a possible romance between him and Miss Pickford. They appeared together in Hollywood in the picture, "My Best Girl", and the film colony knew them as good friends.

Fairbanks did not contest his wife's suit, which was called for hearing without prior court announcement. Superior Judge Ben B. Lindsey, former juvenile and domestic relations jurist of Denver, disposed of the case in three minutes.

Appearing in a gray dress, gray fur coat, black pumps and a small gray hat with a red feather perched jauntily on the crown, "America's Sweetheart" kept her emotions under control until Judge Lindsey, looking up over his spectacles, said clearly:

"Gentlemen, I have read the complaint and a decree will be granted."

Mary gave a little start, and then, as she left the courtroom flanked by her attorney, Loyd Wright, and her public relations director, her eyes filled and she choked as she attempted to answer questions of newspapermen.

The marriage, which Hollywood for a long time had regarded as ideal, began with a secret ceremony here on March 28, 1920. Miss Pickford had just obtained a Nevada divorce from Owen Moore, of the screen. A year before Fairbanks and Ann Beth Sully had been divorced.

Pickfair, the Beverly Hills mansion where the wealthiest of film couples entertained many prominent persons, among them Prince George of England and Prince William of Sweden, becomes the property of Miss Pickford. They have disposed of their holdings in the United Artists Studio Corporation and their only joint interest is understood to be in the acreage on which the studio is located.

Rogers Denies Reports

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—Charles (Buddy) Rogers, American film actor, said today that reports he would marry Mary Pickford now that she has obtained her divorce from Douglas Fairbanks were "all news to me".

Rogers, who is making a film in Elstree, North London, said he had not previously been aware that Miss Pickford had been granted her decree.

"That's fine", he said. "I'm glad things are straightened out for her now. She's a wonderful girl and we are great friends, but there's nothing serious between us."

"Isle of Little Dogs"

On the Seine about five miles from the heart of Paris is the "Isle of Little Dogs," where thoughtful Parisians have buried, in tree-lined streets that are named after noted personages who loved animals, more than 25,000 "friends of man." One street is known as the "Cradle of Cats." A bronze tablet marking the resting place of a "very brave girl" further gives the details of the feline's bravery in the trenches. Sensitive antennae-like whiskers, catching the scent of approaching gas, caused her to meow loudly, awakening the pollus in time to save themselves. She was a brave girl.

Products Taken From Whales

Whale and sperm oil, guano used for fertilizer, baleen, whalebone, bone meal, frozen whale meat for dog food, and a small quantity of ambergris are commercial products derived from the whale.

TRUSS EXPERT COMING

Elmer Doll, personal representative of Medical Hall Truss Fitting Institute, of Newburgh, N. Y., will be at Hotel Stuyvesant on Saturday, Jan. 12, 1935.

Every ruptured man, woman, and child should take advantage of this opportunity to be examined.

The Medical Hall method for the treatment of rupture is one of the most successful known. It has the endorsement of hundreds of doctors and thousands of satisfied patients.

You can now have a Fit-Form Truss fitted to you, absolutely no charge unless you are satisfied after having the truss applied and adjusted and you see how perfectly and comfortably it holds. Can be worn with positive comfort, any degree of pressure required, no disagreeable cutting under-straps. This truss is based on the principle of a lift—not a tight bind.

Do not wear an ill-fitting, chafing, uncomfortable truss, when you can be held properly with comfort—and be free from worry.

It will cost you nothing to learn all about our truss and find out the wonderful opportunity for help it offers your case.

Just ask the Hotel Clerk at the desk to direct you to Mr. Doll, truss representative of Medical Hall and he will give you the benefit of his experience.

Saturday, January 12, 1935. Hours: 10 A. M. to 12 N., 2 to 5 P.M. 7 to 9 P. M.

Do not miss this opportunity to see this expert on rupture.—Adv.

Dr. Textor Spoke Of Summer in Russia

The auditorium of the Kingston Y. W. C. A. was completely filled on Thursday afternoon by women who had gathered to hear Dr. Lucy E. Textor speak on "Russia," in which country she spent last summer and where she has spent many other summers. Dr. Textor was presented to the audience by Mrs. Ward Brigham, president of the Young Married Women's Club.

Since she was addressing a club of young married women, Dr. Textor said she would speak particularly of the home in Russia today. Dr. Textor's intimate accounts of her experiences in Russia, together with the questions asked by members of the audience, on her suggestion, added to the vivid impressions of conditions in Russia. Dr. Textor said that the Russian people have a great liking for Americans.

The first topic considered by the speaker was that of marriage. Dr. Textor explained the very simple process of marriage there where the man and woman go to the marriage bureau, signing their names as man and wife. If after three months' trial, they are not satisfied they return to the bureau and have the marriage dissolved and this may be done by either the man or woman. The supreme advantage of this system was said to be that all marriages were open and above board with nothing secret about them. Again if a man and woman have a child, that is recognized as making them man and wife for there are no illegitimate children in Russia. Bigamy is a serious offense in Russia. But there are unusual drawbacks to divorces in Russia such as the lack of a room to live in if separated. According to the theory and practice of the government each family is entitled to one room to live in. If, therefore the man and wife are divorced, it may be impossible to find a room for one or the other of them. Dr. Textor told interestingly of devices to gain a bit of room or space in which to live. Though they live in such discomfort the rents are exceedingly low.

The next important factor of home keeping to be described was that of food. Today Russia has gone in for "public feeding." Because the gathering of members of the family about one table for meals might create an intimacy and loyalty that could jeopardize the state, adults have one meal a day, the most important meal, too, in the place where they work, the factory dining room. The food is excellent there and not expensive. But the best food is for the members of the Russia's Secret Service or detective force, the OGPU, she said. While in Moscow, Dr. Textor saw two enormous tenement houses that were very attractive, and looking down into the basement windows, took note of the excellence of the food being prepared there. It was for the families of the OGPU and Dr. Textor even succeeded in getting into one of the buildings where she found that living conditions for these Russians are very great indeed.

When Dr. Textor was last in Russia, food cards were in order, but today they are being done away with. While there was the discomfort of waiting in long lines to have bread cards presented, still the bread was very cheap. Now, having to buy the bread from other sources than the government, the bread costs the people much more, and the loaves are small.

There is now a new money procedure being carried on by the government and that is the giving of gold certificates for treasures which the people may have hoarded. These certificates may be used as money to buy food and other articles, and in the meantime, the people in getting rid of all treasures will soon be reduced to one rank of possessions. The government will have secured the treasures and these will be and are being sold to foreigners and visitors for considerable sums of money which goes into the coffers of the government to buy machinery.

Coming to the subject of clothing, Dr. Textor found Russian folk, especially in Moscow much better if not modernly dressed. It has been the policy of the government for some time to foster the poorest and most undesirable looking clothing to be worn by all. Now the people are being urged to get out the finery and better clothes that they may have hidden away. The result is that people, especially the women are appearing on the streets dressed in real elegance sometimes, but rather inappropriately, as, for instance, going to market in a real thread lace dress. In any event one now sees well dressed people in Moscow.

As for the medical attention to be secured, the state employs all of the doctors and, if one is so fortunate as to live near such a physician, he or she may, as a private patient, secure medical attention as soon as needed; if not one may wait a considerable time. But the public clinics are very good indeed and are to be found almost everywhere. They are a feather in the cap of the government, for medical attention received there costs little, and is excellent.

The one privileged class in Russia is that of the children, for the government considers if they can "sit tight" until the 100,000,000 children grow up they will have at least 50 or 60 million people who will never have known any government except that under which they were so kindly and generously treated, thus doing away almost entirely with treason.

Little children are well cared for in free nurseries and schools. Where in recent years the children ran the schools, in that there was no discipline now there is required of the children some recognition of the authority of the teachers. Also they are now being taught their three "Rs" as well as knowledge about "things". When not in school they play in the parks and have a delightful time. The older children are now visiting every sort of institution—industrial, recreational, educational, even military—and passing judgment as to how they shall be run. They are indeed the one privileged class in all Russia.

There is recreation for all if there is time to enjoy it, for everybody works long hours in Russia except when on vacation. There are theatres, of course. When the movies were silent, they were the best one could find but the "talkies" are not so good.

In the summer time, the parents have their vacations in the south of Russia where formerly the rich enjoyed the pine forests, the many baths and other luxuries. There and along the Black Sea they enjoy the most perfect kind of liberty and are cared for well, enjoying for the time being absolute liberty, but that is the only liberty that the Russian people have in any way or sense. In this matter of summer vacations, again the children are the best cared for, since the government recognizes them as their props for the future.

While the entire population of Russia may be on a higher level of living all liberty is gone. And even so, food in many places is scarce.

Dr. Textor explained the complicated problem of the value and purchasing power of the ruble, which could scarcely be well done by any but one who has lived in Russia.

The speaker also told of the gradual change from farming by individuals to that of the government owned and operated land with the community centers in which the farming peasants now live. Nor can a Russian person get out of Russia.

Summed up the goal of Russia today, the only thing considered important, is a country without rich men, work for all, food for all, education for all; this is the real end of the Bolshevik Government, the speaker said. With liberty gone, the people are beginning to wonder if it is all worth while. To those present, interested in Russia of today, Dr. Textor recommended the book, "The Russian Iron Age," by Chamberlain.

In answer to the question, "Is religion dead in Russia," Dr. Textor said "not quite," and she was sure that the sense of spiritual values would never be entirely lost in the Russian people. Only the future can tell what the outcome will be. There may be something better in Russia as a whole than we now see, some idea that may work out for the betterment of the whole world in the Russian effort to help all people to better living of some sort.

The next lecture in this course will be given by Mrs. Paula Fuller Smith, on "The Art of Illustrating," at the Y. W. C. A. on February 14.

Use of Material in Meteors

The bureau of mines says undoubtedly in the early ages the meteoric irons found in meteors which had struck the earth were used for their weight for weapons and for making knives and other tools. The National museum has on exhibition a knife blade forged from a piece of a meteor to show the possibility of such work.

REACTIONARY FUNERAL

That was a strange funeral held in Guthrie Center, Ia., on the last day of the old year. The hearse was a Victorian specimen discovered somewhere a few years ago by the deceased, for his wife's funeral, and engaged in advance for himself. Behind it rattled and squeaked an absurd collection of horse-drawn carriages and buggies, brought from old barns once more to the light of day. John Motz, if his spirit hovered over that procession, was satisfied. It was exactly the kind of funeral he wanted.

Motz, an old merchant, hated motor cars implacably. From their first appearance to his own death, he refused to ride in them. His hatred grew as he saw them more and more "defiling the highways." He grew so bitter about them that sometimes in crossing a road or street he would deliberately stand in their way and defy the drivers to run over him. Finally one of them did.

Why did John Motz hate automobiles? Perhaps because he was a good hater and just happened to get started on that line. Prejudices usually grow with age and habit. A fellow becomes committed to them, his thoughts and emotions run more and more in the same grooves, and he comes to feel a sense of righteousness in making a thorough job of it. John's mistake was in turning thumbs down on autos in the first place. If he had started riding and driving, he would doubtless have liked it, like other folks. Instead of becoming a hater, he might have developed enthusiasm for something positive and progressive, and lived a larger and pleasanter life.

YEAR OF ECLIPSES

Professional sky-gazers announce that 1935 is to present the greatest array of eclipses witnessed on the earth in 130 years. The sun and the moon together will offer seven eclipses, the largest number possible in a single year. The moon will pass between the sun and the earth five times. Twice, the moon will be in the earth's shadow. Only two of these eclipses will be visible in the United States, a partial eclipse of the sun in February and a total eclipse of the moon in July.

The general public may feel a little gypped. Scientists, if they wish to, may go to the places where the show is staged. Historians ought to be thumbing back through their tomes to find out whether there were any special happenings back in 1255 when there were five solar eclipses in one year, or in 1805 when there were several. Such phenomena used to be considered portents of one sort or another. We are more matter-of-fact about them today.

AMERICAN FREEDOMS

In November the Austrian government ordered all newspapers to obtain from the police licenses to publish. Since then 100 periodicals of various kinds have been refused the licenses. It is a neat gag on too revealing news or the free expression of opinion. Freedom of the press is pretty dead in Austria, and the surviving newspapers are monotonous and uninteresting.

These things are coming to be an old story, but they can hardly be retold too frequently in the United States. Our own freedom of speech and freedom of press are blessings we need daily to be conscious of and thankful for. Freedom of assembly has not been faring so well lately, but is equally precious to a liberty-loving people.

CHIEF SKOOKUM

Most of the old wooden Indians that once stood in front of cigar stores now repose in public museums or private collections of antiques. One, Chief Skookum or Squishin, is still standing where he has stood for 47 years, on a street corner in Tacoma, Wash., in front of a cigar store.

This landmark, familiar to Tacomans and noted by many visitors, is 52 years old this month. After five years in Montana the Chief took up his apparently permanent stand on Puget Sound. In those days such an Indian, elegantly carved and painted, sold for $450. Chief Skookum is now worth $1,000, perhaps more, but he is not for sale. He is too valuable to his owner as a survivor of a vanished period and custom. And he has a tremendous sentimental value to the community. We don't know what Tacomans are doing about the Chief's anniversary, but it ought to be something very special.

FINGERPRINTED TWINS

A grandfather in San Jose, Calif., has taken his twin grandsons, age 5 years, to the local police station and had their fingerprints recorded. The youngsters look so much alike that many confusing problems have arisen. Hereafter it won't be possible to have any serious mix-ups of identity.

Closely as they resemble each other in every other way, these little fellows have fingerprints in two entirely different classifications. From now on they ought to carry identifying cards for the benefit of teachers, friends and relatives. Thumb prints will probably have to accompany signatures on school papers and tests as they grow older. For the present, the parents—not to mention grandfather—will find it easier to detect the young criminal who breaks a dish or opens a jam jar without permission.

That Body of Yours

BY

James W. Barton, M. D.

THE ALKALINE RESERVE

As youngsters at home whether we had a stomach ache from eating too much, or didn't want to eat at all, or had a "cold in the head", the remedy was all the same—a dose of castor oil and a half teaspoonful of baking soda, two or three times a day. My mother gave us the baking soda to "sweeten the stomach and intestine."

It is therefore interesting today to see how physicians everywhere are recognizing the fact that when the blood and tissues are less alkaline than they should be, baking soda—sodium bicarbonate — and other alkalies should be the first thought in the treatment.

Notwithstanding the body's ability to withstand all sorts of carelessness on our part, there is no question but that even a slight shift away from the alkaline to the acid condition causes the body to be attacked by organisms which are always in the body but seem to do no harm as long as the blood and tissues are at the right alkaline point.

The commonest ailment for which soda or other alkali is now given is the common cold.

I have spoken before about the fight research workers everywhere are making to prevent the common cold as it causes more absence from employment than any other single ailment.

Further, it is now agreed that the common cold is often the first cause of more serious ailments—influenza, bronchitis, and pneumonia. And as you know, every attack of bronchitis or pneumonia renders the body more liable to future attacks.

To prevent an acid condition of the body enough of the alkaline foods should be eaten daily. These foods keep up the "alkaline reserve" and so help to some extent to ward off infection.

Most of us have to eat some acid foods daily—eggs, meat, bread, cereals—to maintain and repair the body structure. To maintain the alkaline reserve we must eat some fruit and vegetables every day.

Thus by simple remembering to eat fruit and vegetables, there will be no need for baking soda or other alkali.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO

Jan. 11, 1915—Mrs. Calvin Winne died at her home on Main street.

John R. Monroe resigned as president of Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor.

Jan. 11, 1925—A church canvass to ascertain the religious affiliation, if any, of the residents of Kingston, was held when 200 men canvassed the city under the direction of Secretary Louis S. Coe of the Chamber of Commerce.

The cold wave that gripped the city for past few days succeeding the January thaw, was followed by snow storm, several inches falling here.

The first of a series of radio concert services broadcast from the local radio station WDBZ in the city hall.

Death of John C. Snyder of Gage street.

LEIBHARDT

Leibhardt, Jan. 10—Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Quick called on Mrs. Grant Schoonmaker and Mrs. Hilda Clark of Mechanicsville Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Jacob Gray and sons, and Miss Mabel Krom returned home Thursday after spending a short time with relatives and friends in New York city.

Mrs. J. Hornbeck entertained as dinner guests at her home Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hoff and daughter, Rosemary, of Napanoch, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keator of Pataukunk and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hornbeck and Homer Hornbeck of this place.

William Booth of Pataukunk made a call in this vicinity Monday.

Miss Edna Hornbeck has returned home after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Harold Van Etten, and family of Cherrytown.

Vernon Barnhardt, who has been confined to his home with a severe cold, is now able to be around again.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Quick were pleasant callers of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lounsberry of Cherrytown Sunday afternoon.

Miss Kathryn Brown, who spent the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brown, left Sunday for Greenwich, Conn., where she will resume her duties at the Greenwich Hospital.

Mrs. Russell Van Etten of Napanoch, spent Sunday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Lawrence. Friends are glad to know Leslie Lawrence is improving after being confined to him home for some time.

Montrena Dewitt of Woodstock spent the week-end with his father, Henry S. Dewitt, at "Pine Grove Camp."

Mrs. Phoebe Krom is spending the winter months with Mr. and Mrs. James Every of West Hurley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hornbeck were Sunday evening callers of her mother, Mrs. Mary J. Gorseline, of Tabasco.

OLIVE BRIDGE

Olive Bridge, Jan. 10—H. R. Wilson of St. Louis is spending several weeks with Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Ida Steen.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Steen of Allgerville entertained Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Wilson of St. Louis, Mo., over the week-end.

John Kelder is getting out Mrs. K. G. Boice's and Mrs. Steen's winter supply of wood.

Chapter 45

RACE'S END

WITH both hands gripping the tiller, Jerry drove straight for the gap. A deluge of surf swept over us, half filling the well, but shaking herself like a drenched dog, the stout little ship struggled gallantly on.

Twice she bumped heavily, pitching me against the rail. Then another blinding torrent poured in over our bows, and with a final convulsive shudder we slithered forward into deep water.

"They've found it—look at 'em!"

Jerry's voice rang out clear above the roar of the breakers, and opening my eyes I stared back over the dripping counter. I was just in time to witness the end.

Fifty yards behind us, in the very center of the fairway, the big cutter was slewing drunkenly round. I saw Orloff spring to his feet, and at the same instant the heavy boom swung over with a crash.

It caught him full on the side of the head, knocking him backwards into the sea. Then a huge wave broke against the stranded vessel, burying her from my sight beneath a cloud of spray.

I stared back over the dripping counter.

It was Jerry who was the first to speak.

"Which of the swine was it, Nick?" he asked. "Not by any chance your pal Peter?"

I spat out a large mouthful of the North Sea.

"I'm afraid so," I replied. "It's very annoying, because there were quite a lot of things I wanted to say to him."

"DON'T get up, Nick darling. I'll light it for you."

Molly struck a match and held it to the cigaret which I had just placed between my lips.

"What did the doctor think about you this morning?" she asked.

"He was most encouraging. Said that I'd mended up in great style, and that as far as he could see the shoulder would be as good as ever." I settled myself back gingerly against the cushions. "I'll have these bandages off in another week," I added, "and then we can get married."

Molly gave a little contented laugh. "Better say a fortnight. You might hurt it again if you started hugging me too soon."

"All the best games," I objected, "have a certain element of danger. It's supposed to add to their attraction."

The door opened and Dawson advanced towards the sofa, carrying a tray.

"Your beef tea, sir."

I eyed him with some disfavor. "I'm sick of beef tea," I said. "Couldn't I have something else just for a change?"

"Not until lunch time, sir. The doctor was particularly firm on that point."

Molly patted my arm. "Be a good boy and drink it up, Nick. Jerry and Mr. Cresswell will be here in a few minutes, and they're sure to have some news for us."

"I hope so," I said, taking a reluctant sip. "I don't know exactly what the Home Office are playing at, but it's quite time they got a move on of some sort."

"They've been horribly slow," agreed Molly. "All the same, things are bound to come right in the long run. I expect they can't quite make up their minds what to do about Mrs. Gowland."

"How is she?" I asked. "You went to see her last night, didn't you?"

Molly nodded. "She's still at the same house in charge of that policewoman. They've been quite nice and all that sort of thing, but even now, she doesn't know whether they're going to prosecute her.

"I wish they'd settle it one way or the other. I've taken a couple of furnished rooms for her at Bournemouth under another name, and if they'll only let her out she can go down there and get well. After that I mean to give her some money and send her to New Zealand. She's got an unmarried brother out there, who's devoted to her. She's going to live on his farm and look after him."

"YOU'RE a brick, Molly," I said, stroking her hair. "I wish all beautiful women were as kind as you are."

She leaned over and kissed me. "Don't be so foolish, Nick. There's nothing kind about helping Mrs. Gowland—why, I just feel I can't do too much for her. If she hadn't told us the truth, we'd never have found the formula."

"Talking of that," I said, "I wonder when we shall hear from Avon. He's had it for over a week now."

"Oh, I'm not worrying. Father never made mistakes, and besides, according to Mr. Cresswell, Sir William was absolutely convinced the moment he read it. They must test the thing, of course, and that's bound to take a little time."

"Well, I wish they'd hurry up," I said. "If it's all correct I shall have to buy some striped trousers and a morning coat. One can't marry a millionairess in a lounge suit."

There was a bang outside, followed by voices in the hall, and the next moment Jerry and Mr. Cresswell appeared in the doorway.

"I said they'd have some good news!" Molly jumped up and darted towards them. "Oh, do tell us what it is. I can see I'm right from your faces."

Jerry caught her two hands, and drawing her towards him, kissed her gently but firmly on the tip of the nose.

"Keep cool, my child," he said: "this Celtic impulsiveness is out of place in a sickroom." He turned to Mr. Cresswell. "What about it?" he inquired. "Shall I spill the glad tidings, or will they come more impressively from you?"

The lawyer smiled. "Go ahead with your report, Sir Jerrold. I am convinced that you will do full justice to it."

"Well, it's real dyed-in-the-wool hush-hush stuff," Jerry seated himself on the foot of the sofa. "You understand that, of course. When we got to Whitehall we were shown straight into old Beckenham's private sanctum.

"The Assistant Commissioner was there too, and some other bloke, who, I gather, is a bit of a noise at the F.O. Beckenham did most of the talking.

"He began by explaining that the reason he'd sent for us was because certain things had happened that both the police and the Government were particularly anxious to keep out of the newspapers."

Bonus.

Washington, Jan. 10.—How to handle a bonus march is one of the most important hidden questions of government. It has been since Mr. Hoover tried to ease the boys out of Washington three years ago with a torch and got slightly scorched himself. Through Mr. Hoover's experience, Mr. Roosevelt found it was no good that way, but he only toyed with the problem when he segregated the bonusites at forts outside town last year where they could be watched.

A more definite answer to it has been found in what has been going on under cover here during the last few months.

The truth is there has been an unorganized bonus march on Washington for several months. An official authority estimates that veterans have been drifting in here at a rate of 150 to 200 a month for the past year. Recently the influx began to expand. The apparent reason was that an unimportant left wing veterans' group issued a call for a march January 24.

Exit.

The government has said nothing about the matter and will say nothing, but the problem of handling those people has worried everyone. The transient relief agencies were overflowing and the CCC rolls were filled.

Finally the Hopkins outfit (FERA) hit on a solution by setting up new work camps on the Florida Keys, about fifty miles south of Key West, and at two points in South Carolina, King Tree and North Charleston. It may be denied, but there are good reasons for believing 1,051 veterans have been shipped from here to these three camps in five recent consignments. The next trainload of about 350 is supposed to leave in January. Most of the incoming ex-service men jumped at the chance to go. They have agreed to stay at these camps for three months, are given $30 a month, and board and lodging, which is something of a bonus in itself.

Scooted.

The reason the government has been so quiet about it is that it does not want all the veterans in the country tumbling down on Washington. There is not much money left to continue Mr. Hopkins' scooter slide system of disposing of the bonus army as it arrives.

But neither is there much reason to carry on the ingenious program any longer. Most of those who might come here January 24 and frighten Congress have already come and gone. Today they are out in the Atlantic Ocean, building a causeway, spruicing up the forests around King Tree or working in the navy yard at Charleston, far, far away. They cannot come back until the bonus issue is voted on and disposed of.

And yet some people say these New Dealers are dumb.

Radicalism.

All the regular veterans' outfits here are against the proposed march, including the American Legion and the VFW. They realize a march would just about ruin the bonus cause. It would give the opposition just the excuse needed to stamp out the movement.

The left wingers are led by one Harold Hickerson, who calls his outfit the rank and file committee. Their opponents say they are radicals and the title of the committee is certainly auburn if nothing else. Government investigators say they have learned that the response to the marching calls has been disappointing. Possibly Mr. Hickerson mis-addressed his invitations. He should have sent them down south.

Deferred Debts.

Shy Prof. Tugwell was at a tea party not long ago with a group of eminent college authorities, most of whom have resisted the temptation to join the brain trust. Said one of the group to Tugwell:

"Rex, you know what your New Deal reminds me of more than anything else? A sign I saw in front of a store the other day inviting me to come in and buy all I wanted and pay for it March 15."

Trouble?

An impartial and competent financial authority with connections in both Russia and Germany says these disquieting stories you have been reading from Moscow and Berlin lately have deep and serious roots. If his data are correct, the Reds have been required to clean house with a meat-axe in order to stop a full-fledged revolt, and the danger is not yet past.

The secret undercover opposition to Hitler is being thoroughly organized and Der Furore may have to hold another Roman holiday shortly.

Notes.

Labor Secretary Perkins is boosting the allotment for child and maternal care next year by $26,780. She will have 150 employes in the bureau, which is three times as many as the consumers' council (NRA) has. ... It costs sixteen million dollars a year to operate the federal courts of the country, but only nine millions to operate the federal prisons. ... The care of Indians requires sixty full pages for enumeration in the new budget. No other two government bureaus occupy so much space. Incidentally, the amount for Indian care is being boosted 50 per cent to 34 millions. ... The softest job under the New Deal has been found. It is the general supervisor of reindeer in Alaska who gets $3,800 per annum. He has six assistants whose salaries, with his, total $18,900 a year.

KERHONKSON HEIGHTS

Kerhonkson Heights, Jan. 10—Mrs. Josephine Gorsline and family entertained relatives from Metlacahouts.

Miss Gertie Van Wagenen is spending a few days with relatives out of town.

Glenford Miller of the CCC camp at Boiceville spent the week-end at home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Osterhoudt called to see Mrs. Burhans on Sunday.

John Grossman, who spent the holiday vacation at Wawarsing, has returned home.

Mrs. Pat Van Vliet and sons, Donald and Francis, have returned to their home after spending the holiday vacation with her parents at Arena.

ALL OF HIM

WE GET into trouble with children many times because we take one little spot of his being and call it "this child." The truth is that none of us ever saw a whole child. Nobody ever yet has reached the depths of a child's mind, or knew him as he was in reality. Not even the most accurate test pictures the child accurately. It shows you one phase of him, as it was at the time of the testing, but he may never be like that again. He is likely to be different.

Life is fluid. Children, little creatures of great activity, expressions of life at its most interesting and complex stage, change and shift as the light on the sea rises and shines and flickers and goes out to rise and gleam again in constantly changing patterns.

The best we can hope to see is the strongest expression of the child at the time we caught it. A strong expression of any sort is likely to have power behind it, but not always. There may be a single strong expression for good or evil, for beauty or ugliness, and thereafter no sign. Usually this is not true. A strong expression is often an indication of strength. But do not depend upon it, do not take it for granted. Stay watchful and stand ready to catch the next signal.

I am pointing this out because so many people seize upon a phase of a child's character and measure the child accordingly. If he steals a wheel and goes for a ride, he is condemned as a thief. If he gets a high mark in an intelligence test he is a genius from whom all glory is to be expected. If he is dirty faced, mischievous, lazy, industrious, generous, mean, at the time you catch him he is that to you for the rest of his life.

That attitude causes a deal of trouble. It is well to be watchful to protect the child against himself and his mistakes but it is unwise to try to fasten him, fix him, in an instant of his life and forever after treat him according to that conviction.

Parents and teachers have to deal with the children hour by hour. They must act on the expression of the child as he makes it. But, while acting on it, do not assume that it is final in any way. It may be, and it may not be. He may be showing you a life trend, he may be showing you a passing phase of his growth, on fire to-day and gone forever.

This way of life carries with it something of hope and a little of despair for all who deal with children. Eagerly we seize upon the expression of beauty and power in the hope of establishing it for a life time. That is well for in that way power and beauty are set in children. Ready appreciation for such qualities is certain to prolong the child's desire to establish them and it is on his desires as well as upon his vein of power, he must grow.

This has a grain of comfort for those who struggle with difficult children. The strain of error the mistaken child shows may be but a passing phase. He may never repeat the mistake. Hope so. Do your best to discourage its reappearance, and know that one expression is not a fair sample of the actual child. He is as varied and as complex as life itself for he is the essence of life, which is hope.

Peace in Connecticut.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 11 (AP).—The bedlam in its legislative halls stilled, Connecticut settled down today to two more years under Governor Wilbur L. Cross, (Dem.)—the first of his party to serve three successive terms. In the quiet aftermath of senate and house organization deadlocks which delayed the inauguration 24 hours, there was rancor still in the hearts of the governor's colleagues for what they termed a "sell out" yesterday by three Socialists, who held the balance of power in the senate squabble.

HEATING HINTS

.. by John Barclay

IN A recent article I outlined the proper way to bank the fire. In this connection there's one additional bit of advice that I want to give you: Never bank your fire with anything but fresh coal.

The old fashioned practice of banking the fire with ashes will not only result in unsatisfactory heat but it will cause you no end of trouble. You can see yourself that when you throw ashes on top of a fire it acts like a wet blanket and prevents the air from coming up through the fire-bed. It is this air that carries the heat upward away from the grates. When you put ashes on the fire the air travels downward, overheating the grates and fusing the ashes on the grates. Moreover, the next time you put coal on the fire, the air again travels upward and causes the ashes on top of the fuel bed to fuse and form a solid mass of clinkers. This of course chokes the fire and makes it impossible to heat the house.

Don't burn rubbish or garbage in furnace. They cause heavy soot to cake on surfaces and waste heat. Keep ashpit clean.

The only place for ashes in the furnace is the ashpit—except for the thin layer of ashes on the grates. Don't mix ashes and live coal

Chapter 47

GOOD NEWS

"SOMETHING they wanted to keep out of the newspapers?" I interrupted. "That strikes me as singularly considerate of them, but a little belated."

"You mean?" said Mr. Cresswell.

"I mean that when I was in the middle of my particularly disgusting mess, nobody, least of all the government, was worried about what got into the news."

"I know how you feel," said Jerry. "Nevertheless, you'll agree that the less re-hashing that's done, the better for everybody. Anyway, they do want to keep this quiet.

"In order to do that it was necessary to obtain our agreement, and since you, as the principal party concerned, were laid up with a cracked shoulder, Mr. Cresswell and I had been invited to represent the three of us."

"Why didn't they ask me?" demanded Molly.

"It was a little awkward," explained Mr. Cresswell soothingly. "Since you are a naturalized American citizen the position was a distinctly delicate one. It was felt that you would have to be approached in a more indirect form."

Molly laughed. "That makes me feel frightfully important. Go ahead, Jerry; I won't interrupt again."

"It seems," continued Jerry cheerfully, "that without exactly meaning to, we've rendered a vastly important service to our King and country. As soon as Mr. Cresswell fired in that statement of ours to the police, the first thing they did was to raid Orloff's flat and offices.

"I don't know precisely what they found—Beckenham didn't tell us that—but, anyhow, it was quite enough to prove that for the last two years he'd been getting hold of all sorts of valuable information and passing it on to his pals at Moscow.

"I can tell you they aren't half pleased at having him out of the way, especially if it can be fixed up without any fuss or scandal. What seems to have put the crown on the whole business is this blessed formula of Molly's. Beckenham says that if the Soviet leaders had once laid their hands on that there'd probably have been another European war."

"HAVE they any objection to our selling it to Avon?" I asked.

"Not under certain conditions. They're in touch with him, of course, and I gather that the negotiations are getting along nicely."

"What about the rest of the gang—apart from Orloff?"

"There were only three others down at Hambridge; two of them were sailors off the ship, and the third, our waiter friend, seems to have been a sort of unofficial link between Peter and the Bolshies.

"They all got back safely on board, and the skipper pushed off for Russia, next morning. From our people's point of view it's the best way out. The one thing they want to avoid is any sort of publicity."

"And that nasty little reptile Dimitri? Is he going to get off scot free?"

"Not by a long chalk. They've roped him in for coming over here with a dud passport. He'll be had up before a magistrate next week and shipped off quietly to the States. I gather that the New York police will be quite pleased to see him."

"When are they going to do something for Nick?" demanded Molly. "Isn't it about time . . ."

"I was coming to that." Jerry's eyes twinkled mischievously. "I suppose you've been too busy talking to each other to have a look at the morning paper?"

He reached out for a folded copy of the Daily Telegraph, which Dawson had brought in to me just before Molly's arrival. "Here you are," he added, opening it. "Peruse this, my children, and be thankful you have a sense of humor."

He dabbed his finger on an editorial at the top of the second column, and leaning over it with our heads close together, Molly and I read as follows:

"The announcement issued by the Home Office last night with regard to what is generally known as the Holland Park murder, is, though something in the nature of a precedent, one which we venture to think will meet the hearty approval of the general public.

"When indisputable evidence as to the responsibility for a crime comes into the hands of the authorities, and the guilty party is no longer within the reach of justice, it is only fair to others whose interests may be deeply concerned that some official statement should be issued to the Press.

"In the present instance we are glad to have the opportunity of offering our most sincere congratulations to that brilliant young sculptor, Mr. Nicholas Trench, whose recent trial and acquittal has provided one of the most sensational causes célèbres of the last few years.

"It is deplorable that an innocent man should have been compelled to undergo such unmerited suffering, but human wisdom is fallible and the police must not be unduly blamed for acting on what they had reason to regard at the time as reliable evidence.

"We trust that now Mr. Trench has been so completely and dramatically vindicated, he will derive some consolation from the sympathy of his fellow countrymen and their warm admiration for the courage and dignity with which he faced his distressing ordeal. The most happy aspect of this unfortunate affair is that it affords one more proof, if proof were needed, that British justice is still the fairest and most impartial in the world."

"WELL," demanded Jerry with a chuckle. "What do you think of it?"

"Splendid," I said. "I shall have it cut out and framed. It will look very fine hanging up in the studio." I bent over the paper again. "By the way, where is this precious announcement? I haven't seen it yet."

"Oh, it's there—on the front page. Just a short statement that the authorities are now satisfied that Gowland was the murderer, and that no one else had anything to do with it."

"Yes, that's all very fine and nice," Molly looked up indignantly, "but . . ."

"Wait," Jerry said impressively, "the vital part of our message has yet to be delivered." He turned to me. "I have a letter for you here, Nick. Beckenham thought it would be a pretty and appropriate touch if I were to hand it to you myself."

He produced a large square official-looking envelope from his pocket and passed it across. "You can read it, too, Molly," he added.

Tearing open the flap I drew out its contents, which consisted of a single sheet of typewritten paper, headed with the address of the Board of Works.

Dear Sir,

I am instructed to inform you that the design submitted by you for the projected Hyde Park Memorial has been definitely selected by the Committee on the terms set out in their original statement. The Committee regret to learn that you are temporarily indisposed. They hope, however, to have the pleasure of meeting you personally and discussing further details as soon as you have sufficiently recovered to arrange an appointment.

Your obedient servant,
HENRY DAVIES,
Secretary.

Molly gave a little cry and looked up with sparkling eyes. "Isn't that too lovely. I wonder what all the charming fools who thought you were guilty will have to say now?"

I stared at the letter a trifle doubtfully. "It's a big compliment," I admitted, "but I should feel just a shade more enthusiastic if I were quite sure that I'd won it on my merits. It looks rather like a cheap get-out on the part of the Home Secretary."

Jerry laughed. "You needn't worry about that, old man. Beckenham told me that as a matter of fact the Committee had decided to accept your design the very day before you were arrested. They couldn't give it you then, of course, and the whole question had to be reconsidered. That's why they've been such a terribly long time in making the award. You're no call to be uppish."

Chapter 48

SIR WILLIAM

"IF that's the case," I said, "I can forgive everyone. I've no grievance against the police anyhow. If they hadn't arrested me I should never have met Molly."

"All the same," interposed Mr. Cresswell, "I presume you will have no objection to a proposal which was made to us this morning by the Treasury. They have expressed their willingness to discharge the entire expenses of your trial. I have, in fact, already taken the responsibility of accepting their offer."

I looked at him with approval. "You did quite right," I said. "Nothing could give me so much pleasure as to think of Seymour being taxed in order to pay my debts."

"What are they going to do about Mrs. Gowland?" asked Molly.

"Nothing." Mr. Cresswell smiled dryly. "Though she was undoubtedly an accessory after the crime, the occasion is one on which the Crown is disposed to exercise its prerogative of mercy. The case against her will be dropped."

"We've done pretty well, taking it all around," observed Jerry contentedly. "The only thing left now is the formula. I wish to goodness we could hear from Avon! It would just put the finishing touch to everything."

The old lawyer consulted his watch. "If you can restrain your impatience for about two minutes, Sir Jerrold, I think it highly probable that your wish will be gratified."

"What do you mean?" We all three shot out the inquiry simultaneously.

"I haven't mentioned it before"—Mr. Cresswell was evidently enjoying himself—"but as a matter of fact I had a conversation on the telephone with Sir William before joining you at the Home Office. He expressed a wish to see all four of us this morning, and since we had arranged to return to the flat after our interview, I suggested that it might be convenient to him to meet us here."

"Twelve o'clock was the time he proposed and as it's one minute to the hour now I imagine that he will be with us very shortly. Whatever else may be said against them, successful business men are generally punctual."

There was a sudden prolonged trill at the front door bell.

"Like a conjuring trick, isn't it?" remarked Jerry admiringly. "Shove away that glass, Nick, and for goodness' sake try to look pale and heroic! I think you ought to be holding Molly's hand."

We heard Dawson cross the hall and the next moment the door opened.

"Sir William Avon," he announced.

Massive and erect, his famous lock of white hair drooping forward across his forehead, the great man stepped past him into the room. A single glance from his keen blue eyes seemed to take in the whole lot of us, individually and collectively, and then with a friendly smile that completely changed his expression he stepped forward to where Molly was standing.

"GOOD MORNING, Miss O'Brien. I am charmed to meet you again, and I am especially pleased that you were able to be here today." He shook hands with her and the two others, and then turned to me. "And how is the patient?" he inquired.

"Practically cured," I said. "I've had so much good news this morning that I feel like getting up and dancing."

"So the interview was a success?" He took a chair at the foot of the sofa and threw a questioning glance in the direction of Mr. Cresswell.

"I can't say that I am altogether satisfied," replied the lawyer, "but considering the reluctance of the official mind to admit any possibility of error, I suppose that, on the whole, we may consider ourselves fortunate."

"He means that they've offered to pay my expenses," I explained.

"Not only that," broke in Molly, "but they're giving Nick the commission for the new memorial. It will be a lovely slap in the eye for all the people who have been abusing him."

"It will be indeed," Sir William beamed [illegible] and surveyed us quizzically from under his grizzled eyebrows. "May I offer my congratulations, and may I add that from what I have seen of your work I am convinced that the Committee have come to a most wise and excellent decision?"

"And now"—he made a momentary pause—"I am just wondering, in view of all this previous excitement, whether it would be advisable to administer any further stimulants. What do you think, Sir Jerrold?"

"He's pretty tough," said Jerry, "and as for Molly, she's got the nerves of a prizefighter."

"Well, then, in that case I think we might perhaps take the risk. I have come here to tell you that every claim which Osborne put forward for your father's invention, Miss O'Brien, was entirely justified. You are the owner of one of the most valuable discoveries ever made in the field of metallurgic research."

Molly flushed happily. "I'm so glad," she said. "There was only one thing I really wanted all through—that was that father should have the full credit for what he'd done."

"You may be sure he will." Sir William beamed on her paternally. "With your approval I propose to christen the new metal 'Brienite.' I can assure you that in a few months it will be one of the most widely discussed words in the English language."

"Are you going to make this simple child into a bloated capitalist?" demanded Jerry.

"I don't think all the money in the world could affect Miss O'Brien's charm," returned Sir William gallantly, "but there is no doubt that she is in some danger of being extremely well off. I have drawn up certain tentative suggestions, which I propose to discuss with Mr. Cresswell.

"Briefly speaking, they amount to this. I am prepared to put up a capital of two hundred thousand which I think will be sufficient to install the necessary plant. In return for the sole rights of manufacture I will pay Miss O'Brien twenty thousand pounds in cash, and she will also be registered as the holder of fifty thousand one-pound shares. If these shares have not trebled in value within the next few years"—he shrugged his shoulders—"well, I shall regard myself as an extremely indifferent prophet."

"Thank you," said Molly simply, "it sounds splendid." She slipped her hand into mine and squeezed it gently. "You won't mind, Nick? I'll do my best not to get bloated."

I laughed. "I'm not frightened," I said, "but it will take a lot of living up to. I shall certainly have to buy those striped trousers."

"There's one other point," continued our guest, addressing himself to Molly. "Speaking as a representative of the shareholders, Miss O'Brien, I feel that we owe a considerable debt of gratitude both to Mr. Trench and to Sir Jerrold Mordaunt. Again, with your approval, I would suggest that we should ask each of them to accept five thousand shares."

"There won't be any trouble about that," said Molly firmly. "They always do as I tell them." She sat up with a sudden exclamation. "Oh, but we're forgetting the most important person of all. Why, if it wasn't for Jimmy . . ."

"I haven't overlooked the fact." Sir William dived into his breast pocket and produced an envelope. "I was much impressed with what you told me about this boy's intelligence and pluck. I propose to hand him a check for two hundred and fifty pounds, and if he likes to come to me I will find him a job in my own works. We can always make room for a lad of that type."

Jerry leaned across and pressed the bell. "We'll have him up and let him speak for himself. Where's Jimmy?" he added, as Dawson appeared in the doorway.

"At the present moment, sir, he is breaking George".

"Well, tell him to stop it and come here." He turned to me. "What do you say, Nick? I suppose we ought to accept this handsome offer. One isn't often paid for enjoying oneself."

Chapter 49

AND JIMMY TOO

"YOU heard Molly's boast," I said. "It would never do to let her down in front of her partner."

The door opened, admitting an eager-eyed and obviously curious Jimmy.

"You wanted me, sir?"

Jerry beckoned to him. "Step this way, James. Sir William Avon wishes to speak to you."

Our visitor cleared his throat. "I have been hearing some very complimentary things about you, my lad. I like boys with intelligence and courage, and you've certainly shown both these qualities to a remarkable extent. In return for what you've done I have great pleasure in making you this present. It's a check for two hundred and fifty pounds—a joint gift from Miss O'Brien and myself."

Jimmy's eyes positively goggled. "Two—two 'undred an' fifty quid!" he stammered. "Wot—all for me?"

"That is the idea. If you take my advice you will invest it in Savings Certificates." Sir William handed him the envelope. "I have something else to say to you as well. I don't know what ambitions you have for the future, but if you would like to come into my employment, I will find you an opening at the Avon Works. As Mr. Trench will tell you, there is plenty of opportunity there for a boy with energy and brains."

Jimmy stood still, clutching the envelope, his face flushed, and his eyes shifting in a troubled stare from one to the other of us.

"D'you—d'you want me to clear out, sir?" he asked huskily.

I shook my head. "Of course I don't. I should be frightfully sorry if you left us, Jimmy. All the same, when you get an offer like this, I don't want to stand in your way."

He drew in a deep breath, and moistening his lips looked up at Sir William.

"It ain't 'alf good of you, sir, but if it don't make no difference in a way o' speaking, I'd rather stop with Mr. Trench. 'E's going to teach me to be an artist—like 'isself."

THE hard blue eyes twinkled. "In that case," said their owner gravely, "I think you've made a very sensible choice. Now, Cresswell," he continued, as Jimmy backed out, "I assume that you're prepared to look after Miss O'Brien's interests and see that I don't take advantage of her youth and inexperience? How would it suit you to come along to the hotel with me now? We can have some lunch and run through these suggestions of mine afterwards."

Mr. Cresswell got up from his chair. "I shall be delighted," he said.

"That's excellent." Sir William rose also. "Before we go there's just one promise I should like to extract from these young people. As soon as the doctor gives his permission—say one day next week—I want to have a little dinner-party to celebrate the inauguration of the company. I hope that all four of you will honor me by being my guests at the Park View Hotel."

"I will for one," said Jerry promptly. "They do sole bonne femme better there than anywhere else in London."

"Then I take it we accept as well, Molly," I said.

AS I spoke the telephone on the side table suddenly began to ring, and Jerry, who was standing beside it, lifted up the receiver.

"Hello! Yes. Yes, he's here. Do you want to talk to him?" He turned to me. "It's for you, Nick."

I hoisted myself from the sofa and crossed the room.

"Who's speaking?" I inquired.

"It's Seymour," came a familiar voice. "I've been trying to get hold of you all the morning, but I've only just found out where you are staying. My dear Nick, I can't tell you how delighted I am at the good news."

A mischievous thrill of pleasure shot through my heart.

"Thank you very much, Seymour," I said. "Awfully nice of you to ring up."

"Nonsense. Why, my dear fellow, is there anyone in the world who would naturally be more pleased and thankful than I am? I always knew you were innocent, of course, but this—this wonderful public vindication was almost too much to be hoped for."

"It was indeed," I admitted.

"When can I see you? I am most anxious to hear the full story."

"You can drop in whenever you like," I said generously.

"Then I'll come round this afternoon." He paused. "By the way, I've just been talking on the phone to Lord Redland. He tells me that the committee of the club have officially accepted your resignation, but, of course, that was all an unfortunate misunderstanding. He intends to propose your re-election personally at the next meeting. I shall second it myself."

"I shouldn't do that if I were you, Seymour," I said.

"Why not?"

"It would be a waste of time," I explained. "I've no wish to come back to the Royal United Arts. I only used the place to wash my hands in."

And with that I rang off.

Adolph Schmidt, in Ill Health, Hangs Self

Adolph Schmidt, 73 years old, of Rosendale, who has been in ill health for some time, committed suicide by hanging Thursday afternoon. Mr. Schmidt resided on Main street in the village and about 1:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon started out to go to Dr. Galvin's office. When he did not return a search was started and the body was found hanging in the garage on the Schmidt property by John Ollry, who lives nearby.

Schmidt evidently left his home on a pretext of going to the doctor's office, but entered his garage and secured a rope over a rafter, he placed the noose about his neck and then stepped off a chair. His feet were but a few inches off the ground when the body was discovered, after a member of the Ollry family recalled having seen him enter the garage earlier in the afternoon.

Coroner Leston DuBois of New Paltz was called and made an inquiry into the circumstances. In one of the pockets of the dead man was found a note to his wife which stated that a man of his age had little chance to recover from an operation and death was the best way out. The note concluded "best regards to all. Adolph."

It was learned that Mr. Schmidt had been in ill health and believed that an operation was the only course. His advanced age evidently caused him to believe the operation would not prove a success and he took his own life. The body was discovered about 5:30 o'clock after an alarm had been given when the aged man failed to return home.

Frank J. McCardle, undertaker, who was summoned when the body was found, called Coroner DuBois and the body was turned over to Mr. McCardle by the coroner, who issued a death certificate giving the cause of death as "suicide by hanging."

Mr. Schmidt had been a resident of the village of Rosendale for several years. Besides his wife, Philodena, he is survived by one daughter, who lives in Brooklyn. Funeral services will be private.

Truck With Groceries Upsets, Blocks Road

Traffic on 9-W from the railroad underpass near the Greene county line south was held up for three hours this morning when a big ten ton Autocar truck, loaded with nine tons of groceries and supplies for the Grand Union stores, upset and blocked the road.

The accident happened about 8:20 this morning when the truck struck some ice as it approached the underpass, swung around and turned on its side directly across the road under the West Shore bridge, leaving only a foot or so of space at either end.

Sergeant Cunningham and Trooper Reynolds were called and investigated the accident and detoured traffic by way of Palenville, until the truck could be unloaded and hauled off of the roadway.

The truck was owned by E. P. Oldenburg of West Lebanon, N. Y. The driver was Hormidas H. Savoie, of 137 Third avenue, Rensselaer, who had with him as helper and relief driver Jesse H. Serven of West Lebanon.

FROM KINGSTON TO WALDEN OVER CONCRETE HIGHWAY

With the completion of the New Paltz-Ireland Corners concrete road it is now possible to travel from Kingston to Walden over concrete highway.

The New Paltz-Ireland Corners road is completed with the exception of shoulders. While it is open for traffic the official opening will take place in the spring.

Held as Runaway Boys

Richard August Swenson, 16, son of John Swenson of Bay View avenue, Cornwall-on-Hudson, and William Henry Maxwell, 15, who lives with his sister, Mrs. Lee D. Brenner, Bay View avenue, Cornwall-on-Hudson, were picked up in Saugerties this morning by Sergeant Cunningham and Trooper Reynolds. The boys were held at the Ulster county court house as runaway boys, the troopers stating that they had been traveling by the freight train route. They looked it.

Great Wild Life Sanctuary

The world's most wonderful sanctuary for wild life lies in the northeastern portion of the Transvaal bordering on Portuguese East Africa, between the Crocodile river and the Pretoria. It presents a vast variety of scenery, from the wild gorges where the great rivers thread their way through the Limpopo hills, to the open, palm-dotted flats of the Shingwedzi, and the dense thorn bush country of the Sabi river. Away to the west tower the giant Drakensberg peaks, from whose summits the low veldt appears like a huge billiard table.

Exposition and a Fair

The principal difference between an exposition and a fair, although the terms are used interchangeably, is that the former is rather a setting forth of objects for public view with an idea of expressing their historical, political or commercial significance, without a thought of sale, while a fair is more a gathering of merchandise or interesting objects and a meeting of buyers and sellers at a certain place at a specified time for commercial advantage.

Highland Health Center Activities

Highland, Jan. 11—The need of milk was made known by Mrs. Martin K. Lavelle at the nurse committee meeting Tuesday afternoon at the health center. She had estimated that 200 bottles daily were needed by the undernourished children in the central and outside schools. Formerly three and a half cents a bottle had been paid, the price to include the straws. She said bids would be asked for in furnishing that quantity of milk. Federal aid can be had until February 15, if the Town Board will appropriate the amount needed until that date and the money refunded later to the town. This will effect a saving on the local money of which $88.75 had been all there was received to date. Adonai Lodge, No. 718, F. & A. M., had contributed $25; P. T. A., $30; Vineyard Rebekah Lodge, $5; Sunshine Lodge, No. 929, I. O. O. F., $5; Court Nilan, C. D. of A., $10; U. D. Society, $5; union service collection, $8.75. Other societies are giving benefits and will be heard from later. A letter had been received from the secretary, Mrs. Emma Bradt, from W. W. McElhone, giving his approval of obtaining the milk with federal aid.

Mrs. Lavelle outlined her plans for the next two months that of a sunshine class of babies up to one and a half years to be brought to the health center and have the use of the sun lamp on undernourished bodies. Starting with a few minutes and continuing up to a half hour. A mothers' class where she can talk to them of children's diseases and the foods babies should have. Lastly starting the home nursing course for anyone over 16 years of age. It was agreed that Friday evening, January 16, should be registration night for that course with the hours of 7 to 8 o'clock. Such a course was conducted last year with 18 members and it had been asked for this year. Mrs. Lavelle had been giving talks and demonstrations to the 4 patrols of Girl Scouts on first aid and bed making. She also told that the Lions Club had given a gallon of pure Norwegian cod liver oil which had been put in 8-ounce bottles and had been given to children recovering from colds, pneumonia and grip.

Mrs. Lavelle also asked for clean old muslin as there was a need and the supply was exhausted and a need for baby clothes up to a year old, and old cotton flannel sheets. If centers are worn they can be cut out and the corners sewed together to make small blankets for use with a baby. Present were: Mrs. J. J. Gaffney, Mrs. E. D. Randall, Mrs. Herbert Campbell, Mrs. James Swift, Miss Dorothy Weaver, Miss Eliza Raymond and the chairman, Mrs. James Callahan, and Mrs. Lavelle.

The report of the work done during the month of December was rendered: Health supervision, infant, 25; pre-school, 30; school, 18; adult, 15; maternity, pre-natal, 14; postpartum, 6; morbidity, tuberculosis, 4; positive, 1; suspicious 1; contacts, 5; syphilis, 2; acute communicable, whooping cough, 22. NU-ERB Has Brought Relief to Thousands Fame of Great Herbal Medicine Spreading Everywhere — Helps Stomach, Kidneys, Liver and Nerves.

Thousands of sufferers from stomach distress, sluggish liver ailments, inactive bowels, deranged kidneys, rheumatism and attendant ills have derived amazing benefits by taking a few bottles of Nu-Erb.

"It is surprising what Nu-Erb often accomplishes in such instances. This remarkable new medicine has such a cleansing effect that it drives poisons from the system, tones up the vital organs, quiets the nerves and puts a stop to indigestion gastritis and constipation.

"Nu-Erb is the most talked of medicine today. Almost everywhere you go—in homes, offices, factories and meeting places of all kinds, you are almost sure to hear someone tell of the wonderful results obtained by this 'Miracle Medicine' as it has been called. Scores who doubted the powers of this marvelous reconstructant and invigorant have been prevailed upon to give it a trial, and are now singing its praises.

"Many thousands of people have taken Nu-Erb to get rid of different forms of stomach trouble and ailments caused by sluggish liver, weak kidneys or irregular bowels and declare that they have found prompt relief in many cases after everything else has failed.

"Try Nu-Erb, if you feel the least bit run down or in need of a tonic. Perhaps you are suffering from some organic disorder or your bowels irregular. Try this wonderful herbal medicine for a week or 10 days and you too will be convinced that I have not praised it enough."

"Gee! Dad, this new car starts like greased lightning"

"And always will with Tydol Gasoline ... it's lubricated"

WHETHER your car is old or new, there are good reasons why Tydol gasoline will start it faster. The lubricant blended into Tydol gasoline spreads a film of oil over cold, oil-dry upper motor parts. They work smoother, quicker and your motor starts faster. This special lubricant also acts as a solvent in loosening old and preventing new carbon formations. And Tydol gasoline gives you this extra quality...without a price premium.

Amelia Earhart Still Aground in Honolulu

Honolulu, Jan. 11.—Amelia Earhart, America's ace aviatrix, continued her Hawaiian vacation today in the face of reports from San Diego, Calif., that she planned a secret takeoff at dawn in an attempt to fly to the mainland.

The San Diego report, originating with naval officers who declined to be quoted by name but who said they had received a message giving the flight plans, brought a denial from George P. Putnam, husband of Miss Earhart.

He declared there was "not a chance that Amelia will leave at daybreak Friday," and later elaborated by saying her plane wasn't ready for such a flight, and that he couldn't say when the Pacific flight would be attempted, if at all.

Maj. Ernest Clark, commander of the Eighteenth Pursuit Group at Wheeler Field, Army Airdrome near Honolulu, also said there was "no truth" in the flight report. He said said the plane was not in condition, but that a final test hop might be made today.

Miss Earhart, accompanied by Putnam, her mechanic, Paul Mantz, and Mrs. Mantz, arrived here December 27.

Fugitive Slave Law of 1850

The fugitive slave law of 1850 aroused the abolitionists. It made legal provision for the return of a fugitive slave caught in the north. The law was attacked unsuccessfully in the courts. There was a multitude of cases. Each brought fiery prosecution, last-ditch defense.

Paris Police Blush And Ban Nude Dancer

Paris, Jan. 11 (AP)—The more or less blase police of Paris blinked their eyes in horror when Miss Joan Warner of Narbeth, Pa., the only American nude dancer in Paris, put on her act in a cheap restaurant and ordered her scratched off the bill.

The 22-year old platinum blonde, who says her performance is so modest that she was allowed to dance in Chicago and Milwaukee, now must confine her appearances in the nude to music halls and theatres. The police official who complained said that restaurants, where whole families go to dine, is no place for such an act as he saw Joan give.

In rebuttal, Joan said that after she sheds her attire she cartwheels off the floor so rapidly that no human eye is quick enough to get a good view of her body.

The official happened to be in the restaurant when Joan was performing her slave act, which she says is one of her best.

The scene is a slave market from which she escapes via the cartwheel route. The act winds up in a breath-taking moment when she shakes off her clothes, remains with nothing on except a chain, and then drops the chain.

It was then that the police official dropped his eyes.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Family Goes "Nuts"

New York—Mrs. Elizabeth Mandel wants the state conservation commission to let her shoot some squirrels.

The squirrels are running all over her house. When they first appeared about 5 years ago, Mrs. Mandel and her family thought they were "cute" pets, but they have been increasing in number, have gnawed their way through the roof and floors and have caused considerable damage, including the destruction of a Persian rug.

Mrs. Mandel wants a permit to kill them, because the season on squirrels closed December 31.

Spring Jumper

Quincy, Ill.—John Dailing, a farm appraiser, is out to beat the robin-seers looking for signs of spring.

He found a grasshopper in a frozen meadow near Fowlwe, Ill., and says it proves that spring may be just around the corner.

Its disposition, said Dailing, was chipper but drouth, heavy snows, and two-zero waves had left the agile one a trifle emaciated.

Monkey Punishment

Huntsville, Tex.—Jabbo, the monkey inmate of the state prison, was in "stripes" today.

Jabbo made a "break" for freedom yesterday, clambered over the walls and made his getaway. They caught him a block away as he stopped to play with a dog.

On his return prisoners dressed him in "stripes"—the uniform used to designate recalcitrants and prisoners recaptured after escaping.

Still In Service

Allison, Iowa—These frequent present day changes in style and costumes have no appeal for Mrs. Ida Weber of Clarksville.

Fifty years ago when Mrs. Weber, now 89, moved into Butler county from Germany, she brought with her a black woolen dress to wear on dress occasions.

She still wears it every Sunday to church.

An $8,000 Tickle

St. Louis—A fellow-worker tickled James Blaine, 70, and cost their employer $8,000.

A jury returned an $8,000 verdict for Blaine when he testified the tickle caused him to jump back and his right arm was fractured by moving machinery. The company denied liability and said "horseplay" was not within the scope of the employe's work.

LYONSVILLE

Lyonsville, Jan. 10—Messrs. Clyde Roosa, Howard Barley of Lyonsville and Virgil Cross and Sanford Cross of Kyserike attended the automobile show held in New York city on Monday. Following the show they visited the Hollywood Restaurant where they enjoyed hearing Rudy Vallee and his orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith have returned from Yonkers to spend a few days at their home in this place.

S. Merrihew, Mr. Christiana and son, the Rev. Harry Christiana, and Mr. Barringer of Krumville called on members of the consistory of the Lyonsville Church on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Ed Barley and children of Olive Bridge are spending some time at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Franz.

Benjamin Hornbeck called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hornbeck of Kripplebush on Tuesday.

Mrs. Esther Wood, Ernest Christiana and Glenford Davis called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orr E. Christiana and family on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Davis and daughter, Roberta E., spent Thursday afternoon in Ellenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Alexander and family entertained relatives on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon E. Beatty and Miss Alice Beatty of Mt. Tremper called on Mr. and Mrs. Floyd V. Davis on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Rufus Lyons spent Thursday with her sister, Mrs. Peter L. Davis, who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. William Davis called on friends Monday evening.

Mrs. Emma Palen of The Vly has been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orr Christiana and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Davies were in Kingston on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Oakley and son, Kenneth C., spent Sunday afternoon and evening with her parents at Atwood.

Simeon Roosa, who has been ill at his father-in-law's, has returned to his mother, Mrs. Lottie Roosa.

Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Barley of Stone Ridge spent Sunday afternoon and evening with relatives in this place.

Miss Naomi Seiple of Krumville called on her mother at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Davis, on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Sherman Lyons and daughter, Betty J., of Whitfield, spent Tuesday with Mrs. Rufus Lyons.

Mrs. Ray Davis called on her aunt, Mrs. Peter L. Davis, on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Davis and daughter, Roberta E., spent Wednesday in Kingston.

the court shortly before it was called to order.

Wilson was the first witness called. Mild-appearing and bespectacled Wilson did not look anything like a crack federal operative.

"Special agent in charge of the intelligence department of the U. S. Department of Internal Revenue," was his description of his position.

He told how he had been assigned to the Lindbergh case soon after the kidnaping occurred.

Wilson said that he, Elmer Irey, and Mr. Madden, other federal agents went to the Hopewell home together.

Preparation of Ransom

Then he was asked about preparation of the $50,000 in ransom bills.

Q. Did you direct the preparation of the money?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Tell us how you did that please.

A. It was done at the J. P. Morgan Company. A package of money had been made available and prepared but without obtaining the serial numbers. At this time I directed them to have two men work on each note—each piece of currency—noting the numbers on each side and paying attention to the kind of currency. That is, whether it were a gold note or some other kind of money.

Used Gold Notes

"I instructed them to use gold notes whenever possible," the quiet voiced agent said.

"I also instructed them carefully to retain the original sheets on which the numbers were recorded so they might be used later at a trial."

The agent told the jury he likewise suggested this list be kept in the custody of one person.

Wilentz asked who had the custody of that list.

"Mr. Stewart Wilson Cragin," Wilson said.

He was shown a sheaf of papers and asked to identify them.

Identifies Papers

"Yes sir. These are the original sheets."

The sheets containing the original listing of the ransom currency serial numbers were then introduced and accepted as evidence.

Q. On April 4—after the payment of the ransom money—did you have a conference with Col. Lindbergh?

A. I did.

Q. As a result of that conference did Colonel Lindbergh ask the U. S. government to try to find some of the money which had been paid?

A. Yes. Col. Lindbergh in my presence wrote a letter to the Treasury Department making such a request.

Wilson said that $66 bills handed Lindbergh were all recorded serially.

"There is here $14,600 of that money," Wilson said.

The bills were packed tightly in a package. They were the ones that were found in Hauptmann's garage.

Offered as Evidence.

"I offer $14,600 in U. S. gold certificates in evidence," said Wilentz.

"We object," said Associate Defense Counsel Pope.

"I withdraw the offer. Let it be marked for identification." The exhibit was then marked.

Wilson then told how he and Corporal William H. Horn of the state police took the $14,600 ransom money, and checked it carefully with the original list.

"Will you witness, if your honor, please," Wilentz commented smiling, "I am returning this package to the custodian?"

He gave the ransom money to Captain Snook, of the state police.

Wilson said that after he had arranged the money he continued to work on the kidnap case.

Q. You knew that Col. Lindbergh was prepared to pay thousands of dollars to the criminals in the hope that he would get his child back?

A. Yes sir.

Q. Did you make any effort to apprehend the criminals or to interfere with the negotiations?

A. No sir.

Q. Didn't you know it was your duty to apprehend the criminal?

A. Yes.

Wilentz asked if he had done this duty and the mild mannered man said "Yes," explaining how the ransom money serial notes had been retained, and the money diligently traced down by government agents.

Names Hauptmann

As a result of this activity he said a man had been apprehended with a large sum of the money in his possession, had been indicted and "is now on trial for murder."

Wilentz asked him who the man was.

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann."

There was an objection.

"What I want to make known is that there are two indictments," C. Lloyd Fisher, associate defense counsel, interposed. "One for kidnaping and one for murder.

"We are trying the murder indictment," the court ruled.

"There is only one indictment, and, and you know it," Wilentz replied to Fisher.

He resumed his examination.

"Who do you think is guilty—?" he began.

Reilly Is Red Faced

Red-faced Reilly was on his feet objecting before the question could be completed.

"Since the defense counsel asked that sort of a question of Col. Lindbergh, I thought I would try to do the same," Wilentz said.

He added, however, "I don't think it's legal, and I withdraw it."

Fisher took up the cross-examination of Wilson.

"Will you say," Fisher thundered, "that no ransom bills have appeared since Mr. Hauptmann's arrest?"

A. I can't say. I haven't received any notice of it if any has turned up.

Curtiss Testimony Attempt

Fisher started to question Wilson concerning the testimony he gave at the trial of John Hughes Curtiss, the Norfolk, Va., boatbuilder, convicted in the summer of 1932 of obstructing justice in the Lindbergh case.

Wilentz was on his feet with an objection against this defense effort to introduce Curtiss' trial testimony into the present trial.

Justice Trenchard sustained the objection.

Q. Did you develop any clues in your investigation indicating you expected to close in on the criminal?

A. No.

Fisher then returned to the Curtiss testimony, and asked the witness if at that trial he had said he was aware of the identity of "not him, himself (the kidnaper) but we're in touch with other persons, and because of that I decline to name the person."

Wilentz again objected successfully.

Fisher said caustically:

"Apparently the state would like to forget the Curtis case."

He tried to bring up the Curtis testimony again, but again Justice Trenchard sustained objections.

The jurist asked Fisher a question on the Curtis case.

"He was indicted for interfering with justice, but no one knows for what he was tried," the defense attorney said.

Wilentz Shoots Back

"Counsel should know," Wilentz shot at him, "he defended him."

Fisher continued his cross examination.

Q. Where was the first ransom bill picked up?

A. The first that we know of was in a bank on Broadway near 72nd street. That was on April 7 or 8, 1932.

"The second," he said, "was taken in and came to light in a lower Broadway restaurant."

He set the date approximately May 1, 1932.

On questioning he said that he had no knowledge of ransom money being passed in Bridgeport, Conn. "Nor, in fact, anywhere in Connecticut," he added.

Wilson said that he had investigated the case thoroughly.

Q. And you have not learned that ransom money has been passed outside the United States?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Florist Made Deposit.

Q. Did you know that one deposit of $3,000 of the money was made by Max Schling, a florist of New York city?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know that on the day the gold embargo became effective $2,900 of the ransom money was passed in the Federal Reserve Bank in New York city?

A. Not that sum. It was $2,980.

Q. Was is passed by one person?

A. I don't know, there was no way to trace it.

J. J. Faulkner Mentioned.

The agent said that a "J. J. Faulkner" had passed that amount of money in the Federal Reserve Bank that day.

"But he couldn't be traced," he added.

Q. Isn't it true that J. J. Faulkner committed suicide from the Chrysler building in New York shortly after that?

A. I don't know about that.

Q. Well he did. Didn't you investigate J. J. Faulkner?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you find any?

A. Several. Two or three had died since 1932.

Q. Do you know if the Faulkner bank slip was submitted to handwriting experts for comparison with the defendant's handwriting?

A. I was informed it was taken care of.

Q. Were you informed whether it was turned over to the handwriting experts?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the results of that examination?

The agent said the handwriting was not Hauptmann's, according to his information.

Q. How much ransom money exclusive of the money here and the $2,980 of the Faulkner deposit, has been turned into the treasury?

A. I don't know. I know of approximately $1,000.

Q. Who would have that knowledge?

A. The cashier of the U. S. treasury.

Fisher asked if $18,800 would be a correct total for the money recovered.

The witness nodded.

$81,000 Outstanding

Q. Then at the moment, so far as you know, there is roughly $21,000 which has not been returned to the U. S. treasury and is not in your possession at the time of this trial?

A. Yes.

Wilson, at Fisher's request, related how all banks, police departments, post offices and other institutions here and abroad had received the circular listing the serial numbers.

"Were any ransom bills picked up anywhere but New York city?"

The agent said a few were recovered immediately outside of the city but most of them came from New York.

Fisher asked if he knew of a $20 bill found in London, but the witness said "No."

Tries Witness on Locations

The defense counsel asked if money had ever been recovered in Philadelphia, Chicago or Washington.

Again "No sir" was the answer.

Q. Do you know if any bills were found in the safe of the Earl Taylor Hat Co., New York?

A. No sir.

Q. Did you ever know it was passed by one Meyer in New York?

A. No sir.

He said that "25 or 26" men had knowledge of the recording of the ransom serials.

"That includes Col. Breckinridge and Col. Lindbergh," he added.

On re-direct examination Wilson was given the opportunity to express the opinion that of the $31,000 of the ransom still unaccounted for some of it might have come into the treasury during the President's gold embargo without detection.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Hauptmann worked at the Majestic Apartments?

A. Yes sir.

A defense objection was sustained.

Re-Cross Examination

Fisher began his re-cross examination by asking Wilson to define the phrase "of your own knowledge," with which several of the attorney general's questions had been prefaced.

"Why a transcript of a court procedure," Wilson replied.

Q. Then you are relying, under oath, on something you can read?

A. Yes sir.

Q. Now about ransom money slipping back into the Treasury Department. What were the instructions?

A. There were orders to the Federal Reserve and other banking institutions to make a careful search.

By Hoover's Order

Q. And these orders were issued by no less authority than Herbert Hoover, president of the United States.

A. Yes.

Wilson then explained patiently that when the country went off the gold standard, the influx of gold notes to the U. S. Treasury made a careful check impractical.

Wilentz took the witness for second re-direct.

Wilentz asked Wilson if it were not true that about the time of the banking holiday a large amount of

BARBARA BELL FASHION PATTERNS

Pattern No. 1563-B

Practical Outfit for Little Girls from Two to Six

1563-B

Our pattern today is for a little girl's tailored dress with matching panties. It's just the sort of dress mothers like to see their children in. Box pleats — spaced with proportion — solve the problem of fulness through the front. The back is plain and unadorned. In other words, it is perfect for an every-day dress, and so simple that it practically invites you to sit down and sew.

Scallops are appearing on many of the loveliest dresses for children. In this model they are used on the collar and cuffs, and have buttons to accent the semi-circular curves. The button idea is discarded when the long sleeves version is used. To make this sensible style interesting dark contrast is often used.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1563-B is designed in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 years requires about 2½ yards of 36 inch material; including panties; ¾ yard contrast.

Tomorrow: Smart porch dress in two fabrics.

Man's Mane

Some scientists believe that in the very remote past man must have had a mane on his neck not unlike that in the baboon and ever since has worn something around the neck. Essentially masculine and associated with power, the collar has been worn by knights as a badge and in metallic form by kings at coronations.

USED BY MILLIONS ALL OVER THE WORLD

MUCH unhappiness and ill-health are caused by common constipation — due to lack of sufficient bulk in the diet. Many of the foods we eat today are so highly refined that the needed fiber or bulk is missing. As a result, constipation is one of the prevalent diseases of civilization.

This condition can be corrected easily, pleasantly and economically, by adding one cereal food to the average diet — Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN brings you the fiber of wheat in a delicious form, cooked, krumbled and flavored. Two tablespoonfuls daily, eaten as a cereal with milk or cream — or used in cooking — usually is enough to supply the needed bulk.

Millions of people have proved the efficacy of ALL-BRAN. Scientific tests have shown it to be a gentle and natural food way to relieve constipation. It can be used regularly without losing its effectiveness. The American Medical Association Committee on Foods has given Kellogg's ALL-BRAN its seal of acceptance.

You can have confidence in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is labeled to conform to the U. S. Government ruling and is a true bran product — not a "part bran" or a "mixed bran."

Try it — and see how easily and pleasantly you can protect your home from the danger of constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet.

Made and guaranteed only by the Kellogg Company of Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers in the red-and-green package.

MENU FOR TODAY

Menu for Saturday, Jan. 12, 1935

Breakfast

Orange juice, wheat cereal with cream, omelet, popovers, coffee.

Luncheon

Stuffed pepper, creamed cauliflower, green beans, hot corn cake, apple pie, cheese, tea.

Dinner

Boiled corned beef, potatoes, cabbage, turnips, beet and lettuce salad, French dressing, baked Indian pudding, coffee.

Hot Corn Cake

Sour milk or buttermilk make the best corn cake and no eggs are needed. One pint of sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, a little salt, ½ cup molasses, 1 cup flour; then thicken with cornmeal about the sponge cake batter. Bake in gem pans. Sour milk, soda and the molasses will make a light cake.

Popovers

One egg, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 cup flour, a little salt. Beat five minutes by the clock. Have your iron gem pan ready, greased and very hot. Bake about 25 minutes. Fill the pans only half-full.

Baked Indian Pudding

One-third cup granulated cornmeal, ½ cup molasses and pinch of salt mixed together. Pour over the above ingredients 2 cups scalded milk. Let stand a few minutes, put in baking dish, and when it has baked from 8 to 10 minutes (according to heat of oven) stir thoroughly and add 1 cup of cold milk. Bake about two hours in moderate oven.

OLIVE BRIDGE M. E. CHURCH SERVICES FOR JANUARY 13.

The attendance at the church services last Sunday was not as large as usual, due largely to the much sickness which prevails among the people of the charge. The services next Sunday will be as follows: Olive Bridge Sunday School at 10:15, and the election of officers for the new year, which was to be held last Sunday but postponed because of the absence of many of the older members of the school, will probably take place. The worship service will be at 11 a. m. The afternoon services in the church at The Vly have been discontinued until further notice. Samsonville worship service in the evening at 7:30. The pastor's subject for the day is "God's Knowledge of the Heart." Everyone is invited to attend one of these services of worship, and a speedy recovery is wished for those who have been kept from their usual places in the House of God, because of illness.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Jan. 10—Miss Verna Giles has returned to Poughkeepsie after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Giles.

Miss Virginia Cudney of Pine Hill was a week-end guest at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Fred Adsit, of the village center. Miss Cudney is a former resident of Ashokan.

Rensselaer W. Longyear, one of the oldest residents of Shokan, is confined to his bed with a severe cold. Dr. H. Cohn is attending Mr. Longyear.

Mrs. Santi Nadal was hostess to the members of the bridge club at her home on Van Steenburgh Road last Friday afternoon.

A large new porch has been added to the east side of Leonard Colange's residence at the junction of Routes 28 and 28A. Steps of red brick and a hedge also add to the attractiveness of Mr. Colange's remodelled homestead.

Miss Johanna Wendt, formerly of New York city, is spending the winter with her mother, Mrs. Herman Wendt, Sr., at the family residence on the state road.

Services were held in the Olive Hurley Old School Baptist Church last Sunday morning and afternoon.

Frederick Barringer, whose funeral was held at Kerhonkson last Sunday afternoon, was a native of Olive and at one time made hi a home in Shokan. Mr. Barringer was a son of the late Freeman Barringer. He was a brother of Mrs. Henry Wells of Ashokan.

The recent court decision upholding the assessment of New York city for its reservoir holdings in Olive is of course a source of much satisfaction to the people of this section. The consensus of opinion here is that the local assessors placed a fair valuation on the property.

An Olive real estate transfer of January 11, 1848, was that of a property from Solomon Hollister to Lewis Hollister. The Hollisters for many years operated a 100-acre farm on the west side of the Esopus creek near Olive Bridge.

Several residents of the village attended the funeral services in Kingston Monday afternoon of Mrs. Rebecca Lowry Snyder, a former resident of Bolceville. Mrs. Snyder, who was 92 years old at the time of her death last Friday, was held in high esteem by her old friends in this section. Her homestead years ago was the farm now known as the Brunnel place. Her husband, the late Addison Snyder, at one time conducted a blacksmith shop at Bolceville.

Charles Schipp, who until last fall was connected with the Lyons Garage as chief mechanic, has opened a repair shop on North Front street in Kingston, where he and his family now reside.

William Lawson returned to Cornell University Sunday. John and Robert Lawson left town Monday to resume their studies at the Choate School.

Sandra Pfaus, daughter of the Rev. August Pfaus, pastor of the Shokan Reformed Church, is recovering from an attack of grip.

The rains and warm weather of the past few days appear to have taken all the frost out of the ground in the north shore country.

Morris Rose, a member of Co. 215, CCC, spent Sunday at his home in the village.

Members of the younger set held a party New Year's Day evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Tuseling. Those present at this pleasing social affair were as follows: The Misses Verna Giles, Mary Elliott, Barbara Tuseling and Margaret Windrum; Alfred Rose, Irving Weeks, Burton Cudney, Robert Lawson, William Tuseling, Jr., William Lawson, John Lawson and Herman Wendt, Jr.

There are 18 pupils in Mrs. E. C. Burgher's classes at the local school this term. The number is less than at this time last year.

Mrs. August Pfaus is confined to her home with an attack of grip.

Mrs. Elmer Bedell is well enough to get out again following her recent illness.

Oscar Ganter of New York city spent the week-end with his family at their home in the west end.

Isaiah Shultis, the reservoir country's champion bull-head fisherman, was a recent caller at the home of his sister, Mrs. Margaret Theil.

Joseph H. Dewitt, who sustained a fractured bone in one of his arms, is getting along all right under the care of Dr. Cohn. A report that the fracture was not located by an X-ray is incorrect as a minute study of the negative finally disclosed the extent of Mr. Dewitt's painful injury.

A number of the young men and women of the village, including several of those home for the holidays, enjoyed a toboggan party on Weeks' hill while the snow lasted. Skiing on the Tuceling fields was a popular sport last week.

Mrs. E. C. Burgher, teacher of the Shokan school, on Friday evening will be installed as associate worthy matron of Clinton Chapter, O. E. S., at the lodge rooms in Kingston. Several local Eastern Star members expect to be present at the installation.

January 10, 1882, the funeral took place here of Mrs. Samuel Elmendorf. The Elmendorf family had a 77-acre farm near the present village of Ashokan.

Josephine Leyder, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leyder, is making good progress in her studies as a sophomore in the commercial department of the Kingston High School.

The weekly meetings of the Social Eight have not been held regularly this winter owing to the illness of Joseph Giacone, one of the members of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morris of Kingston were recent callers at the home of their friend and former neighbor, Miss Edna Longyear.

Mrs. Sarah Bell, one of the most active of the elderly residents of the village, is again greeting her friends after having been kept at home with an injured ankle.

Roswell Colgate and family have returned to Buffalo where they resided before coming to Ashokan last year.

Kingston Residents Inherit.

New York, Jan. 10.—(Special)—Mrs. Viola Babcock, of 197 Hurley avenue, Kingston, inherits all painted chinaware and a bed cover, and her daughters, the Misses Phyllis and Jean Babcock, same address, receive $100 each, from the estate of the late Mrs. Viola M. Scudder of this city, who died December 28, leaving an estate formally described today as being about $3,500, it was learned when the will was filed for probate.

Farmer Builds Chapel

A tiny stone chapel named St. Mary's of the Oaks juts out of the summit of the highest hill on a farm at Cross Plains, Wis., as the result of an answered prayer. Tossing on what he believed to be his death bed, the farmer vowed that if he recovered he would construct a shrine out of gratitude. He made good his promise.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven helps in one. It is made for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist is authorized to guarantee it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.—Adv.

The Holland Society Dinner January 17

The fiftieth anniversary dinner of The Holland Society of New York will take place Thursday night, January 17, in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York city. The principal address will be delivered by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, a trustee of the society. Unable to attend personally because of a previously-scheduled reception in Washington, he will speak by telephone from the White House. Amplifiers will carry his words to about 600 members of the society and their guests at the dinner.

President Roosevelt is the second member of The Holland Society to become chief executive of the United States. Theodore Roosevelt was the first. The present executive has taken an active interest in the affairs of the organization. An elaborate volume, "Dutch Houses in the Hudson Valley Before 1776," published under Holland Society auspices in 1929, was his idea. A companion volume will appear this year.

The Netherlands Minister to the United States, Jonkheer H. M. van Hearsma de With, will address the dinner guests after a toast to Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands has been proposed by Judge Henry E. Ackerson, Jr., of Keyport, N. J., president of the society. This toast is a feature of every annual dinner. The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, will also deliver an address.

D. L. Turk Bankrupt.

New York, Jan. 10.—(Special)—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in federal court here today against David L. Turk of 311 Wall street, Kingston, operator of a retail men's furnishings store. The petitioning creditors and their claims are Alfred Friedman Co., Inc., $200, Louis Miller & Co., 314, and Schiff Brothers, $22. The petitioners charge that preferential payments were made in the sum of $500 by Turk while his business was insolvent.

Thrifty Service

wonderful new home washing service
makes a picnic of washday

BETTY'S MOTHER NEVER HAS TIME TO READ TO HER, OR PLAY WITH HER EITHER
WELL, IF BETTY'S MOTHER WOULD SEND HER WASHING TO THE LAUNDRY, SHE'D HAVE TIME, AND I'M GOING TO TELL HER SO WHEN I SEE HER

WHY sentence yourself to a day a week in the damp, dreary basement? What do you expect to gain, wearing yourself out, taking chances with your health, lifting, straining yourself, doing the family washing? Maybe you think you're saving money. But you're not. Listen—Thrifty Wash — the marvelous new home washing service — is positively cheaper than home washing.

Thrifty Wash gives you a day a week — FOR FUN!

Wouldn't you like to have more time to spend with your children—enjoying life with them? Do you think your husband likes to see you make a drudge of yourself? To tell you the truth, he hates washday as much as you do! Then why don't you make up your mind, right now, that you're going to stop being a washwoman? That you're going to take a whole day this week—and every week—for fun. Just take a minute tomorrow morning—phone and tell us which day you want us to call for your bundle. We'll wash your clothes carefully and thoroughly. We'll coax out the dirt in rich, foamy, warm suds of purest soap. We'll rinse them clear in gallons and gallons of sparkling, rain-soft water. Then we'll send them back to you with the flat work ironed. Don't worry about the expense, either. For Thrifty Wash only costs 98 cents for a big 14 pound bundle. Which you must admit is "cheap enough!"

One Cent-A-Word Advs. Bring Results

gold notes were not in circulation.

Reilly objected.

The court asked the witness if he knew, and Wilson shook his head.

"He Don't Know"

"He said he don't know", Justice Trenchard announced gravely and the dispute ended.

Wilson was excused and a five-minute recess taken at 11:31 a. m.

In contrast with the testimony of previous days, today's session was dull.

Hauptmann and his wife talked again together during the recess. Both were serious and their rare smiles were very fleeting.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, was the first witness called.

Former Judge George K. Large, who conducted the examination, showed the colonel some handwriting specimens.

Q. Who wrote them?

A. Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Q. Under what circumstances were they written.

A. Inspector Lyons, of the New York Police Department, explained to Bruno Richard Hauptmann he wanted specimens of his handwriting and asked if he was willing to give it. He said 'yes' and from a circular then published Inspector Lyons dictated.

Q. Is the spelling his own?

A. Yes sir.

Q. Referring to whom?

A. Hauptmann.

Fisher took the witness and asked him to specify the date of the specimen.

"Sept. 19," said Schwarzkopf.

The defense counsel brought out Hauptmann had been in custody for a number of hours when the samples were given and was not represented by counsel.

When the exhibit was offered, Fisher registered an objection but he was overruled.

Schwarzkopf was excused.

Albert S. Osborn, Sr., noted handwriting expert, was called to the stand.

"I am an examiner of questioned documents," he said when asked his occupation.

Osborn said he had worked at his occupation for "upwards of thirty years."

He is large and red of face and has a gray mustache. A bald pate is fringed with platinum gray hair.

He himself speaks loudly and he wants others to do likewise.

"I can't hear as well as I did once," he boomed forth.

"I want the counsel to speak right out."

The court assured him that counsel would raise their voices, and he went ahead with his testimony, an air of positiveness dominating every word in his professional testimony.

"Any question in relation to the qualifications of the witness," Trenchard then asked.

There was no defense attack on his qualifications, and Lanigan proceeded.

Q. When did you first see the ransom notes?

A. May 1932.

Q. Did you examine them at that time.

A. I did.

Q. Did you photograph them?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you examine them later.

A. I had many occasions to examine them. The writings of well over 100 different possible writers of the ransom notes to see if these or any of these wrote the ransom notes.

Q. Did you reach a conclusion?

A. The conclusion was the writer of the ransom notes had not been found.

That was up until September of last year, he explained.

Q. Have you made a careful comparison of the ransom notes with the conceded and requested writings of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

A. Yes.

Q. Does it give you sufficient material for a conclusion.

A. Yes. The amount of the writings is ample on which to base a conclusion.

Q. What is the conclusion, the opinion.

A. My opinion is that the ransom notes were all written by the same hand that wrote these writings signed Richard (CQ) Hauptmann.

He was asked how many specimens he had examined, and he replied:

"I think it was 14."

He was handed several exhibits.

"I haven't seen these markings," Osborn declared. "Somebody has put new markings on them."

"Take your time, Mr. Osborn, we are in no haste. Take your time," the court proclaimed loudly.

He was asked to repeat his opinion, and he said, "The ransom notes were all written by the writer of these other various proved writings."

Q. How do you explain your conclusion?

A. Hand me my brief case.

The expert fairly bellowed his order and then looked apologetically at the court. "I don't hear well," he repeated.

"First I examined the notes to determine if all were done by the same writer," he intoned.

"I first examined these ransom notes in May, 1932. I wanted to see if they were connected with each other, and I found that they were, in 7 or 8 different ways."

"They were connected in my opinion by their use of words, spelling—peculiar spelling—by the statement of the amount of the ransom mentioned in the first letter and repeated in later letters, and by the statement in later letters of not reporting to police," the expert said, describing how he concluded the same hand wrote all ransom notes.

"But mainly I was impressed by the peculiar and inpenious device which appeared in the lower right hand corner," he said, referring to the kidnap symbol.

He displayed a large photograph to the jury, showing various sections of the notes and their signature.

The white haired witness turned to the first note left on the nursery.

He called the jury's attention to the sentence "we warn you for anyding public or for notify police," words which were repeated verbatim in a subsequent note.

He pointed out the notation at the bottom "indication for all letters are sinature," and the symbol.

The word "sinature" for signature was stressed.

Speaking of the symbol, he said the two concentric rings were made by "some implement which did not take ink well—a crude device, such as a bottom of the bottle or porcelain or china cup.

"But the most significant things are the holes."

"The three holes," he said were connected with each other unmistakably.

"A pattern was made, and they were all of that pattern.

"They were in the same relation to the edge and bottom of the paper.

"You could hold them up to the light and see through all the holes.

"They are uniform.

"It would be impossible to make them from a description, because they are all the same mechanically," he said.

Facing the jury, the old but vigorous chirographer spoke with the utmost conviction.

The jury, which appeared bored at the early part of the session could do nothing but listen.

He dwelt at length on each sentence.

"Now he has here the sentence 'Wy did you ignore'—Now notice that 'N' before the 'G', just the same as in 'signature'—

" 'Wy did you ignore auer—'—notice that A-U-E-R again. 'Auer letter which was left in the room,' " concluded.

"That is more than mis-spelling," the expert opined. "They can hardly be described as misspelling they are a peculiar combination of letters."

He noted a difference in the first ransom note, the one found on the Lindbergh nursery window sill.

"The first letter is written with more deliberation," he said, "than any other letter.

"But," he added hastily, "it was the same writer."

Osborn referred to the frequent notations in the letters concerning the care of the child, such as "the child is in gut care."

This, he said, demonstrated the letters were connected in a series.

The expert pointed to another peculiarity of the ransom notes, the use of "the for they is an error which appears many times."

When Osborn had concluded the opening dissertation on the chirography and characteristics of the ransom notes, Lanigan offered in evidence the lengthy photographic chart which the expert had used to illustrate his remarks.

Lanigan prepared to continue, but Justice Trenchard suggested the luncheon recess be taken, and the continuation of the expert's testimony was deferred until the afternoon session.

Highland Central School Trustees Met

Highland, Jan. 11.—The trustees of the Central school district met Tuesday evening in a postponed meeting and aside from ordering the payment of the many bills presented, they voted to use $600 from the grounds appropriation money to apply to the work on the tennis courts and hurry the completion of them. Much of the money spent for them has been TERA money.

Miss Florence Bacon from Vassar College will soon start the parent education course with classes in the high school. Miss Bacon succeeds Miss Bertha Jenkins who formerly conducted the class and was Miss Jenkins' assistant. There is $50 included in the budget for this purpose. There was also $60 voted to the purchase of uniforms for the girls' varsity basketball squad. The members did not see any benefits gained from a membership in the New York State Schoolboards Association and therefore refused to take a membership in that for the future. The need of new books in the school library called for the sum of $230 voted to the purchase of them, with Prin. Herbert Campbell and librarian Mrs. Katherine Weller to select them. Waste baskets were wanted for several class rooms and they were ordered.

William H. Maynard as trustee for the Oakes school presented the problem of trying to keep the building warm and it was agreed that insulation was necessary under the roof and over the upper floor. He was given authority to go ahead with that. Milo F. Winchester was to be given $75 to spend on the Farm and Home week at Cornell when he takes four or five of the students in the agricultural class to attend the sessions held there. It was reported that all the regulations regarding school busses were complied with except the name on the bus. The insurance policies on the busses were in the office of A. D. & A. W. Lent. The members of the Board were all present, also Prin. Campbell and W. T. Burke of the physical training department.

The first meeting of the parent education group will meet Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the school building. It will be conducted by Miss Bacon.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAEGER

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—The do-and-dare spirit was lacking in today's stock market proceedings and leading issues were inclined to drift down-stream.

Dullness ruled throughout the major part of the session as most traders viewed the speculative scene with more than the usual caution.

Shares of Coca-Cola jumped about 5 points and Century Ribbon came to life for an advance of 1, both to new peaks for the past year or so. Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey and North American were fairly steady, but Western Union and American Telephone drowsed. Losers of 1 to 2 or more points included Liggett & Myers B, Reynolds B, American Tobacco B, McIntyre Porcupine, Dome, U. S. Smelting, Union Pacific, Spiegel-May-Stern, J. C. Penney, American Sugar Refining and U. S. Steel Common and Preferred. Fractional declines were registered by Bethlehem, General Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Santa Fe, American Smelting and Cerro De Pasco.

THE JOINERS

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies

The regular weekly meeting of Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, Jr. O. U. A. M. will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the lodge hall, 14 Henry street.

The installation services Monday evening when Rondout Commandery in uniform installed the newly elected officers of Colonial Chapter, Order of DeMolay, was a very spectacular and impressive ceremony. The installation was a public one and was attended by about 150. Frank B. Raisden of Port Chester, who had been scheduled to speak, was held up on the east side of the river by the ice and failure of the ferry to operate and the speech of the evening was by the Rev. Clarance Brown. Following the installation there was entertainment, including solos by Donald Clark, tap dancing by four girls and tricks of magic by Fred Van Deusen.

The regular stated meeting of Rip Van Winkle Triangle No. 8, Daughters of the Eastern Star, was held at Masonic Hall, 280 Wall street, Thursday evening. The beloved queen, Ethel Mae Jones, presided. Following the opening ceremonies, courtesies were extended to the honored guests. A most interesting business session followed which included plans for the next three meetings. The regular meeting on January 24 will be called to order at 7:45. There will be a short business session followed by a public card party. Tickets for the card party may be procured from any member of the Triangle or from the supervisor. The members of Rip Van Winkle Triangle have extended an invitation to the members of Colonial Chapter, Order of DeMolay, to meet with them on February 14. The initiatory work will be exemplified upon a class of candidates Thursday evening, February 28. The members of the Order of the Eastern Star and Masonic fraternity are urged to keep these dates in mind as they are always welcome at the meetings and their presence is an inspiration to the Triangle members. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

It was a gala night in Kingston Council, No. 124, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, Monday night, January 7, it being the occasion of the official visit of Deputy State Councilor Sister Kathryn Schlesde to install the newly elected officers. The following guests were present: Deputy State Councilor Sister Leah W. Jones, deputy of Esopus Council, No. 42; Past Deputy State Councilor Sister Sadie Munson, Councilor Sister, Frances Decker, of Esopus Council, No. 42; and other visiting members. The installing ceremony was conducted in a most pleasing and impressive manner. The retiring councilor, Mrs. Almira Hulsair, was presented with the lodge past councilor jewel. The following officers were installed: Councilor, Mabel Styles; vice councilor, Elena Craig; associate vice councilor, Myra Bogart; associate councilor, Lela Jones; guide, Pheobe Netherwood; recording secretary, Bertha Decker; associate recording secretary, Ethel Beadle; treasurer, Leah W. Jones; financial secretary, Matilda Hahn; junior ex-councilor, Almira Hulsair; junior associate councilor, Estella Rider; inside guardian, Helen Parslow; outside guardian, Louisa Hahn; trustee, Ethel Beadle; color bearers, Hazel Green, Mildred Decker, Ada Van Etten, Carrie Straley; press agent, Matilda Hahn. After the ceremonies were concluded a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Social Security Is Presented to Congress

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP).—A broad social security legislative program was outlined to Congressional leaders today by President Roosevelt, providing for unemployment insurance, old age pensions and public health aid.

Secretary Perkins, chairman of the President's special committee on the security program, explained that direct federal grants were involved only in providing funds to states which have laws for care of the aged and indigent.

The plan also would set up a federally-sponsored old age pension system to be controlled and supported by states.

Likewise, the unemployment insurance program is to be administered by states under federal supervision. No direct federal aid is involved.

The secretary of labor said there also was a "small covering up aid to public health for states which provide medical care."

The fourth point provides aid to dependent children, including the crippled and those otherwise handicapped.

The White House conference included Senator Wagner (D-NY) and Representative Lewis (D-Md), the authors of unemployment insurance legislation before the last session; Speaker Byrns, Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind) and Edward McGrady, assistant secretary of labor.

Miss Perkins explained that "the federal government does not make grants to individuals under this program."

Blue Ridge Ramblers At the Eichler Hotel

Jack Feye, proprietor of the Hotel Eichler, Railroad avenue, has announced a new entertainment feature. Starting tonight his patrons will hear the Blue Ridge Ramblers, a trio of stage and radio note.

The Ramblers, who recently completed 10 weeks at the Village Barn, New York city, will replace the popular Zeb, Zeke, Elmer and Happy, who have gone back to radio work.

The Crazy Cut-Ups, as the quartet is known, have gone to South Carolina to broadcast over WBT. They will be heard Saturday evening at 7:45.

The Blue Ridge Ramblers, who have arranged an elaborate program for their appearance at the Eichler have been heard over WJZ, WEAF and WOR.

SHOKAN LADIES' AID HELD MEETING WEDNESDAY

Shokan, Jan. 10—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Shokan Reformed Church held its first meeting of the new year on Wednesday afternoon, January 9, at the home of Mrs. William Green in Ashokan. The meeting being also the first one held since the annual election of officers last month, there were a number of important matters taken up at the business session. Officers present were Mrs. Daniel Sampson, president; Mrs. Neil Windrum, vice president, and Mrs. Fred Adsit, treasurer. Mrs. Clyde Winchell was appointed secretary pro tem in the absence of Mrs. Charles Giles.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken," after which the secretary read from the scriptures, 1 Peter 2. A prayer by the president was followed by the repeating of the Lord's Prayer by the members. The treasurer's report was then received and accepted as read. A suggestion by the president that, beginning with the February meeting, each member recite a Bible verse in response to the roll call, was laid on the table for voting on next month. The treasurer, having been delegated at the December meeting to inquire about the prices of the different kinds of gas most suitable for use in the stove of the church hall kitchen, reported that the manufactured product in use at the Department of Water Supply laboratory at Brown's appeared to be cheapest for the needs of the society, whereupon it was decided to further investigate this gas with a view to ascertaining whether or not it can properly be used at the church hall.

Thanks for Christmas gifts upon the part of the Ladies' Aid were received from the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. August Pfaus, Mrs. Jennie Green, Mrs. May Giles and Miss Bertha Green. A motion was next made, and carried, that the proceeds of the Sunshine Box be spent solely for the benefit of the sick and needy persons of the community. Committees appointed for the ensuing year were as follows: Quilting, Mrs. Homer Markle, Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten, Mrs. Rensselaer Longyear, Mrs. Sarah Bell, Mrs. George Giles and Miss Elizabeth Giles; flowers, Miss Edna Longyear, Miss Elizabeth Giles and Mrs. Earl North; sick, Mrs. Daniel Sampson, Mrs. Earl North, Mrs. August Pfaus, Mrs. William Green and Miss Elizabeth Giles. The matter of making the first quilt for the annual fair was taken up at this point. Mrs. Green's offer of four yards of material was accepted as was also that of Mrs. Frank Barringer to furnish the lining. The secretary was instructed to send a letter of thanks to Mrs. Florence Cummings of New York city for the latter's assistance in disposing of the several quilts made by the society last year. It was also voted to have the secretary, at future meetings, to read the current minutes.

The next matter discussed at Wednesday's meeting was the holding of a social in the church hall. The date decided upon was Wednesday, January 16, beginning at 7:30 p. m. The committee on arrangements for the social was made us as follows: Mrs. Santi Nadal, chairman; Mrs. George VonderOsten and Mrs. Earl North. The business session was then brought to a close with the singing of "More About Jesus," and the repeating of the benediction. During the social hour, refreshments consisting of sandwiches, pickles, cake, coffee and tea were served by Mrs. Green.

Members of the society present at the meeting were: Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten, Mrs. Rensselaer Longyear, Mrs. George Giles, Mrs. Sarah Bell, Mrs. Clyde Winchell, Mrs. Fred Adsit, Mrs. May Giles, Mrs. Elmer Bedell, Mrs. Daniel Sampson, Miss Elizabeth Giles, Mrs. Neil Windrum, Mrs. Homer Markle, Mrs. Earl North, Mrs. Frank Barringer, Mrs. George VonderOsten, Mrs. Santi Nadal and Mrs. William Green. The next meeting of the society will be held Wednesday afternoon, February 6, at the home of Mrs. R. W. Longyear in Shokan.

Mrs. Grinnell Sells Business to Employes

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—After 30 years in the lithographing business, Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Grinnell has turned the company over to her employes and now she's going fishing.

"I think I've earned a rest," she said. "I'm going to travel and I'm going to fish and I'm going to do just as I darn please."

She is 57 and an energetic fisherman. She caught the first broadbill swordfish ever landed by a woman on the North Atlantic coast.

The Grinnell Lithographic Company, which she has sold to its 225 employes, was founded by herself and her husband in 1904. She took an active part in its management, looking after the production end while her husband devoted himself to the sales interests. When he died in 1930, she took over his duties also. The company does a business of about $1,500,000 a year.

Huey Invades Gotham In Role of Song Writer

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Huey Long, who has turned song writer, is in town looking for a publisher.

Louisiana's outspoken senator and "dictator" breezed into New York yesterday looking for Lou Irwin, "who knows lots of publishers".

Long didn't seem to be worried about the threatened march of Louisiana's "Square Dealers" on the state capitol unless the senator's dictatorship is ended by the legislature.

"They ain't going to march anywhere," he shouted. "If they had a horse and buggy they might ride. They're too lazy to walk."

Concerning reports that Governor O. K. Allen would resign because of ill health, Huey said:

"Oscar ain't going to quit. He ain't sick, he's gone hunting. I say he ain't going to resign nothing until he gets a better job and there ain't any open down there right now."

The senator said his song is called "Every Man a King" and that it is one of a half dozen he is going to use in his "Share the Wealth" campaign. The words were written by Long himself and the music was composed one morning about 5 o'clock with Castra Caraza, "my bandmaster at Louisian State University".

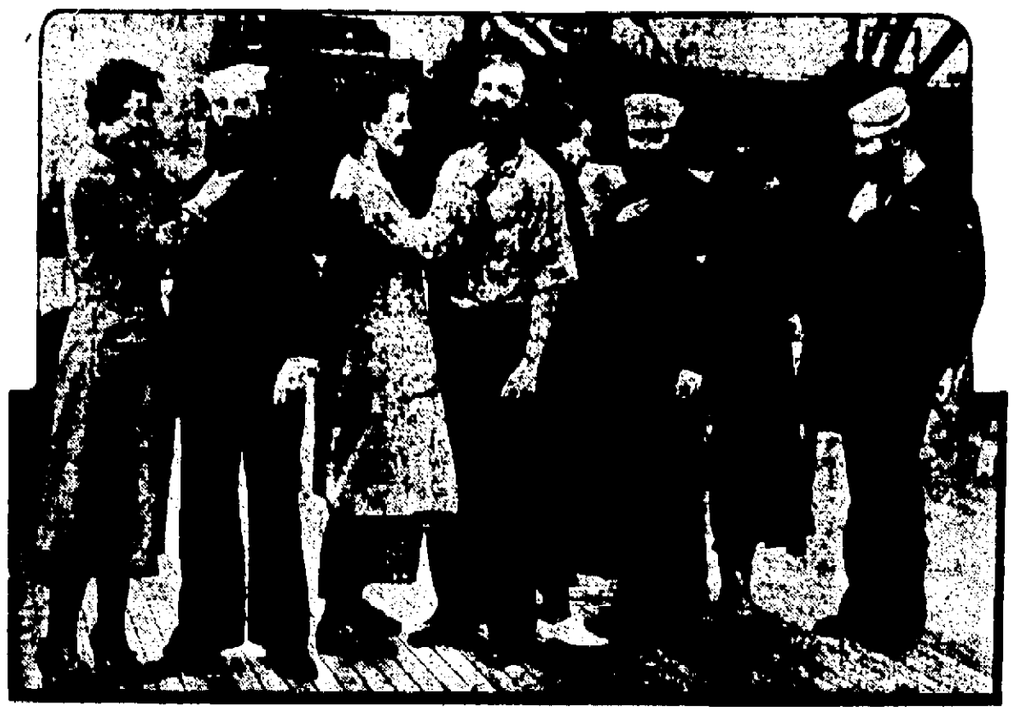
Committee Named For Birthday Ball

The committee named for the Birthday Ball for President Roosevelt to be held January 30 at Golden Rule Inn is as follows: Mrs. Joan Dwyer Goldrick, chairman; Miss Margaret Kennedy, vice chairman; Mrs. Thomas F. Goldrick, Mrs. Clyde K. Wood, Mrs. Sam N. Mann and Mrs. William R. Kraft.

Funds derived from the birthday parties, which are to be held in approximately 5,600 communities throughout the United States, will be used for the prevention and cure of infantile paralysis.

A record-breaking volume of Christmas-greeting telegrams was filed in New York city and other places throughout the country, according to the two telegraph companies.

They Grew Them in Alaskan Waters



WHEN the United States coast guard cutter Northland returned the other day to Oakland, Calif., after seven months in Alaskan waters, the wives, sisters and sweethearts of members of the crew had some difficulty in recognizing their men, for all of them wore luxurious beards. The cutter was on its annual medical cruise among the Eskimos and seemingly carried no razors, though nearly every kind of surgical instrument was in its equipment. It gave medical and dental aid to 2,000 Eskimos in various ports, and also put ashore a force to help in the rehabilitation of Nome after the big fire.

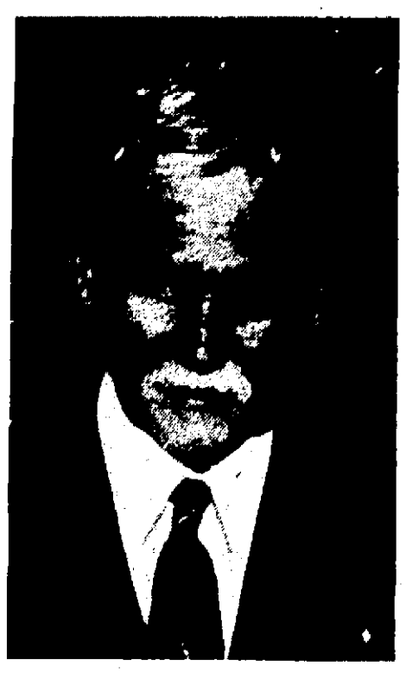
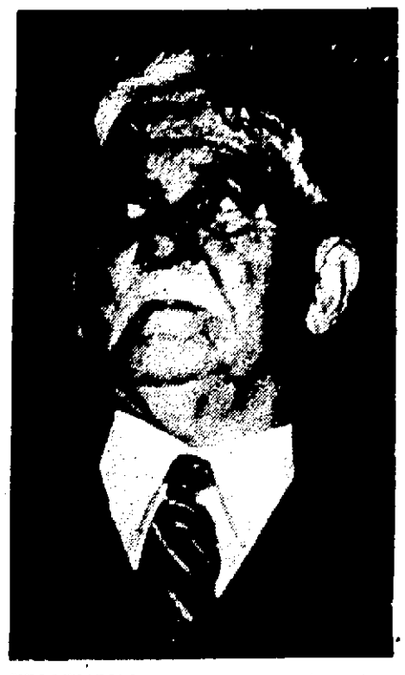
WHERE THE $50,000 RANSOM WAS PAID: The entrance to St. Raymond's Cemetery in the Bronx showing the high hedge on the left over which, Dr. Condon testified, he handed to the kidnapper the package of money for the Lindbergh baby's return.





DR. CONDON, ACCUSING HAUPTMANN, NARRATES DETAILED STORY OF RANSOM NEGOTIATIONS: Character studies of "Jafsie," who on the stand in the Flemington courtroom, identified Bruno Hauptmann as the mysterious "John" with whom he negotiated for the return of the Lindbergh baby and to whom he paid the $50,000 ransom at St. Raymond's Cemetery in the Bronx while Colonel Lindbergh waited in an automobile parked nearby.

WHERE JAFSIE FOUND NOTE FROM KIDNAPPER: Flower store in the East Bronx to which Dr. Condon said he was directed by a note delivered to his home, and where he found another letter directing him to meet "John" in St. Raymond's cemetery.

IN AN EXHIBITION OF DANCING ON THE ICE: Hilda Ruckert, internationally famous fancy figure skater, in a Hungarian dance on skates on one of the open air rinks at St. Moritz, in the Swiss Alps.

A FRENCH ADAPTATION OF A TYROLEAN COSTUME: A black caracul waistcoat, with pale blue edelweiss buttons, worn over a pale blue Tyrolean blouse. The black caracul toque completes the costume designed in Paris for the woman skier.

THE ACCUSED AFTER FACING "JAFSIE'S" CHARGE: Bruno Hauptmann accompanied by a deputy sheriff and a State trooper, leaves the courtroom for his cell after being pointed out by Dr. Condon as the man to whom he gave the $50,000 ransom.

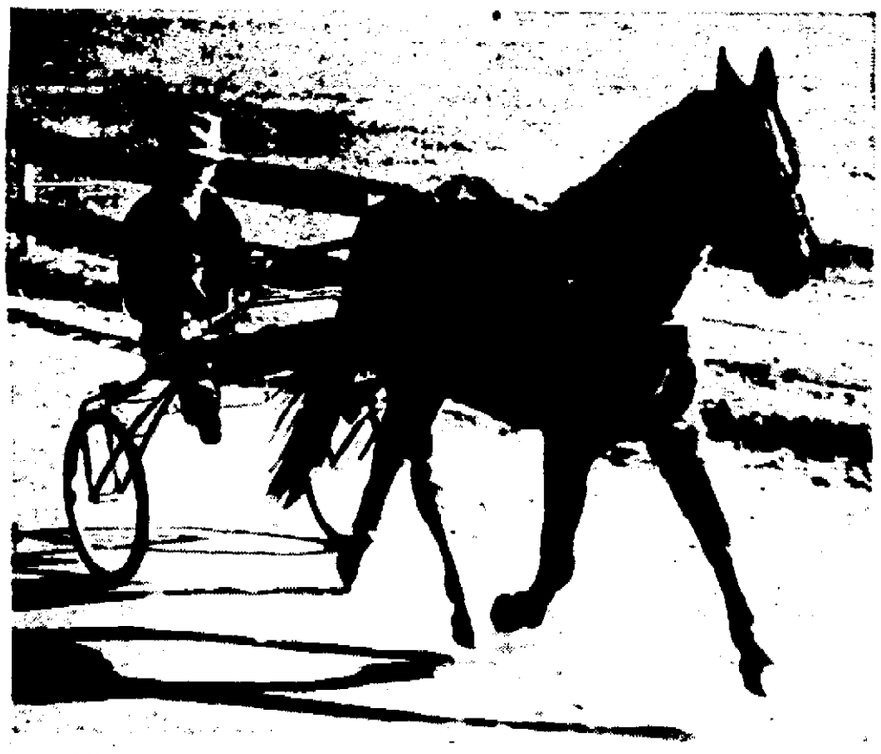
THE LA FOLLETTES SHAKE HANDS FOR SEVEN HOURS: Philip La Follette, new Governor of Wisconsin (left) and his brother, U. S. Senator Robert La Follette, on the receiving line at the Inaugural Ball in Madison where they shook hands with guests for seven consecutive hours.

FOR SPORTS WEAR IN COLDER CLIMES: The jacket of white duvetyne, decorated with green knit sleeve buttons and worn with gloves and cuffs of the same duvetyn, is one of the newest designs offered by French couturiers for winter wear.

AN EVANGELIST CELEBRATES AN ANNIVERSARY: Aimee Semple McPherson is assisted to the float on which she led a procession of four brass bands and 44 floats through the streets of Los Angeles in celebration of her twenty-fifth year in the ministry.



NINETEEN YEARS OLD AND STILL GOING STRONG: Peter Manning, the fastest trotter the world has ever seen, with an unbroken record of 1:55 3-4, on his nineteenth birthday, steps out for a fast mile on the ring at Hanover Fair ns, Hanover, Pa., where he is now pensioned for a life of ease.

THE REPRESENTATIVE AT LARGE FROM THE STATE OF NEW YORK: Mrs. Caroline O'Day, in whose campaign for election to the United States Congress Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt appeared as a "stump" speaker, studies House bills in her office in Washington.

A CHAMPION PREPARES TO MEET OTHER ARISTOCRATS OF CATDOM: Nikko, with every whisker and hair in place, surveys her glorious self in a mirror as she waits to appear before the judges at the Persian Cat Show in Detroit, where she was awarded the blue ribbon for her class.

Suit Against Town and County Settled

further queries along this line. He did manage to bring out, however, that Finn started housekeeping again in Paterson, N. J., about six months after the fatal accident.

Finn said he had been living in Paterson and vicinity for about two years prior to 1930. He had gone there to get work as a silk weaver while his wife, also employed as a silk weaver, in Pine Bush, maintained their home there. He made it a practice to visit Pine Bush every second week-end, he said. At present he is employed as a salesman for a fuel concern.

Finn told the jury he learned of the automobile accident late Saturday night and left for Pine Bush, arriving at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. Greenleaf, the next afternoon. They then went to the scene, near Barlows Bridge. Measurements of the position of the car, made by him at that time, were introduced in evidence today.

Attorney Cohen was interested in Finn's legal residence. In answer to such questions, the witness stated that he considered himself a legal resident of New Jersey from July 1, 1930. Cohen then showed, through introduction of letters of administration papers, that Finn had signed an affidavit in August, 1930, declaring himself a citizen of Orange county, N. Y.

Also to take the stand for the plaintiff today was Mrs. Viola Pigeon, the former Mrs. Viola Benton of Liberty. She was questioned in detail as to the automobile trip that ended fatally. She was a passenger in the car that went from the Hartnett home in Pine Bush across the Barlow Bridge to a place about two miles beyond to get some wine to bring back to the party at Hartnett's. The other passengers were Lockhead, Henry Evans of Pine Bush, and Mrs. Finn.

She said Evans drove the car on the outgoing trip and Lockhead returning. She sat in the front seat with Evans when he drove and in the rear seat with him coming back.

"You were glad you sat with him in the back seat coming back, weren't you?" Mr. Cohen asked her, alluding to the deaths of those who rode in front.

"Yes", she replied.

Her memory of the place they went to for the wine was very bad. She could not describe the place in any way or remember where it was. She admitted she would not recognize it again if she saw it. She, Mr. Evans and Mrs. Finn had some wine at a table there before the return trip, she said. Lockhead did not indulge.

Asked at this point to indicate the size of the glass of wine she had she spread her fingers apart.

"May it be conceded that she indicates a glass about 2½ inches high?" asked Teale.

"Looks more like four inches to me," declared juror number seven.

Another witness was Henry Evans of Pine Bush. He said he is married but separated from his wife. He said they had driven at about 35 to 45 miles an hour. They were going nearer the latter speed when the car hit the tree, he stated. Asked why they had gone for liquor, he said they had been having a good time at Hartnett's house and wanted to continue it.

The plaintiff then rested its case and motions, by Ewig and Cook for the defense, asking a dismissal of the charges and the action, were denied by the court.

Federated Men's Clubs Plan Year's Program

Representatives of the Federated Men's Clubs of Kingston and vicinity met at the Y. M. C. A. to discuss their program for the coming season. First of importance was the Father and Son program which the federation is sponsoring, a program which the Y. M. C. A. has heretofore assumed in line with its many other civic activities. After several programs had been presented and discussed the matter was left to a committee consisting of Gordon Craig, chairman, Chester Van De Mark, Rodney DuBois, George Lowe and Warren Smith to make all arrangements as to place, time and program. It is fully expected that such disposition will be made that accomodations for 1,000 to 1,200 men and boys can be taken care of in this big activity. The father and son program is a national one and is gaining recognition as one of the major activities in juvenile promotions.

Religious work chairman, George E. Lowe, presented an excellent program for his department, arranged in four parts, namely, that Men's Bible Classes should be established in all churches and led by a layman; that church attendance be stressed in all its branches; that male quartets be organized in the men's clubs to aid in the musical programs of the club and church, including assistance in the church choirs, and fourth, a Laymen's Evangelical Group be organized to aid in furthering the promotion of Christianity in word and example in our community or communities. Mr. Lowe's program was unanimously endorsed by the men's club delegates.

Boys' Work Chairman William Wright, Scout Executive of Ulster and Greene counties, outlined conditions in Kingston relative to boy-life and its activities. Mr. Wright presented a graphic map of Kingston on which were shown in colored pins and tabe the location of boys connected with Scout troups, members of the "Y," boys of the Rotary group, their church affiliations and what was of startling significance the sections of the city and the number of boys in that section who had been before the courts of the city during the past year. The boys who had been called to account for conduct that violated city laws numbered 345. This number represented that proportion of the 2,300 boys in Kingston between the ages of 10 and 19, who, possibly through lack of proper training, wrong companionship or many other reasons, had run afoul of th law and who need the right association, adequate juvenile supervision in their spare time an dth eproper environment to stop this number of delinquents from becoming larger. Chairman Wright has a program which will greatly assist in this endeavor and the Father and Son program will be one step in the movement toward youth guidance.

The Rondout Presbyterian Men's Club was accepted into the Federation and the church men's organizations of Saugerties were invited also to send in their appliactions.

President Edsil Flowers outlined several other matters of importance and the meeting adjourned with the ideas firmly fixed in mind that this season will be full of work for the Federation and its members.

Action of Contract Concluded in Court

The action of contract brought by James A. Belefas against Kingston Modern Home Supply Co., Inc., in county court was concluded today. Testimony was completed Thursday afternoon and following the drawing of an extra panel of jurors at the opening of court this morning the summations were made by counsel.

The action is one for alleged commissions on sale of electrical appliances amounting to something over $200. There was a long accounting involved. Defendant enters a counter claim alleging that plaintiff overdrew a drawing account and that nothing is due from defendant. The original answering papers were drawn by the late Palmer Canfield and Daniel Hoffman has been retained to defend the action on those papers. Plaintiff is represented by Cleon B. Murray.

State Planning Board To File Report Monday

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP).—The results of a year's study of New York State's resources, their uses and misuses, and the needs for progressive social legislation will be made known to Governor Lehman and the legislature Monday by the state planning board.

Robert Whitten, consultant assigned to the state by the national resources board, said today that a preliminary report containing the board's principal findings has been prepared and ready for presentation.

The board has made public from time to time during the past year partial reports of the eleven committees and the technical staff, but the preliminary report will reveal for the first time the conclusions of the board itself.

Jafsie Fades from Trial Stage Today

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 11 (AP)—Jafsie faded from the stage of the Lindbergh case today, probably never to return.

Tired out despite his assertions that his two days on the stand at the Hauptmann trial were not even a workout, Dr. John F. Condon slept soundly in his hotel room here, slipping away from his companions and retiring by 8 o'clock last night after a hearty dinner.

The night before, after his first day on the stand, the 74-year-old state's star witness had sat up talking until 1 a. m. ordinarily he finds six hours sleep sufficient.

Members of his family indicated he would not return to Flemington unless summoned to testify again by Attorney General David T. Wilentz.

"We are through with him," a state attorney said, "but of course he will be available at his home if we need him."

He will not return to be a spectator at the trial, but his future plans were not learned. He complied with the wishes of the prosecutor to keep his opinions to himself until the trial is ended.

Dr. Condon enjoys life to the fullest. He loves to stroll down the business streets of the Bronx and greet friends of long acquaintance. He is a movie fan, and the love of sports, in which he took an active part until advancing years forced him to retire to the grand stand, still is strong.

Those who have been close to him throughout the trying period were both elated and relieved. Some did not hide their concern before or while he was on the stand, feeling that despite his apparent rugged health the strain might prove too much for him.

$675,000,000 to Retire Poor Land Is Urged

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—A huge program to spend $675,000,000 in buying up poor land and retiring it from farm production was recommended to President Roosevelt today by the National Resources Board.

The purchasing would be extended over 15 years, 5,000,000 acres being bought each year at an annual cost of $45,000,000.

This farm land, comprising 450,000 farms, should be withdrawn from agriculture, the board said "in order that both the natural and human resources of the nation may be conserved."

The report, drawn by the board's land planning committee, was supplementary to the board's earlier study—which President Roosevelt told Congress would guide the expenditure of four billion dollars in his new work-making program.

It urged that the Federal government and the states take steps to prevent further settlement of lands so poor that occupancy is "clearly contrary to the public interest." It turned thumbs down on any "substantial movement of unemployed people from urban areas into commercial agriculture."

Land to be retired, the committee suggests, may be added to the national forests, or leased to states for wild life refuges, parks and the like.

H. T. Wilkinson Comes To Grant Store Here

Herbert T. Wilkinson, for the last two years manager of the W. T. Grant Co. store at Far Rockaway, L. I., has been appointed manager of the Grant Store in Kingston and has entered upon his duties here. He succeeds S. W. Shepard, who goes to the Grant store on Genesee street, Buffalo.

Mr. Wilkinson, who has been with the W. T. Grant Co. for a number of years, has been connected with their stores in widely separated parts of the country, in a managerial capacity. His first store was at Catskill and he has managed stores at Salt Lake City, Utah, Toledo, O., Pottstown, Pa., in addition to his last assignment to the store at Far Rockaway.

One of the most interesting places he has struck in journeyings, Mr. Wilkinson said, was Salt Lake City. He was particularly impressed with the fact that silver is the favorite medium of exchange in that section. When he first arrived in that city he stopped in a store to make small purchase. He tendered a $20 bill in payment and was considerably "jarred" when he got his change to find that it included 19 silver "cartwheels."

Strong New York Americans Will Oppose Luckies Tonight

One of the best attractions they have booked this year will oppose Jack Troy's Luckies tonight at White Eagle Hall. The team is the New York Americans, who boast of a strong lineup, including Art Musicant and Bob Griebe, who saw action here in the State League.

Starting time of the game is 9 o'clock. Expectations are that the Delaware avenue court will be packed to capacity for the opening whistle of the contest that promises lots of action and plenty of trouble for the Clover Kids.

Those who arrive early will see two preliminaries, one between the Columbians and Rexall Aces at 7:30 and the other between two junior teams at 6:45 o'clock. A dance will wind up the evening's program.

Manager "Dolly" Tesslo said today he expects his Luckies to have a harder time with the Americans than they did with the House of David or Detroit Clowns. The locals trimmed the beards by nine points, 35-26, and lost to the Clowns by eight markers, 27-35. The Clowns won out by building up an early lead. In the last half the Luckies outscored the funny men but failed to dump in enough baskets to surpass the good start made by their opponents.

On the roster of the New Yorkers are Bob Griebe and Art Musicant of the State League, Terguson of Fort Wayne and the Visitations, Clough, Bouden and Clark, all of whom have seen action in the major basketball circles.

Tesslo will have all of his regulars ready for battle: Bing Van Etten, Norm Nies, Bun Chilson, "Man Mountain" Schline, Don Kelly, Dan Joyce and Joe Dulin. Dulin and Chilson are newcomers to the Luckies. Since they signed with the club, it won two straight games, defeating the strong Liberty Emeralds at home and the Rosendale Firemen.

Coach Johnny Johnson put the Luckies through a stiff drill at the White Eagle Wednesday night and after the workout pronounced them ready for whatever sort of opposition the Americans might offer.

It is the intention of Jack Troy, Manager Tesslo states, to bring many more clubs like the Americans here this season, regardless of expense. "We hope for a crowd tonight so that our policy may be carried out to give our followers the best in basketball," he added.

Kingston High Plays Port Jervis Tonight

The 1935 DUSO basketball season gets under way tonight in the local high school gym when the DUSO favorites, Port Jervis, invade Kingston's territory to meet the Maroon shirted Riasmen. The game is called for 8 o'clock.

From all indications the game will be a spirited contest despite the heavy leaning towards the tri-staters in the favoritism. The Tri-staters will be particularly hampered by Kingston's freak court, after playing on their own high and unobstructed court, regarded as the best in the DUSO loop. The Red and Black team's height and experience will probably, however, take care of the court handicap. The whole Port team is a veteran combination of two years experience. They were runners up for DUSO honors last year. Three of the Port varsity are over six feet in height, Poletynski topping the lot, standing six feet four, and Dunn and Pepper each standing six feet two. The other two members of the team, Fedorka and Garrity, each stand five feet ten. None of the local varsity is over six feet.

Kingston, which has made rapid improvement since its first game, is scheduled to lineup with Ed and Charley Bock, forwards; Jack Linden, center, and Lou Glenn and Ed Bahl, guards. Port Jervis will use Josh Fedorka and George Pepper, forwards; Mike Poletynski, center, and Ed Dunn and Bill Garrity, guards.

Preceding the main tilt, the Kingston Jayvees will play the Olympics at 7 o'clock. There will be no dancing.

PORT EWEN SCOUTS TAKE GAME FROM SILVER WINGS

The overture to the basketball feature at the Port Ewen Reformed Church Hall, Thursday, turned into a victory for the Port Ewen Scouts over the Silver Wings, 33-13. Prendergast with 13 points lead the Scouts and DeWitt with 6, the Wings.

Stone Ridgers Trim Liberty Emeralds

Home Team Outscores Rivals by 11 Points at B. W. S. Hall—Wood and Chilson Star, So Do Harkavy and Fiske.

In their regular Thursday night attraction at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, the Stone Ridge Five outscored the highly touted Liberty Emeralds by 11 points. Final score was Stone Ridge 32, Emeralds 21.

Leading the Ridgers were Woody Wood and Bun Chilson, who scored 7 and 8 points in the order named. Harkavy made 8 and R. Fiske 7 for the visitors.

Stone Ridge was in the van at halftime, 17-13, having pulled away from the Liberty team which was in front at the termination of the first quarter, 11-9. The home towners stayed in the lead for the remainder of the battle.

Harold "Johnny" Johnson blew the whistle for the first this season. He got a big reception from the fans.

Next Thursday Rosendale will play the Ridgers.

Battery A Loses 1st League Game, 14-20

Opposing Battery E of Newburgh, Minus Three of its Regulars, Lieutenant Byrne's Team Drops Decision—Booked for Poughkeepsie With Battery C Tonight.

Minus three of its players, Battery A got off to a poor start in the Regimental League of the 156th Field Artillery, Thursday, at the new armory. It lost to Battery E of Newburgh, 20-14.

The local quintet went into battle without Don Boyce, who has gone to the CCC outfit at Tannersville, also Smith and Streeter, who are getting over an attack of the German measles. The latter two started but had to give up after several minutes of play, being too weak to carry on.

A glance at the boxscore will show Geisler and Freligh as the only two regulars the A Batterymen had. They made 5 and 6 points respectively.

Lubinhimer featured for the Newburghers with 7.

Tonight B Battery will play Battery C in Poughkeepsie and probably drop another decision.

Lieutenant James P. Byrne in command of A, who has been ill himself with the grip, hopes his team will get a chance to redeem itself later and cop the much desired championship of the Regimental League.

In the preliminary last night, the Columbians outscored the Olympics, 35-17.

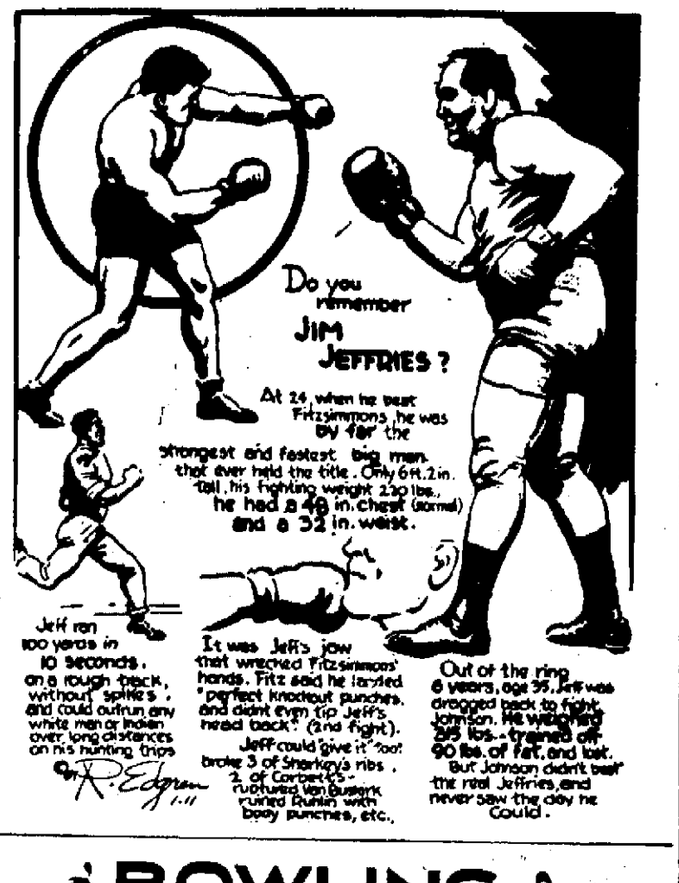
One of Ring's Strongest and Fastest Big Men



Do you remember JIM JEFFRIES?
At 24 when he beat Fitzsimmons, he was by far the strongest and fastest big man that ever held the title. Only 6ft. 2 in. tall, his fighting weight 230 lbs., he had a 48 in. chest (normal) and a 32 in. waist.
Jeff ran 100 yards in 10 seconds, on a rough track, without spikes, and could outrun any white man or Indian over long distances on his hunting trips
It was Jeff's jaw that wrecked Fitzsimmons' hands. Fitz said he landed "perfect knockout punches, and didn't even tip Jeff's head back." (2nd fight).
Jeff could give it too! broke 3 of Sharkey's ribs, 2 of Corbett's, ruptured Van Buskirk, ruined Ruhlin with body punches, etc.
Out of the ring 6 years, age 35, Jeff was dragged back to fight Johnson. He weighed 295 lbs.—trained off 90 lbs. of fat, and lost. But Johnson didn't beat the real Jeffries, and never saw the day he could.

Amateur Sport Looks For Added Triumphs

By AVERY BRUNDAGE
President, American Olympic Association

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP).—In amateur sports, success is marked by the number of competitors and the quality of the competition rather than by the size of the gate or the number of spectators as in professional contests. At the conclusion of a year filled with growth and progress by these standards, despite unsettled conditions in fields political and economic, amateur sport looks forward to new triumphs, national as well as international, during 1935.

Sports Spreading

Competitive sport, first organized on a large scale in the United States, is gradually spreading to all parts of the civilized world. Lacking the private initiative supplied in this country by athletic clubs and educational institutions, in nations like Italy, Japan, Mexico and Soviet Russia, the government, recognizing the values of physical training and recreation to its citizens, has taken a hand and is promoting and encouraging competitive sports and games on a national scale.

More and more foreign countries, recognizing the leadership of the United States, ask us to send our best athletes abroad to meet their champions so that they may learn American methods. At the recent convention of the Amateur Athletic Union invitations were received from a dozen nations requesting track and field, swimming, ice hockey, wrestling and weight lifting teams to be their guests during 1935. The fine performances and good sportsmanship of our boys in Europe and the Orient last year strengthened the friendly feelings established by American teams in prior years.

Competition Keener

Fifty nations are preparing for the eleventh Olympiad to be held in August, 1936, and the fourth winter games, scheduled for February, 1936, and competition will be keener than ever. This is recognized by American sport leaders and 25 Olympic sport committees are already working to develop teams that will continue the record of success written by previous wearers of the red, white and blue.

From the new marks established in running, jumping, weight throwing, swimming, weight lifting, etc., and from the excellent performances and added interest in skating, amateur boxing, wrestling, rowing, amateur ice hockey, fencing, skiing, etc., there is no doubt that our boys will give a good account of themselves. Because there will not be time enough to select and prepare the winter sports teams next season before the games open in February, 1936, tentative selections will be made this winter. Performances next summer in other sports will give the fans an idea of Olympic timber for the 1936 tryouts.

Appreciation Growing

The growing appreciation of amateurism among sports followers and the public generally both here and abroad, and the consequent demand that sham, pretense and dishonest practices be stamped out, is indicated in the appointment of committees to establish uniform amateur codes, both by the international Olympic committee and the American Olympic committee.

Wittenberg Sportsmen Shooting Saturday

Wittenberg, Jan. 11.—Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock the Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club will hold its second trap shoot of the month in the open fields at Yankeetown pond. The first shoot, held New Year's Day, drew a large group of enthusiastic sportsmen from various parts of Ulster county, and some excellent scores were recorded. Saturday many prizes will be offered in competition. Already several Kingstonians have signified their intention of attending, including members of the Ulster County Gun Club.

The Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club, organized in November, has as its aim the development of fields and streams in this section of the Catskill park. At present there is a membership of 30. Any persons interested in creating a sportsman's preserve in this abundant game country are asked to join the club. Information and memberships may be secured through Charles Morrison, secretary, post office address Woodstock.

Sioux Five Defeats Cities Service, 17-13

Thursday evening in the Reformed Church Hall, Port Ewen, the Sioux Five scored its tenth straight triumph by defeating the Cities Service team in a tight defensive battle by a score of 17-13.

In scoring their fifteenth of the current season, the Indians displayed a high calibre brand of basketball, outplaying the Oilmen. The Sioux outscored the "fill her uppers" from both the field and the baby strip, taking the lead soon after the start of the second half and holding it from there on. The Cities Service led 5-2 at the end of the first quarter and 7-5 at the end of the half. The third quarter ended 10-9 with the Indians in front.

Hal Ferguson, eagle-eyed Sioux forward, led in the scoring with four fields and a foul for a total of nine points. Pete Schline led the losers with seven markers. Other high scorers were Munson with six for the winners and Chick Smith with four points for the losers.

Roamers Will Cross Paths With Clermonts

Saturday night at Holy Cross Hall, Pine Grove avenue, Dick Murphy's Roamers will oppose the Clermonts, a quintet from Fuller's shirt factory.

Fullers—Dykes, Myers, Carpino, Hornbeck, Storms, Purvis, Van-Etten.

Roamers—Bittner, Raichle, Dulin, Hyatt, Boyce, Fitzgerald and Chipp.

The Roamers have won three out of four contests, and hope to build up their record Saturday.

There will be a preliminary, Seventh Ward Club vs. Olympics.

Dancing will follow the games.

Shimek and Husta Star for Boston

Two of Pop Morgenweck's basketeers, Frank Shimek and Carlie Husta, showed up well in their game with Boston of the American League this week against the Philly Hebrews. Boston won the game 34-20.

Shimek scored 10 points, highest individual tally of the game, and Husta dumped in two fields for four markers. Both played guard positions.

HIGH SCHOOL FACULTY TRIMS WEST HURLEY

Wednesday evening a fast-stepping quintet composed of members of the high school faculty overwhelmed the West Hurley Y. C. C. to the tune of 46-9. High scorers for the professors were Dick Whiston, with 10 markers, Ken Anderson with 17 and Watson Bailey with 11. Both Anderson and Bailey made good on 5 foul shots, while Anderson sunk 6 goals from scrimmage. The Hurleyites were held almost scoreless for the first half, the period ending 22-2. Ambers May Pack The Garden Tonight

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Curiosity may make a financial success out of Madison Square Garden's boxing show tonight.

There's at least an outside chance that more than a fair sprinkling of customers will proceed to the fight pit to discover just why the New York State Athletic Commission has designated Lou Ambers, Herkimer, N. Y., youngster, the No. 1 contender for Barney Ross' lightweight championship.

A preliminary fighter less than a year ago, Ambers will appear in the Garden for the first time, battling Harry Dublinsky, Chicago's "light" welterweight, in the ten-round feature. Ambers, scaling around 138 pounds, will concede about five pounds to his veteran rival but rules a 6 to 5 favorite.

Supporting ten rounders will bring together two New York featherweights, Lew Feldman and Petey Hayes, and a pair of bantamweights, Baby Quintana of Panama and Jo Tei Ken of Korea.

Joe Louis After 14th Ring Victory

Pittsburgh, Jan. 11 (AP).—With an echo of some contract troubles pursuing him, Flashy Joe Louis tonight goes after his 14th straight ring conquest.

To stop the Detroit heavyweight's sensational string of victories is the aim of Hans Birkie, the German bruiser who meets Louis in a ten-round bout at Duquesne Gardens.

Some dopesters say Joe will take the big German by a knockout but Birkie's adherents scoffed and pointed to his creditable work against such luminaries as Primo Carnera, Steve Hamas and Art Lasky.

Louis will weigh in at about 195 and Birkie about 192.

Joe's contract troubles come from battler "Kid" Ellis, Detroit amateur boxing coach who is suing Louis and his managers for a part of the gate money. He contends he has a contract making him joint manager of the 20-year-old negro.

It isn't so, says Louis' manager, John Roxborough, adding that when an amateur Louis signed a contract allotting a portion of winnings if he turned pro. Because Joe is still a minor the contract doesn't hold, says Roxborough.

Max Puts on Comedy Hunt Drubs Buddy

Boston, Jan. 11 (AP).—Profiting by Kingfish Levinsky's sad experience, Dick Madden, young Boston heavyweight, shared Max Baer's mood for good, clean fun last night at Mechanics Building and they put on one of the most amusing travesties a Boston boxing crowd ever witnessed.

Their antics had the overflow crowd of 4,000 in hysterics all through the four-round skit.

The champion got a great kick out of his performance but his 239-pound brother, Jacob, known as "Buddy", ran into an unexpected setback. In a four round bout with the veteran Babe Hunt of Ponca City, Okla., young Baer was soundly drubbed.

The Sportlight
BY GRANTLAND RICE

An American Sportsman.

He happens to be a tall, broad-shouldered young man around 30, on the good-looking side.

He is quiet, courteous, extremely modest, with the rare attitude of being more interested in listening than in talking.

His name is John Hay (Jock) Whitney, who has come closer to mixing up business and sport in a sane way than anyone I know.

Jock Whitney was among those who came out to see the new Santa Anita race course get under headway and see how the various Whitney stables were making out—including Twenty Grand.

He also came to Hollywood to engage a director and see the start of his new color picture, "Becky Sharp," which is now ready for production.

The Whitneys have gone into the new color process on a rather large scale, and this next feature will give a good line regarding the immediate future of the new color arrangement.

Santa Anita and Hialah.

"This should be a big season for both Santa Anita and Hialah," Jock Whitney said.

"They are not rivals in any sense of the word, as there are quite enough good horses to take care of both tracks. Both tracks are run and controlled by sportsmen who happen to love racing—who happen to have the interest of racing and breeding at heart. Both are extremely well organized and well managed."

"Racing stables," I suggested, "are fairly expensive investments. How have the Whitneys made out in this respect?"

"Racing stables and breeding farms are expensive," he said, "but we have just about broken even. The winnings of Twenty Grand and Equipoise alone have been substantial—enough to cover a few hundred thousand dollars of expense charges. A few big winners take good care of many others, although it costs money to raise, feed, train and develop a thoroughbred."

Twenty Grand and Equipoise.

I asked Mr. Whitney how he thought Twenty Grand and Equipoise would make out in the $100,000 feature at Santa Anita in February.

"The greatest racing thrill I ever got," he said, "was the battle between this pair as two-year-olds. Twenty Grand won that race by a head. They are both great horses. But Twenty Grand has been out of competition for some time, and today he is a guess and a gamble. But he is still fast and a great competitor, and there is the chance that he will reach top form again. Equipoise, another great horse, also has a chance. But I doubt that either at this date can beat Cavalcade if he is right. Cavalcade is younger and closer to racing form. There are other good horses in this big stake event and many things can happen between now and late February. It ought to be a great race, however, one of the most spectacular we have ever seen. But it will be some weeks before one can tell just how the leaders look."

I asked young Whitney if he didn't think there were too many race tracks sprouting all over the landscape.

"There can easily be too many," he said, "if they are not run by the proper organization. Santa Anita is lucky in the racing authorities handling California tracks, and the sportsmen in direct charge, such as Dr. Strub, Hal Roach, Gwynne Wilson and others. This track should be a big success, just as Hialah has been and will continue to be. There will generally be enough good horses to go around."

Favorite Sports.

Racing is not the only sport that happens to attract Jock Whitney's interest. He went out for rowing at Yale, and today his favorite sports are polo and tennis, with hunting and fishing among the attracting sidelines.

He admits that he can't shoot quail with Major Louis Beard, who is in charge of the Whitney breeding farms at Lexington. But in addition to racing, polo, tennis, hunting and fishing, he is still keen and active in business, with the color process for motion pictures now taking up a large part of his time.

As a result of varied pursuits, New York, Los Angeles and Miami have turned him into a fairly busy traveler, and the airplane has come to his rescue in turning these once widely separated ports of call into neighboring cities, only a few hours away.

The Whitney stables have meant more to racing than most people understand. Yet even the roughest of all camp followers knows that when a Whitney entry starts this horse is at least trying, wherever he finishes.

Tests to Decide Olympic Skaters

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 11 (AP).—The United States' premier skate speedsters will start tests here tomorrow afternoon to decide the team entry in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin, Germany.

Two events are slated for the opening day of the trials, the 500 and 1,500 meter races, while Sunday the 5,000 meter will be negotiated. Saturday, January 19, the 10,000 meter race will be staged. Thirty-eight entries are included in the list.

Anniversary of Events in Sports

By The Associated Press

Today a year ago: Elmer Boesake and Cecil Smith raised to 10-goal ranking in polo, level with Tommy Hitchcock.

Three years ago: Bill Terry, first baseman of New York Giants, rejected contract calling for 40 per cent cut in salary.

Perry Returns To Form

Melbourne, Jan. 11 (Friday) (AP).—Fred Perry demonstrated he had returned to top tennis form today when he defeated Vivian McGrath of Australia, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1, in the semi-final round of the Australian men's championship.

Increasing Stature

As a general rule, growth in stature ceases after twenty-five in males and after eighteen to twenty in females, though sometimes it continues for three or four years later. There are individual cases of adults making slight increase in stature through stretching or other forms of exercise, and certain people claim to be able to increase height through their methods. As the stature is determined almost entirely by the skeleton, such increases are found to be very slight and not to be measured in inches a year.

St. Peter's 5 Takes Over the Kendalls

Stacking up against the powerful St. Peter's Alumni at Columbus Center, Poughkeepsie, Thursday, Eddie Coughlin's Kendalls lost, 33-45.

Chipe Rhymer with 11 points did the high scoring for the Oilmen. Next came Johnny Zeeh and Cowboy Evory with 8 each. Andy Dykes with 4 and Tony Debrosky with 2.

Jack McAuley, one of the best known basketballers of the bridge City, made 20 points, and W. Waryas, another star, 13, equalling the total of the Kendalls themselves.

New Yorkers to Play Southerners

Miami, Fla., Jan. 11 (AP).—Two young southerners today meet two New Yorkers—members of amateur tennis's exclusive "first ten"—in the semi-finals of the third annual Miami Biltmore tennis tournament.

Arthur Hendrix, 17-year-old Lakeland, Fla., schoolboy, had Berkeley Bell, ranked seventh in the nation, as his opponent, while Bryan M. "Bitsy" Grant, Jr., of Atlanta, tested skill and strength with Sidney B. Wood, Jr., America's number two.

Racing Notes

By The Associated Press

If Joseph E. Widener has his way, there will be no increase in the value of two-year old stakes on New York tracks in the spring. The head of Belmont and Hialeah Parks is a firm believer that the less incentive offered horsemen to run their two-year olds, the better the crop of juveniles, and consequently a higher grade of three-year olds the following year.

"I would like to see the value of such famous old races as the Brooklyn and Suburban Handicaps raised to twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars," said Widener. "They ranked high in the old days and should regain their place at the top of the schedule of spring stakes."

This year the Suburban at Belmont Park and the Brooklyn at Aqueduct will be worth $10,000 each.

Contests Saturday At Comforter Hall

The three regular Saturday night games at Comforter Hall, Wynkoop Place, will be played tomorrow as follows:

Comforter Seniors vs. Haines Falls (Feature) 9 o'clock.

Varsity Girls vs. Haines Falls Girls, 8 o'clock.

Two Junior teams at 7 o'clock.

Lott and Stoefen Meet Defeat Again

Philadelphia, Jan. 11 (AP)—Some more cash, a lot more knowledge of this game of tennis the way the money performers go about it, and one lone mark of victory in five starts was all George Lott and Lester Stoefen had to show today from the first two stops on their cross-country professional "rookie" campaign.

With their "split" from a house of some 6,000-odd paid customers at Convention Hall last night, they left for Washington, hoping the third stop of their trek will bring them something more than a series of tennis lessons by the "old" campaigners of the pro game—Big Bill Tilden and dazzling Ellsworth Vines.

Only the fiery Lott managed to salvage something from last night's efforts of the newcomers to the money game, as he outlasted Tilden for a 7-5, 9-11, 9-7 triumph in a bitter duel.

This gave him revenge for the lacing he suffered at the hands and mastery of the "Old Wizard" of the game the night before in New York, but his greatest ambition he didn't achieve.

For the 1934 "world's best" amateur combination was made up of just two other players so far as Tilden and Vines were concerned, and the temperamental Phildalephian and his lanky California partner came out on top, 12-10, 2-6, 6-2, 0-6, 6-2.

Meantime Stoefen made a belated and disastrous bow to the pro singles game as Vines sped through with a 7-5, 6-3 conquest.

More Restrictions For Tennis Players

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—Tighter restrictions on the tennis player who wants to keep his amateur standing will be proposed at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association in Cincinnati February 9.

One addition to the U. S. L. T. A. code—the so-called eight weeks rule—and three changes will be recommended by the amateur rule committee.

The changes would bar acceptance of money for use or endorsement of equipment; reporting, either for radio or newspaper, any tournament in which the player is competing, and the playing either in tournaments or exhibitions against professionals.

Certain to cause intensive debate before its acceptance or rejection is the eight weeks rule, which would prohibit a player from accepting expense money for tournament play covering a period of more than eight weeks. The rule would not apply to Davis Cup players or those officially representing the United States in tournament competition.

Chinese Used Big Rollers to Produce Their Sugar

While American pioneers were grinding their grain in stone rollers a century or more ago, Chinese immigrants in Hawaii were producing sugar in the same manner.

Two rollers, believed to have been imported from South China more than 100 years ago, were found under the ruins of one of the territory's first sugar mills, near Honolulu, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

The rollers, weighing more than a ton each, were turned by horse power to crush the stalks and produce the juice from which sugar was boiled.

Several mills were in use in recent times in Formosa and the Philippines, where communities produce their own sugar.

Steam-driven machinery in more than 30 mills in Hawaii produces more than 1,000,000 tons of sugar annually.

The rollers were set up in the original manner at Honolulu by the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' association through co-operation of the Hawaiian Historical society.

The society's files reveal information on how the mill was assembled when it was first taken to the islands, and the operation was duplicated.

One of the stone rollers is driven by a wooden arm to which a horse or mule is hitched. Wooden cogs attached to this roller drive the other one. The stalks of cane are fed in by hand.

The Word "Console"

The word "console" was taken from the French early in the Eighteenth century, and with its original meaning, as a term in architecture. Its etymology is doubtful, possibly from the verb consolider, to consolidate. The term originally denoted a bracket or corbel, either ornamental or for supporting a cornice or fixture. Toward the close of the Nineteenth century, in organ-building, the meaning was extended to denote the portion of the instrument containing the manuals and stops. The console-table, in which the table was supported wholly or in part by consoles, or whose legs had the appearance of consoles, originated in the early Nineteenth century. But the meaning of the word console is entirely missing in its application to the modern gas-range.—Literary Digest.

Possession of Gold Illegal

The United States is the only country where it is illegal to have gold. No country limits silver possession. Several countries have laws against hoarding in large amounts. In England, for example, one should not have a hoard of more than $50(00). France and Germany frown on gold hoarding, but do not forbid the possession of reasonable amounts.

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, Jan. 10—The Men's Community Club will meet on Thursday evening of next week in the basement of the Reformed Church at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to attend and give their loyal support to the new officers who begin their duties at this meeting. The usual business meeting will be transacted and entertainment will be provided. Refreshments will be served.

Those of the Men's Community Club who are interested in dart baseball are reminded of the game to be played on Tuesday evening of next week with the Men's Club of Accord. The game will take place at the Accord Reformed Church at 8 o'clock. Those who intend to play are asked to be as prompt as possible so that there will be no loss of time in starting.

Members of the choir of the Reformed Church are urged to attend the weekly practice to be held on Friday evening of this week at the parsonage at 8 o'clock.

A meeting of the teachers and officers of the Reformed Church Sunday school will be held at the parsonage on Friday evening of this week at 7:30. All teachers and officers are asked to be present on time so that this meeting does not interfere with the choir practice.

At the monthly business meeting of the Christian Endeavor of the Reformed Church held on Monday evening at the home of Miss Alberta Davis, the annual election of officers took place. The following officers were elected to lead the organization through this year: President, Miss Alberta Davis; vice president, Charles Graham; secretary, Miss Evelyn Roosa; assistant secretary, the Rev. C. Van Tol; treasurer, Mrs. Ray Wood. After the meeting the hostess served refreshments and games were enjoyed.

The Christian Endeavor of the Reformed Church will hold a "Surprise Supper" in the basement of the church on Friday evening, January 18, at 6:15 o'clock. Those who wish to attend are asked to bring enough sandwiches for themselves, and also a "surprise dish", the contents of which is known only to the donor. There will be no charge for the supper but an offering will be taken, which will go toward the Christian Endeavor, to help in their work for the church. After the supper games and entertainment will be enjoyed by all who attend. Everyone is invited to come and enjoy the supper and the evening of games and entertainment with the members of the Christian Endeavor.

"Rally night" will be observed on Sunday night, January 20, by the C. E. of the Reformed Church. The members of the organization urge their friends to meet with them at that time. A special program will be rendered and everyone is invited to help make this a real occasion of worship. The meeting will take place at 7 o'clock.

Church services at the Reformed Church on Sunday: Sunday School at 9:30. Morning worship at 10:30. The pastor has chosen as his subject, "Hitting the Mark." The Sunday night forum will meet at 7 o'clock with the pastor as leader. There will be a continuation of the topic of last week, "The Social Significance of Religion." Everyone is invited to attend any or all of these meetings.

Sunday School at the M. E. Church will convene promptly at 9 o'clock. The opening program in the intermediate department will be in charge of "The Sunshine Girls". 10 o'clock the pastor, the Rev. Roscoe Strivings, will bring a message to the juniors followed by the regular morning sermon. Epworth League will meet at 7 p. m.

Dr. Edward Shea has purchased a new Plymouth car.

"Lizard Men"

According to ancient tradition, "lizard men" once inhabited Moorea in the Society islands of the South sea.

Flood Menace and Fog Are Overcome Today

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP).—A serious flood menace hanging over the state for nearly a week, appeared entirely overcome today as ice-clogged rivers and streams receded toward their normal levels.

The most troublesome spot remaining was in the extreme eastern sector where the Hudson river still was rising. Fed by numerous north country streams, the river was nearly 10 feet obev normal this morning with the flood peak expected sometime today.

At Albany the water rose to within 14 inches of the top of the docks. Colder weather, predicted for today and tomorrow, was expected to check the rise before any serious damage could be caused to the adjoining business section of the city.

Seaboard Fog Gone

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—The fog that shrouded New York for nearly five days was gone today, dissipated by a westerly breeze.

A fleet of 85 or more liners and freighters, helpless in the gray blanket shrouding the harbor, began to move into slips late yesterday in a procession that attracted hundreds to the Battery seawall.

Airplanes which were grounded at Metropolitan airports and Newark were able to fly on schedule again today.

While the fog was not the longest on record, meteorological experts here regarded it as one of the worst and most extensive on record and of maximum density.

Shipping men estimated it had cost as high as $2,000,000 in idle ships, extra tolls, lost business and the like.

India Leads in Rice

India produces the most rice, with about 5,000,000 tons a year, and China is second.

Stainless Steel

There are several different stainless steels. As a rule, they are steel alloys, containing a fairly large amount of the metal chromium, advises a writer in the Chicago Tribune. Their non-rusting properties are due not to any plating on the surface, but to the fact that the presence of chromium seems to inhibit, in some manner, the corrosion of iron.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

HER LIFE'S SAVINGS

"EXTREMELY cheerful, isn't she, for one who has seen the savings of a lifetime swept away?"

That remark about a woman I had just met reminded me of something a well-known author said at the depth of the depression, when so many people complained of losing everything. She said that if all they could show for "the savings of a lifetime" was the money that had been lost, she felt sorry for them. Otherwise, it wasn't so bad!

This might seem to be optimism like that of the doctor who wasn't "at all worried" about the patient's excruciating pain! But here now was a woman who justified it. She had lost all her money, she was "well on in years," and yet she was, apparently, still happy. True, the loss of her fortune did not mean the almshouse. She had left a very small annuity, sufficient to supply the necessities of life. But for one who had for years worked hard for a competence to keep her in the way to which she was accustomed, this might well have been a great tragedy. It is not easy at sixty to alter habits. And to many people, to leave little to enjoy.

But this woman had really "saved" much besides her money. She had saved a good working philosophy and a sense of humor. She had saved simple tastes, and a knowledge of pleasures that are free. She had stored up provisions for her mind, where she had riches, and a capacity for always coining more such riches, that no depression or financial loss could take away.

Among life's savings, too, this woman had love, the devotion of those to whom she had given of herself or of her substance. And she had friends, whose affection she had saved and guarded through the years with no less thrift than she had saved her money. But I should say it is to the qualities within herself, "saved up," that she owes her ability to rise above financial loss, to be undowned when her money was swept away.

This Filet Crochet Lends Itself to Many Accessories

PATTERN 5283.

Filet crochet—what handsome bedroom or dining room linens this pattern will make! The simple rose design is effectively set off by the open meshes of the K stitch. You will find a design for a band that will make a handsome insertion as well as edging on curtains and bedspreads, smaaller arrangements of the same design for vanity, buffet, or chair back sets as well as an arrangement of double bands that will make handsome scarfs. They are all to be crocheted of string making a 6½ inch band. Of course, you can use a finer thread and get a narrower banding or edging that will do very well on pillow cases, towels and other small household linens. The pattern offers an unusual opportunity of making handsome curtains for your entire house at little cost.

In pattern 5283 you will find charts and directions for making a banding, an edging, scarfs, pieces for a vanity, buffet, or chair back set; material requirements; illustrations of the design and of all stitches needed.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y.

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER LEARNS SOMETHING ABOUT SEEP SEEP

"HELLO! There's Seep Seep! I haven't seen him since we were together up north, where his home was not far from mine," exclaimed Tank Tank the Nuthatch.

As he spoke a little brown bird alighted at the foot of the very next tree. He was just a trifle bigger than Jenny Wren but not at all like Jenny, for while Jenny's tail usually is cocked up in the sauciest way, Seep Seep's tail is never cocked up at all. In fact, it bends down, for Seep Seep uses his tail in climbing just as the members of the Woodpecker family use theirs. He was dressed in grayish-brown above and grayish-white beneath. Across each wing was a little band of buffy-white and his bill was curved down just a little.

"Hello! There's Seep Seep."

When he alighted at the foot of that tree, Seep Seep didn't stop an instant but started up, going round and round it as he climbed and picking out things to eat under the bark. His way of climbing that tree was very like creeping and Peter thought that Seep Seep was well named the Brown Creeper. He would have liked to gossip with Seep Seep, but he knew that Seep Seep would waste no time that way.

Round and round up the trunk of that tree went Seep Seep and, when he reached the top, at once flew down to the bottom of the next tree and without a pause, started up that. He wasted no time exploring the branches, but kept to the trunk. Once in a while he would cry in a thin little wiry voice, "Seep! Seep!" but never paused to rest or look around. If he had felt that on him alone depended the job of getting all the insect eggs and grubs on those trees, he could not have been more industrious.

"Does he build his nest in a hole in a tree?" asked Peter of Tank Tank the Nuthatch.

Tank Tank shook his head. "No," he replied. "He hunts for a tree or an old stub with a piece of loose bark hanging to it. In behind this he tucks his nest made of twigs, strips of bark and moss. He's a funny little fellow and I don't know of anyone in all the Great World who more strictly attends to his own business than does Seep Seep the Brown Creeper. He's little but he is mighty useful. Farmer Brown ought to be glad every time he sees him. By the way, Peter, have you seen anything of Downy the Tree Sparrow?"

"Not yet," replied Peter, "but I think he must be here. I'm glad you reminded me of him. I'll go look for him."

Parent-Teacher Associations

Woodstock Unit

Woodstock, Jan. 10—The P.-T. A. meeting held in the library on Tuesday was the largest meeting this year. Many new faces were seen among the gathering. The interest shown in the problems on hand was very gratifying. After the meeting was called to order and Mrs. Cohn had read the minutes of the last meeting it was decided to drop the matter of health among the school children. This seems to be well straightened out by now and the problem of major importance is recreation for the children. Miss Winifred Haile was present to express her interest in forming a junior choral society. The idea met with warm approval and led to suggestions for other forms of entertainment. Among the most important of these were games, dramatics, basketball and skating. If these could be made easily available to the children the parents felt they would have something really worth while to offer. After much interested discussion and diversity of opinion it was decided that the most feasible plan for the present—and one which has worked under P.-T. A. supervision in other places—is to open some convenient and pleasant place that the children can use for a club house. There is the necessity of raising funds for the enterprise, so a food sale was decided upon as a beginning. This will raise enough for fuel for the "club house." Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Oxhandler and Mrs. Bolton were chosen as hostesses for the house warming. Refreshments, fuel and a few games will be supplied by the parents. The organizing and entertaining will be left to the children who, after all, know best what they want anyway. Those present at the meeting were Mrs. Brinkman, Mrs. R. W. Wolceski, Mrs. Irving Brown, Miss Betty Thompson, Mrs. Rose Oxhandler, Mrs. K. Cleveland, Mrs. Jack Feeley, Mrs. G. C. Layman, Mrs. Pierpont, Mrs. Morris Riseley, Mrs. Vidas, Mrs. D. Watrous, Mrs. Clarence Bolton, Mrs. Pearl Shultis, Mrs. Elizabeth Clough, Miss Florence Webster, Mrs. Bessie Cohn, Miss Winifred and Mrs. Eugen Haile, Mrs. Ivan Summers, Mrs. DeRuyter, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey I. Todd.

A food sale will be held by the P.-T. A. on Saturday starting at 10 a. m. The committee in charge is Mrs. Ivan Summers, Mrs. G. C. Layman and Mrs. Morris Riseley. The money raised will be used to make possible the opening of a recreation place for the children of Woodstock. It is planned to have the sale in the Community Association building.

Mt. Marion P.-T. A.

The January meeting of the Mt. Marion Parent-Teacher Association was held in the schoolhouse on Tuesday evening, January 8, at 8 o'clock. The business meeting was held first and included committee reports and plans for the card party to be held on January 18 for the association. The speaker for the evening was Mr. Schoonmaker, Y. M. C. A. secretary, from Kingston, who gave a very entertaining as well as instructive talk on music. He spoke of the different patterns or types of music and proved an undeniable though sometimes slight connection between so-called modern jazz and the classics. He related interesting stories from the lives of the great composers, Schubert, Handel, Beethoven and others, and urged upon those present the desire to instill within the hearts of our children a more real and vital love for music. Mr. Schoonmaker was a convincing and interesting speaker and his visit was greatly appreciated.

P.-T. A. No. 4.

Miss Elizabeth Doremus, Ulster county agent for dependent children was the speaker at the January meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 4, held on Tuesday evening. About 70 children are, she said, under her care at present and like a true mother she yearns over them, hopes for them, suffers with them, and is at times tried with them. Believing that a poor home with love in it is better than a rich home without love she favors whenever possible, keeping a child in its own home with the parents. She has in her 10 years of work here never felt that any mother was too had to be allowed to see her children even when it has been found necessary to remove them from her care. Miss Doremus was introduced by Miss Moeslein and was given a rising vote of thanks for her talk which was eagerly listened to by everyone present.

The president, Mrs. Thomas Barnade an appeal for donations of cocoa and sugar for serving the lunch pupils at the noon hour. Mention was made of communications received from the State Founder's Day chairman, the State Motion Pictures chairman and the State Legislation chairman.

Mrs. W. R. Anderson called attention to the fact that "Grandma Bailey" of Albany, one of the State Founders would celebrate on January 27, her 103rd birthday. She also mentioned the Parent Education broadcasts over N. B. C. Red Network given Thursdays 5 to 5:15 p. m., by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. On January 10, W. W. Charters, Director Bureau of Educational Research, Ohio State University, spoke on "The Movies in And Out of School." On January 17, B. H. Darrow, radio chairman, National Congress Parents and Teachers, will speak on "The Radio as an Educational Agency."

On January 24, Alice Sowers, specialist in parent education, National Congress of Parents and Teachers will speak upon "Recent Developments in Parent Education."

On January 31, Ernest W. Burgess, Professor of Sociology, University of Chicago, will talk upon "The Influence of Neighborhoods on Children."

The play, "The Wizard of Oz," which the Junior League and P.-T. A.'s of Kingston are planning to give on February 9, was discussed. Miss Florence Cordts was appointed ticket chairman of School No. 4, Miss Mulhern, publicity chairman, and Mrs. Burt Richter financial chairman for the play.

The Lay Teacher's Class, conducted by Miss Peabody will meet at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Friday evening, January 18, subject "Social Adjustment."

A piano solo was played by Bonilda Simoneeni and ice cream and cake were served.

Musical Society Of Kingston Meeting

The Musical Society of Kingston met at the home of Mrs. Joseph Forman, 309 Albany avenue, Wednesday evening. Miss Jane Mauterstock, the president, presided at the business meeting. Miss Margaret Howe was welcomed as a new member. It was announced that there would be a musical at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church early in February by two of the members, Mrs. Lester Decker and Mrs. Walter T. Tremper.

Miss Mauterstock appointed three members to bring current musical events at the next meeting. Attention was called to the broadcast on Friday over the Columbia network of Eunice Norton, young pianist who played here last winter in one of our community concerts. Miss Norton will play a Tschaikowsky concerto with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

Miss Eva Clinton had charge of the program which consisted of a musical travelogue through the countries of Europe studying the particular dance form of each country. The characteristics of the people influenced this favorite pastime.

Norway was the first country visited. Two types of dance are noticed there, "Springtanz" and "Halling."

Mrs. Mary Z. Chidester illustrated with Grieg's Norwegian Dance Op. 35. Next came "Fjall nas polska," a Swedish dance and "Shoemaker's Dance," a Danish folk dance.

We travel now to the British Isles where the whimsical, carefree, Irish dwell. A typical Irish jig, "St. Patrick's Day," was played by Miss Margaret Howe.

Scotland was represented by the "Highland Fling," also played by Miss Howe.

"Country Gardens," an arrangement by Percy Grainger, was played by Mrs. Forman to illustrate England's dance form.

Next we cross the channel to Germany and Austria where the waltz had its origin. The Misses Margaret Howe and Phyllis Brodhead and Mrs. Clarence Wolfersteig, Mrs. Mortimer Downer and Mrs. Raymond Rignall, accompanied by Mrs. Mills, sang in German, "Da mocht selbst der Herrgott ein Weinersein," by Korner, and "Wien, du Stadt Meiner Fraume," by Dr. Sieczynski. The group was dressed in peasant style which added to the charm of these numbers.

Miss Ethel Mauterstock played a Chopin polonaise and mazurka as Polish dance contributions.

Moods of Hauser's Hungarian Rhapsody were demonstrated at the piano by Miss Clinton.

The Russian people express monotony and sadness with a ray of hope. A "Russian Cossack Dance" was played by Miss Jane Mauterstock.

Next we journey to Italy, the land of sunshine and beauty, where life is expressed in music and art. "A minuet" by Boccherini was played by Mrs. Mills.

In Spain almost all music is written in dance form. Miss Phyllis Brodhead played the very modern "Bolero" by Ravel.

The members regret to have missed Mrs. Florence Cubberly and Miss Agatha Flick's part in the program due to illness.

After the program delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Jane Mauterstock, and Mrs. Henry Millonig, Jr., poured.

Virginia Trio Held By White Plains Police

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—Two young runaway sisters and their 31-year-old male companion, all of Nathalie, Va., were jailed as "tramps" early today after detectives found them parked in a delapidated roadster on a city street.

The prisoners, held for arraignment in city court today, described themselves as: Raymond Powell, 31, a clerk in his father's general store near the village of Nathalie; Eloise West, 19, and her sister, 16, who said she is a student at a private school in Virginia. The girls, reported to be orphans, confessed to Detectives Arthur Ironsides and Edward Malley that they had run away from their home at Nathalie.

After a check-up had established that the roadster belongs to Powell, authorities here communicated with District of Columbia police and contacted the girls' brother, a resident of Washington. The trio was held in cells to be questioned further today.

Montana Rides Again

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

CHAPTER 1

OUTLAWS' DEN

THE strides of Brother Pascual were long and swift, but the day strode longer and swifter by far to its ending.

Shadows as blue as wafer were flowing through the ravines, rising higher and higher, and the naked summits of the San Carlos range began to burn with rose and with golden flame against that Mexican sky; but the friar, taking a stronger hold on the staff which was his companion in the wilderness, gave little heed to the beauty around him.

He had only one eye for it, after all; over the other he wore a big shield of black leather. A plaster patch made a big white cross on the opposite cheek and a bandage circled his head. To give his stride greater freedom he had pulled up his long gray robe so that a fold hung over the cord that girdled him and the edge of his garment kicked in and out around his knees.

In the calf of each brown and hairy leg there was a mighty fist of muscle needed for the support of this towering bulk of a man, yet the only provision he carried with him on his journey was a pouch of dry corn meal. He was dark as an Indian, but his broad face was marked with the pain and doubt of some high endeavor.

The sun bulged its cheeks in the west and blew radiant color all across the sky: the heavens darkened to green and amber, then yellow-green and blue, with the green fading rapidly into night as Brother Pascual came to the narrow mouth of a gorge over which leaned pillars of lofty rock. A jack rabbit darted from behind a stone and fled, leaving the whisper of its speed in the air.

And in the mouth of the ravine the friar paused and shouted: "Oh-ho! Oh-ho! I am Brother Pascual! Hai! Do you hear? I am Brother Pascual!"

After a moment, while the echoes were still dimly dying, a voice almost at his elbow said: "Well, brother, who's hungry now? Whose bellyache are you to tell us about now?"

"Is it Luis?" asked the friar.

"Luis went spying once too often into the stockyards at Chihuahua. They killed him in the slaughter-house. Maybe they made him into sausage."

"What is your name? Ah, you are Carlos!"

"You've only seen me once; and it's too dark for seeing now, unless you're a cat. How do you remember people, Brother?"

"I remember them by their need of mercy," said the friar. "Poor Luis! Is he gone? He had a need of mercy, also."

"So has every man with Rubriz," answered Carlos.

"So have I. So have all mortals," declared Brother Pascual, humbly. "I am going on to the house."

"There's plenty of noise in the house," said Carlos. "Yesterday we caught a mule train loaded with—"

"I DON'T want to hear it," broke in Pascual. "We are all sinners, Carlos. But good may come out of evil. Good may come out of evil. Saint Nicholas, be large in the eye of my mind!"

With that, he stalked on through the thick blackness of the ravine, which rapidly widened. Trees choked the way. Both his long staff and his feet found his course through them until he came out on a level valley floor, with a stippling of lights near by giving a vague outline of a house.

He heard singing and shouting and the beat of running feet while he was still in the distance, and, though he once pledged to love good and hate evil, he could not help smiling a little.

For Pascual was in many respects a true peon and therefore he had to forgive a true bandido like Mateo Rubriz. A thief steals from all alike: a bandido harries the rich only; and in Mexico there is a belief that grows out of the very soil that all rich men are evil.

"Come dip your hands into that sack—all gold!"

When he came to the door of the house he beat on it three times with his staff. Then he threw the door open on the smoky light of the inner hall, and shouted: "I, Brother Pascual, am coming! It is I, Brother Pascual!" The thunder of his voice rumbled through the house, and then a door flung open to his right and let a rush of sound flow out about him.

"Bring in Pascual!" shouted the familiar, strident tones of Mateo Rubriz. Half a dozen wild young fellows leaped through the doorway and seized on the burly friar and drew him into the room. It was the kitchen, dining-hall, and reception-chamber of Mateo Rubriz.

As a chorus of welcome rose to greet Brother Pascual, he sniffed up at the fragrance of roasting kid—most delicious of all meat in this world; and the savor of frijoles cooked with peppers, and the pungency of coffee, and the thin scent of beer and the sour of wine—all were in that air.

At the long table some of the men were still eating; others looked on with a careless interest as Mateo Rubriz, equipped with a small balance-scale, measured out lumps of shining white metal and small heaps of heavy yellow dust.

Brother Pascual refused to call it silver and gold because money is the root of all evil, and he loved these men in spite of himself. So he fastened his gaze only on the huge squat figure of Mateo Rubriz, who wore common cotton trousers, furled up to his knees, and cheap huaraches on his feet.

The sleeves of his shirt were cut off near the armpit so as to leave as much as possible of his great hairy chest and shoulders bare, which, men said, was unrivaled in all the San Carlos range, in all Mexico, perhaps, and therefore in the world! So thought Pascual. And he rejoiced in the might of that fellow peon in his ragged, dirty clothes; he rejoiced in the red silk cap that Rubriz preferred to all the sombreros of cloth or of straw.

And the heart of Pascual was touched with sympathy when he marked, diagonally across the flushed face of Mateo, the long white scar which the whiplash had left on the flesh. Men said that no single whip-stroke could have left such a broad and deep scar, but that Mateo Rubriz, in the passion of his shame and hate, had rubbed salt into his wound to freshen it and keep it burning on his face as rage burned in his heart. At any rate, there was the sign clearly visible whenever his face reddened, which was often.

"COME here, little old Pascual!" Rubriz was thundering. "What have you been doing to yourself? I've told you that if you keep taking your short cuts through the mountains, up the cliffs and down the Devil's Slides, you'd have a fall one of these days. Well, if you've had a fall like that, thank God that your head was battered but not broken.

"Come here and dip your hands into that sack—all gold—and take out the fill of your big hands. You can weight down your pockets and spend it all on your poor. Dip in your hands as deep as the wrists and pull out what your fingers will hold. Come, Pascual! Hai, my children! We shall all be a thousand leagues nearer to heaven when Brother Pascual has prayed for us."

Brother Pascual stood by the bandit and looked down at the buckskin sack which held such treasure. He was aware, too, of the gleam of white metal and of yellow up and down the table. He took a deep breath and looked up to the smoke-blackened rafters of the room.

"Father, forgive them!" he said from his heart. Then he added: "Not even for my poor, Mateo. Give me something to eat, as soon as I have washed. But stolen money poisons even the poor."

Mateo caught him by the wrists and looked him up and down, half savage and half fond. "Listen to me! Be silent, everyone. Mateo Rubriz is speaking. Do you hear? One day I shall give up this life and go into a desert with this good man. I shall scratch up roots with my bare hands and feed on them. I shall drink nothing but clear spring water.—Give me a cup of that wine, one of you!—And I shall spend the rest of my days praying and doing penance."

He seized a great jeweled cup which was handed to him, brimming with sour red wine, and poured half the contents down his throat.

"When I do penance," he roared, "it shall be the greatest penance that ever was done by a Mexican, and Mexicans are the only men."

He made a gesture, and some of the wine slopped out of the cup and splashed from the floor onto the bare calves of his legs.

"Do you hear me, Pascual? I shall be such a saint one day that they'll have to shift in their chairs and crowd their halos closer together to make room for Mateo Rubriz!"

CAPITAL NEWS

HOLLISTER STURGES, Jr.

Albany, Jan. 11.—(Special)—The Republican party, at its harmonious meeting in the Capitol Wednesday, has chosen as a means of unemployment relief to draft bills for the elimination of grade railroad crossings, for which the legislature has, some years ago, appropriated funds, but have never been fully expended.

In 1925 measures were taken by the government to start this work, but little was done until the following year. Since 1926, 531 grade crossings have been eliminated, at an expense averaging $100,000 each. Of the 7,530 crossings existing January 1, 1933, 4,758 were unprotected. Crossings that are eliminated are paid for in the following manner: Railroad, 50 per cent, state, 49 per cent, and county, 1 per cent. So in the past nine years the state has expended more than $25,000,000 on this single traffic problem.

While grade crossings have increased generally in the United States in recent years, this is not so in New York. This state has removed these road hazzards in greater proportion to their construction. In view of this fact accidents, deaths, and injuries have taken a noticeable decline. Statistics of 1931-1932 and 1932-1933 (those of the past fiscal year have not been released) show that in 1932 there were 534 motor accidents and eight other types at grade crossings in comparison to 366 the following year. Deaths and injuries were 91 and 339 in 1932, respectively; 88 and 237 for the following period of time.

This shows a substantial gain in preservation of human life and limb. To further continue this work the Republicans urge expenditures of funds that are available, and will serve a two-fold purpose: Give employment to many jobless, and reduce the loss of life even further than has been done in the past.

The accompanying chart illustrates progress of two years' undertaking:

In a signed statement yesterday Senator Julius S. Berg, Manhattan Democrat, announced his bill for creation of a commission for investigation of illegal practices of the state's various professions and reframing education laws. Mr. Berg believes too much money is being spent in administering professional laws because they overlap each other, and this commission would have the right to reduce them and do away with duplication. His proposal for such a commission asks for 15 members, six to be appointed by the Governor, and for an appropriation of $50,000.

Echoing a reaction to the Republican agenda and its pending proposals for relief, the Governor stated yesterday that he would, as he has frequently stated before, welcome any suggestions that the Republican party might propose on this or any other problem, and he would be very glad to receive their suggestions.

Speaker Irwin Steingut announced the report of the Assembly Committee on Mortgages and Real Estate on the bill extending the moratorium to July 1, 1936. The Judiciary Committee's report included the bill providing for additional returns of canvass; bi-partisan boards of election; compulsory filing of campaign expenses prior to elections; and increasing the term of Governor and Lieutenant Governor from two to four years. These were all recommended in Governor Lehman's message to the Legislature.

ARDONIA.

Ardonia, Jan. 10.—Eber Palmer, Sr., and sons, William, Eber, Jr., and Charles, also Eldred Smith and Louis Hyatt attended the oyster supper and meeting of the Rod and Gun Club in Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, Tuesday evening, January 8. The menu for the supper was oyster stew, cold slaw, rolls, pickles and coffee. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, W. Courter, Sr.; vice president, William Palmer; secretary, Eldred Smith; treasurer, Lewis Hyatt. Committees appointed were: Ralph Bowles, Fred Bernard and Eber Palmer, Sr., to receive fish, and W. Courter, Sr., Emer Palmer, Sr., Harold Bernard and Ralph Bowles, committee to receive game for stocking streams and land. Non-gun club members will be required to pay one dollar for three days hunting. It was also decided to eliminate the button in preference for arm bands for identification purposes.

The Plattekill Grange members and their friends are invited to attend the card party sponsored by the service and hospitality committee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everett in Plattekill Thursday evening, January 17.

Mrs. Kate Terwilliger and daughter, Mrs. Herbert Winters, were out of town callers Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. Parsons Gives a Graphic Account of Newfoundland Work

Kiwanis Club Hears Interesting Talk and Sees Motion Pictures of Scenes in Newfoundland — Gives Brief History of the Work of Dr. Grenfell.

Dr. Charles Parsons, once a member of the Sir Wilfred Grenfell expedition to the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts, and later head of a hospital at Twillingate, Newfoundland, was the speaker Thursday noon at the Governor Clinton Hotel before members of the Kiwanis Club, his address being concerned with the north country and his adventures, which were embellished with motion pictures which he had taken during his service there.

Dr. Parsons began his remarks with a brief history of the work of Dr. Grenfell, explaining that he began his work when he discovered that the hundreds of fishermen on the North Atlantic were without medical care. Dr. Grenfell began his medical missionary work on a small schooner, which traveled from place to place along the coasts of Labrador and Newfoundland, treating the sailors. Later he found it desirable to establish a hospital on the coasts of Labrador, to which families living in the northland might come for treatment. Because this hospital was so far north of Newfoundland, another hospital was needed, the result being the building of one at Twillingate, which was headed by Dr. Parsons, on recommendation of Dr. Grenfell.

The great difficulties financial and otherwise which confronted those interested in constructing the hospital were clearly brought out in an interesting manner by the speaker. Families living, on the Newfoundland coast are far from wealthy, it was explained, and an income of several hundreds of dollars a year was average among the families in that section. However, these people contributed generously of their funds, and further aided the work of building the hospital by lending an amazing store of ability in construction details. The plans for the building were donated by a firm of New York architects, and the problem of water supply, lighting, and sewerage was met with gratic efforts on the part of engineers. Once the plans for the various sections of the project were on hand, all of the men laid to with a will and the building was constructed with local labor, donated by the Newfoundlanders.

Dr. Parsons explained that the people in Newfoundland were a hardy lot, pioneers in a sense of the word, who made their living mainly by fishing, although many of the men were not expert marines. He related how they depended upon the coastline and a sense of sound to sail their boats, and recalled how when the crew of a vessel of the fishing fleet sailed too far out, losing sight of land, were blown across the Atlantic to the coast of Scotland before they knew where they were.

In the winter the country becomes ice bound because of the Arctic currents, which bring the icebergs from the north, so that the main occupation in winter is the cutting of trees for wood pulp.

The ingeniousness of the men was described in that many of them could enter the woods with only a saw and axe and return with wood cut for the construction of a home or a sailing vessel. The people with homes, who tire of living in one particular locality, solicit the aid of friends during the winter months, jack up the abode slip skids under the foundation and all join in hauling the house across the ice to a new location. The only pay necessary is a meal or party for those who aid the work. Ships are repaired in similar fashion, all helping in beaching the vessel until repairs are made.

Once the hospital was built it was found that some method of financing was necessary, few being able to afford hospitalization under costs and standards in this country. A plan was worked out where each family paid a certain sum, five dollars, whether sick or not, and this sum was pooled by the hospital to care for any medical attention that any of the contributing families might need. Thus a family might need operations and other kinds of medical care, and would receive any necessary treatment for his original fee. Some families might not need any care but all contributed.

The program concluded with motion pictures taken by Dr. Parsons, giving scenes of the hospital, hospital staff, contour of the land, arrival of steamers, house moving, and other details which he had explained in his address.

President Morris Samter thanked Dr. Parsons for the address, which was one of the most interesting the club has enjoyed in some time. Music for the day was in charge of Song Leader Paul Zucca, accompanied at the piano by Danny Bittner.

Plans were announced completed for the installation party which will be held next Friday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

COTTEKILL

Cottekill, Jan. 11.—The regular monthly meeting of the Cottekill volunteer firemen was held Wednesday evening. Officers for the year were elected.

Mrs. Mary Beach of Rosendale spent Monday afternoon with her brother-in-law and family, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Beach.

Silas Snyder, who has been spending some time with his son, Clarence, and family, in Scotia, returned home WeWdnesday.

The Cottekill volunteer firemen responded to the call to come to the fire at Ridgeley Manor Tuesday evening.

Friends of Mrs. Catherine Conner are very sorry to hear of her severe illness. All wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rowe, son, Kenneth, and Mrs. Mary Beach of Rosendale called on Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Beach and family Tuesday evening.

WEALTHY BRITONS UNDER DEATH WATCH

Treasury Keeps Track of the Rich Who May Die.

London.—The chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, has marked some of Britain's millionaires for the "spot"—and the budget surplus for next year will depend to a large extent on how many are "rubbed out."

To balance Mr. Chamberlain's tidy books properly, an expert statistician is working overtime at the treasury figuring out just how many of the country's more opulent citizens probably will succumb to the "grim reaper."

From this actuary's macabre figures, the chancellor estimates the amount of income from death duties for the year.

This is no small item in the British budget as the duties run from 40 to 60 per cent on estates in the higher brackets; England doesn't allow rich men to pass on much of their wealth. For example, in the fiscal year 1933-34 death duties amounted to $426,350,000.

An Extra "Windfall."

The estimate for this year was only $373,750,000, but a few of what are fondly known in treasury circles as "windfalls" provided the cash box with an extra $42,600,000.

If the outlook is favorable he can stop the clamoring of those gentlemen from the royal air force, who declare in no uncertain terms that they have to have more planes—"or else."

On the other hand, if so disposed, the chancellor can pay a war debt instalment to a friendly power.

Therefore, the hard working statistician was hired a few months ago to work out the expectation of life of known millionaires, on the line adopted by life insurance companies.

To bear this out, the Income Tax Payers' society, which ought to know, says:

"In the treasury department's secret archives are figures which will enable actuaries to tell the chancellor how many millionaires are likely to die in any particular year."

Mr. Chamberlain planned on receiving $380,000,000 from the death duties. But apparently he has underestimated things a little, for about a dozen millionaires have died so far this year and revenue returns from the first quarter showed an increase of $27,000,000 over 1933.

Because of these heavy death duties, most wealthy men who have their fortunes tied up in specific industries, carry death and duty insurance to take care of payment of taxes and obviate necessity of the family selling the business in order to settle with the government. Premiums on these policies often exceed the net income from an estate, thus the man with a fortune coming in every year might be losing money. But only by losing on his "income" is he able to protect his principal.

240,000 Cases Aided by Red Cross in Past Year

Washington. — The American Red Cross has treated and corrected physical defects in 240,000 children during the last year, according to the annual report of the organization's health activities.

The Red Cross also administered operating with local medical authorities throughout the nation, examined 629,000 children during the year and found that 361,000, more than half, were suffering from some type of ailment.

Among the more frequent causes of ill health were malnutrition and allied ailments, bad tonsils, eye strain, defects in hearing and crippling due to infantile paralysis.

The Red Cross also administered two special funds given for public health work during the year. The funds were mainly used to help support public health nurses in 51 communities.

Big Dipper to Be Soup Spoon in 50,000 Years

Philadelphia.—The Big Dipper in another 50,000 years will be the same shape as a common, ordinary soup spoon, according to Wagner Schlesinger, assistant director of the astronomy department of the Franklin museum.

During these next 50,000 years one will be able to watch the wandering stars in the tip of the handle move to the left and the rest to the right, thereby changing the shape of the Dipper considerably.

The star-making machinery in the planetarium can switch them around in the most amazing ways. The universe can be turned back to 50,000 years ago, showing the astral positions at that time, and then can be turned forward to show how the Dipper will appear in the year 51934 A. D.

Wades in Snow and Swims to Pay Election Bet

Akron, Ohio.—The first big snow of the season here chose to come on the day Rudolph Lehinger had an unpleasant election bet to pay off. Lehinger had to take a swim in a large reservoir.

He had his choice of wading through the large flakes and taking his plunge or paying $25. Mrs. Earl Markey and Miss Fern Day, winners of the bet, found it too cold even to witness the payoff. They sent Miss Rosalie Mills and Miss Vivian McDonald to "check up" on Lehinger for them. Lehinger shivered throughout the ordeal.

Way It Usually Is

Psychologists at the University of Wisconsin discover that a man's photograph offers no clue to his fitness for a job. The old family album in the red-plush covers showed that for the black sheep of the family usually "took" the best picture.

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, Jan. 11—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Webster and nieces, Gertrude and Alice Benz, of Connelly Heights attended the birthday party on Tuesday, January 8, of little Betty Ann Jahn of Ulster Park, who celebrated her fourth birthday. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

Leslie Benton, who spent the holidays at his home on First street, returned to Batavia where he attends the school for the blind.

Mrs. Edward Trinkle and baby of Port Ewen spent Thursday in the village visiting relatives.

Ida Chandler, youngest daughter of the Rev. W. B. Chandler of the M. E. Church, is confined to her home in the parsonage with German measles.

Mrs. Lawrence Murphy is recovering from a recent attack of the grip.

Julia Mencel is confined to her home with measles.

Mrs. Anthony Benz of Connelly Heights and Mrs. Lillian Webster of Third street called on Mrs. Oscar Jahn of Ulster Park on Monday.

Mrs. Ira Maurer is confined to her home by the grip and under the care of Dr. G. W. Ross of Port Ewen.

Adonis Still Lamented

In the days of old, Gebel, the most ancient city in Phoenicia, was the center of the Adonis worship. There, on the banks of the river Nohr-Al-Ibraham, the river of Adonis, the women of Syria still lament the death of the beloved of Venus when in autumn the red waters from the hillside swell the stream.

"A SMALL LEAK

will sink a great ship." The same is true with a diseased condition in the human body. It may be scarcely noticeable at first, but in time develops into something serious.

The cause of most diseases is due to pressure on nerves where they leave the spine. This pressure prevents the nerves from carrying the normal amount of life force to the organs they supply, and disease is the result.
